Senate Refuses Probe of Farley; Pushes Program

Long Rebuffed as Move for Inquiry Is Lost on 62-20 Vote.

TVA Amendments Swept to Passage

By Robert C. Albright.

In a burst of speed reminiscent of the early days of the New Deal, Senate Democrats united yesterday behind an effective leadership to clear their national party chairman of corruption charges, then smashed through the barriers that have tied up the Administration's program.

Without a record ballot and with little debate, temporary NRA extension was approved. By a straight party vote, 62 to 20, Huey Long's resolution to investigate Postmaster General James A. Farley was defeated. Two hours later, leaders swept to passage the Norris TVA amendments, 56 to 19, and before adjournment, called up the long-stalemated Wagner labor disputes bill.

It was the first show of Democratic teamwork in the Senate this session and was broadly interpreted as an opening in the Administration's big push to enact the entire Roosevelt program, substantially intact. Such were the orders leaders brought back to the Capitol after Sunday's "fishing" trip with the President.

Showing Gap Closing.

Typifying a closing of gaps in Democratic ranks, every Senate Democrat present cast his ballot against the Farley investigation, except Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, who was paired for it. Even Louisiana's "Kingfish" switched his ballot to "no" in a futile effort to move for reconsideration. He was quickly outwitted by leaders, who beat him to the motion.

Only eight Democrats voted against the Norris TVA amendments, increasing the Tennessee Valley authority's capitalization from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000, and broadening its powers. Only 11 Republicans joined with them. Voting for the resolution were 48 Democrats, eight Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one Progressive.

Two important last-minute amendments were added to the Norris bill. One, by Senator James Couzens (Republican), Michigan, would require TVA to establish a uniform cost accounting system. Another by Senator M. M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, would extend TVA jurisdiction to the Cumberland River and basin.

Bonus Bill Held Up.

Almost forgotten in the day's legislative scramble, the Patman bonus bill remained held up in the Senate, as sponsors of the bill made a quick change in plans. Senator Elmer Thomas, of Oklahoma, Senate inflationist leader, decided not to withdraw his motion for reconsideration of the Patman vote. The bill can not go to the White House until the motion is disposed of. In explaining his action, Senator Thomas said several friends of the measure were absent and he wanted to muster full strength on his anticipated motion to override an expected White House veto.

Flier, In Peril, Escapes Crash

Kingsford-Smith Sends an S O S, Dumps Mail in Flight Over Sea.

By the Associated Press.

Sydney, Australia, May 15 (Wednesday).—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith apparently emerged safely today from danger over the Tasman Sea while flying special jubilee air mail from here to New Zealand.

After flashing an S O S that he had lost the propeller of one engine and that another engine was spluttering, he radioed later that he was apparently out of danger and waso flying homeward with tw motors working, 300 miles from Sydney.

Kingsford-Smith had dumped his cargo of bail, but the spluttering engine smoothed out later as he fought for altitude.

A report to Sydney that he had fallen into the sea caused great dismay, which turned to rejoicing at 11:07 a. m., when he radioed his plane was humming along homeward.

Sir Charles had left here at 12:20 a. m. Accompanying him in the plane were Navigator Taylor and Wireless Operator Stannard. The ship carried 34,000 letters and 14,000 pounds of freight.

Part of its cargo had been taken from Capt. C. T. Ulm's plane, the Faith of Australia, which was to have accompanied Sir Charles' ship.

POSTMASTER GENERAL FARLEY.

Pugh to Offer New Evidence In Plot Charge

Typewriter Used by Mrs. Lyddane Goes Before Grand Jury Monday.

A typewriter formerly used by Mrs. Anne Lyddane, of Rockville, Md., will be offered as evidence Monday when the Montgomery County grand jury is asked to indict her on a charge of plotting a double murder, State's Attorney James H. Pugh announced last night.

The prosecution expects to show, Pugh said, that the typewriter "wrote certain documents to the co-conspirators in this case."

Mrs. Lyddane, attractive 29-year-old blonde, was arrested April 1. Within a few days she was charged with conspiring with three men to murder her husband, Francis (Slom) Lyddane, and Mrs. Arthur Beall, who in 1933 named her as co-respondent in a divorce suit.

Posed as Gang Agent.

The three men arrested with Mrs. Lyddane as co-conspirators were John Martin Boland, who represented himself as agent for a Philadelphia gang; John (Googy) Carnell, a former convict, who met Mrs. Lyddane while tending bar in Rockville, and Edwin J. Davis, another former convict, who posed as a gunman.

At a preliminary hearing in the Rockville Police Court, Mrs. Lyddane, together with Boland, was held for the grand jury on a charge of conspiring to kill her husband. The warrant charging her with conspiring with Carnell and Davis to murder Mrs. Beall was dismissed.

Proffer Withdrawn.

Nevertheless, State's Attorney Pugh has announced that he will ask the grand jury to indict Mrs. Lyddane for conspiring in both cases. Carnell and Davis were held on the Beall charge.

Pugh's statement last night follows:

"When the preliminary hearing of the Lyddane and Boland case was held in the Police Court of Montgomery County, the State had, and still has, certain documents written by the defendants, Boland and Lyddane. A proffer was made to introduce one of these documents at the hearing.

"Counsel for the defendant, Lyddane, objected to this evidence and

No Meddling On Ethiopia, Italy Warns

Duce Cautions England, France to Stay Out of African Tangle.

Copyright, 1935, by the United Press.

Rome, May 14.—Premier Benito Mussolini told the senate tonight that Italy has a "perfectly organized" armed force of 800,000 to 900,000 trained men ready for any "deplorable sudden eventualities."

He indirectly warned France and Great Britain that any effort at "friendly diplomatic intervention," as rumored in Paris and London, in the Italian-Abyssinian dispute would not be tolerated. Il Duce quickly added he considered rumors of such a plan unworthy of formal refutation.

"As far as Europe is concerned in any deplorable sudden eventualities which might arise," Il Duce said, "I wish again to remind the senate we will keep under the colors the classes of 1911-13-14.

"And the class of 1912 is ready, held in reserve.

"I believe a contingent of 800,000 to 900,000 men will be sufficient to guarantee our security here.

Full Speed at Factories.

"This contingent is perfectly organized and equipped with the most modern arms from our own factories which—and I am not revealing any secret—have been working at full speed for months."

Il Duce took the rostrum for the first time publicly to comment on the Italian-Abyssinian frontier dispute which has aroused fears of war in Africa and caused Rome to dispatch 105,000 soldiers to her colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland, bordering on Abyssinia, as a "protective measure."

Mussolini declared that, while occupied in Africa, Italy was prepared for "sudden eventualities in Europe."

"Intervention is a most disagreeable word," Mussolini told the senators. "If somebody beyond our frontier desires such intervention to take place, the reality of the moment does not warrant it.

"Owing to the Italian-British-French good relations, there is no necessity for such intervention."

His speech followed an exclusive dispatch to the United Press on Monday, quoting a "government spokesman" to the same effect and indirectly advising England and France to keep hands off Italy's Abyssinian policy.

Sarcastic on Advice.

Mussolini referred lightly to concern expressed by an English source (the London Times) on the possibility that Italy might decrease her military efficiency in Europe to face a critical situation in East Africa.

"I offer profound thanks to those who seem solemnly worried lest our military efficiency is weakened by the despatch of troops to East Africa," Il Duce remarked ironically, "but I assure these zealous interested advisers that while we consider our presence in Europe necessary, at the same time we intend to have our backs completely safe in Africa.

"The number of skilled and unskilled workers that have sailed for East Africa is larger than the troops.

"And we shall dispatch any units which we deem necessary.

"Nobody can assume the right, which would not be tolerated, to interfere in our precautionary measures.

"Nobody can make himself a judge in this matter, except Italy.

Prefers "Excess."

"I prefer to be blamed for excess rather than dereliction of duty when the safety of our colonies, the lives of our soldiers and our prestige is at stake.

"We are supporting ourselves in this complex of land, sea and air forces, and we shall continue to collaborate with all the great and small powers, far and near.

"Our military force threatens no one, but ensures peace.

"We dedicate, and will continue

Killing Long's Soul, Gassaway Believes

By the Associated Press.

Cleveland, May 14.—Representative Percy L. Gassaway, of Oklahoma, said today he believes his ridicule is "killing Huey Long's soul."

Stopping at Cleveland Airport on the way from Washington to Chicago, Gassaway said "Huey is a very sick boy."

"Are you personally through with Huey?" he was asked.

"No," said Gassaway, I'll not be finished until I get through cleaning him. The meanest attack is ridicule, you know. I kid him about his share-the-wealth plan. If he's sincere, why doesn't he introduce the bill about it. He's yellow as hell. This ridicule is killing his soul."

Clerks Bound As 2 Loot Bank At Riverdale

$3,500 Taken in Daylight Raid in Maryland Town; Posses Mobilize.

Two bandits held up the Citizens Bank of Riverdale yesterday afternoon and escaped with cash estimated at $3,500 to $4,000.

The holdup occurred just at closing time, while heavy afternoon traffic was passing back and forth on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard.

G. Sherman James, 60, cashier, who lives on Wine avenue in Hyattsville, and James B. Waters, 32, assistant cashier, of Garfield avenue, Hyattsville, were forced to lie on the floor, their hands tied by heavy window sash cord and their feet covered with adhesive tape while the bandits made their getaway.

Woman on Scene.

At 2:50 p. m. a woman customer was in the bank. She was standing in front of the cashier's window when a swarthy, well dressed man, weighing about 160 pounds and standing 5 feet 8 inches in height, entered and stood behind her. As she left the bank a second man, shabbily dressed, entered.

The self-locking bank door clicked behind him. Both he and his companion whipped out revolvers, and the shabbily dressed man stepped behind the cage.

"Stick 'em up, old timer," he ordered as he poked his pistol in Waters' ribs. "Stick 'em up, old timer, and lie on the floor.

"What do you call this?" asked Waters.

"Old timer, I don't want to hurt you, but you'd better lie down," the bandit warned.

"I'll give you just three to lie down," the other bandit said to James.

Employes Bound.

The bandits then took window sash rope and adhesive tape from a small blue paper bag they were carrying and tied their prisoners' hands and feet.

After scooping up the loose money in the bank, the bandits ordered Waters to open the safe, which was locked. He told them the time lock was on. Disbelieving him, the hold-up men threatened to kill him unless he unlocked the vault. Waters finally convinced them that it was impossible for him to open it.

J. S. Caldwell, of Riverdale, a director of the bank, said that the time lock was always kept on for short periods during the day. It was a precautionary measure which was justified yesterday, he said, as it saved several thousand dollars more which was in the safe.

After the bandits left James finally freed himself, liberated Waters, and called police. The hold-up men were not in the bank more than ten minutes.

The bank is a small, one-story,

Senate Votes Revised NRA To April, '36

9-Months Continuation Termed 'Folly' in Richberg Address.

By Felix Bruner.

The Senate late yesterday passed the Clark resolution extending NRA until April 1, 1936.

Senate leaders, warning that they would fight any effort made by the House to extend the recovery law for two years, pushed the resolution to a vote without a roll call. Less than 30 members were present when the vote was taken.

Earlier in the day, Donald R. Richberg, chairman of the National Industrial Recovery Board, in a talk to NRA employes, called the Clark resolution "complete folly." President Roosevelt had asked for a two-year extension.

Bans Price Fixing.

The resolution as passed by the Senate would exempt from NRA provisions business that is purely intrastate in character and would prohibit price fixing. It allows 30 days after June 16, the present expiration date, for the rewriting of codes to conform to the new provisions.

A stiff fight for a two-year extension is expected in the House, where Democratic leaders are insisting they expect to carry out the wishes of the White House. Senator Pat Harrison warned in addressing the Senate that he would oppose any such move and that if he were appointed on a conference committee he would refuse to agree to it.

Speaker Byrns announced the House will "take up the resolution right away."

Leaders Bar Changes.

The quick action in the Senate was in contrast to the months of controversy within the Finance Committee over the future of the recovery act. The resolution was jammed through under an agreement of Democratic Senators to vote for it without change.

Senators laughed when Senator Harrison, chairman of the Finance Committee, at 3 p. m., announced that he hoped the measure would be passed before the end of the day.

After explaining the resolution, Senator Harrison said:

"I want to say to the Senate and to the NRA authorities that if the House should extend it for two years and I am put on the conference committee I shall agree to nothing and I will insist on bringing the bill back and letting the Senate vote on the changes."

Wants Court Verdict.

Senator Harrison said that as a practical proposition, he believed the NRA should be permitted to run along as it is for a few months while the courts are passing on its validity. The Supreme Court is now pondering the constitutionality of the act and may rule soon.

Senator Harrison said his threat to refuse to act on a changed bill in conference was "a warning to some of those who are enthusiastic for the NRA."

"I hope," he said, "that they will desist from trying to influence action for a two-year extension. They may be in the position of killing the goose that laid the golden egg."

Senator Harrison said he believed the NRA had put millions back to work and that business wants it extended. He said he believed there would be an economic collapse if NRA were permitted to die. He said he realized that an attempt to

4,000 Farmers Hear Roosevelt Call Critics Of AAA Specious Liars

President Roosevelt is shown speaking from a White House balcony to a throng of farmers who assembled in Washington to hail the AAA policy.

Throng on White House Lawn Cheers Fighting Talk by President.

He Scouts Charges Of Plowing Under

The text of Mr. Roosevelt's speech—Page Three.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Using fighting language, President Roosevelt late yesterday made common cause with more than 4,000 farmers of the South and West against those "high and mighty people" who have been "lying about the kind of a farm program under which this Nation is operating today."

In those precise words, standing on the south portico of the White House, he condemned those who stand in the way of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration as the climax to one of the most unusual demonstrations this Capital has seen.

Whoops and cheers rolled over the White House grounds as the President referred, time and again, to critics of the New Deal farm program in almost mocking terms. A bedlam of applause swept the crowd when he promised there would be no turning back from that program.

Plan New Organization.

Earlier in the day, the farmers—real "dirt farmers," most of them, but in their Sunday best—had sweepingly indorsed the whole farm administration at a noisy and colorful convention in Constitution Hall. On the side, their leaders made plans for the creation of a new national farm organization.

Quick response to this unprecedented demonstration in favor of the New Deal the White House issued an invitation, and late in the afternoon hundreds of bareheaded men were massed in the rear of the Executive Mansion, in hopeful anticipation of a word from the President.

He made it the occasion for one of the most vigorous replies to opponents of the New Deal that has ever come from the White House. Using blunt words, delivered in his characteristic informal style, he praised the farmers' "march on Washington" and promised them, in effect, even greater benefits.

Scores "Crocodile Tears."

"The crocodile tears shed by the professional mourners of an old and obsolete order over the slaughter of little pigs and other measures to reduce surplus agricultural inventories deceive very few thinking people and least of all the farmers themselves," he declared.

Reminding them of "the many high and mighty people who said you could not do it," he drew a comparison between the prices for farm products two years ago and those prices today. City dwellers have come to realize, he went on, that "empty pocketbooks on the farm don't turn factory wheels in the city."

The adjustment program was launched as the only feasible method of meeting the farm situation, the President recounted. Price-fixing was rejected because it did not solve over-production, he said, while "dumping" of exportable surpluses was discarded because other nations had begun to raise barriers to stop "dumping."

Emphasizes Adjustment.

"I want to emphasize that word 'adjustment,'" Mr. Roosevelt said. "It's almost a forgotten word," he continued, departing from his text, "just as some of you once were forgotten men.'

"As you know, a great many of the high and mighty—with special axes to grind—have been deliberately trying to mislead people who know nothing of farming by misrepresenting—no, why use a pussyfoot word—by lying about the kind

Lynch Efforts Fail; Coleman Slayers to Die

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Spotsylvania Court House, Va., May 14.—An attempt to incite a crowd of 1,000 into mobbing two colored men convicted of murder here today was unsuccessful and tonight the convicted killers were in Henrico County Jail awaiting the electric chair.

The colored men, John Shell, 37, and Joe Jackson, 26, were found guilty of murdering elderly John Thomas Coleman and his 65-year-old wife on April 2 and throwing their bodies into a well. They were sentenced to die in the State Penitentiary at Richmond, June 21.

As the slayers were being taken into court after the lunch recess, two brothers, Reginald Foster, 30, and Warwick Foster, 27, prominent Spotsylvania County men, attempted to seize them.

Crowd Ignores Rush.

The Fosters, rushing toward the frightened colored men, shouted to other members of the crowd to join the assault. Their cries, however, went unheeded.

Meantime State policemen surrounded the killers and drove the Fosters away after they had rained blows on the two prisoners. Later the brothers were congratulated by several persons in the crowd. They were not arrested.

No attempt was made by the crowd to harm the two colored men after sentence had been passed.

Ickes Sets Up A Little PWA In Every State

Men for Staffs to Be Sent From Capital to the 48 Work Groups.

As the $4,000,000,000 work relief program continued in process of preliminary organization yesterday, Secretary Ickes announced formation of a "little PWA" in each of the States. Lawyers, engineers and finance examiners will be transferred immediately from Washington to the various State organizations.

The State groups will receive all proposals for public works projects, investigate them and report them to PWA headquarters here. They then will be checked and turned over to the division of applications and information, from which they will be sent to the allotment board.

Basis Uncertain.

The basis on which these projects will be recommended remained uncertain. In spite of President Roosevelt's assertion that he hoped most of the money would go to local communities on a 100 per cent loan basis, Secretary Ickes said that applications would be accepted on a basis of 30 per cent grant and 70 per cent loan until he received instructions otherwise.

Decentralization of PWA activities dovetails with the plans of Harry L. Hopkins, head of the progress division, who is establishing relief districts covering the whole country.

The question of whether contractors, municipalities and concerns supplying materials would be required to employ persons on relief

Tax Fraud Charged to Bruno In Answer to Refund Demand

By Howard F. Wentworth.

Fraudulent manipulations and wilful neglect were charged to Bruno Richard Hauptmann yesterday in the Government's answer to his appeal for redetermination of income tax assessments for 1932 and 1933.

Citing five instances in which Hauptmann and his wife, Anna, allegedly defrauded the Government by income tax evasion, the answer, signed by Robert H. Jackson, assistant general counsel of the Treasury Department; George D. Brabson and V. F. Weekley, special attorneys, was filed with the Board of Tax Appeals.

Hauptmann began his fight against Federal income assessments last month. A petition, filed jointly in his name and that of his wife, sought revision of claims, penalties and interest totaling $9,768 for the two years.

The Government attorneys, in yesterday's answer to the petition, hinted at Hauptmann's connection with the Lindbergh kidnap money by setting forth certain profits "derived by the Hauptmanns from sources as yet unidentified."

Hauptmann and his wife, the answer stated, received a total income of $43,394.25 during the two years. Of this, $16,200 was attributed to "unidentified sources."

The answer denied all facts alleged in the petition and set up counterclaims charging fraud in failing to file tax returns.

First specific fraud charges set forth in the answer alleged that Hauptmann and his wife "received income in 1932 to the amount of $5,441.75 from business and employment carried on by them and failed to report it for taxation."

The second charge declared that the Hauptmanns failed to report as income in 1933 certain bank deposits and brokerage accounts amounting to $18,965.

In a third charge of fraud, it was declared they failed to report on an income of $2,787.50 derived from a

Police Battle Mob of 100,000 As First Air Train Visits Cuba

By the United Press.

Havana, May 14.—Police and soldiers fired into the air and clubbed heads today when a crowd welcoming the first international air train got out of control.

Shortly after the powered plane detached two gliders over the Prado, the crowd became unruly. Police swung clubs vigorously as the crowd broke lines.

Shots were fired over the heads of the throng.

The sky train arrived over Havana at 3 p. m. after a one-stop 300-mile flight from Miami, Fla. The one landing, carried out perfectly, was at Key West for lunch and customs clearance.

The throngs packed streets, balconies and roof tops to watch the airplane and its two gliders as Pilot Elwood Kein, of New York, circled over the sweltering city.

The gliders were piloted by Jack O'Meara, New York, and E. Paul du Pont, jr., cousin of Richard du Pont, holder of many glider records.

President Carlos Mendieta and high government and diplomatic authorities were present to receive the fliers.

The 425-horsepower plane and two gliders left Miami at 9:20 a. m. (Eastern standard time). Over Key West, the plane cut the gliders adrift and all units landed within seven minutes, without incident.

Barbara Weds Count at Reno While Police Keep Crowd Back

By the Associated Press.

Reno, Nev., May 14. — The Countess Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow, formerly Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani, sped away from Reno today for a California honeymoon with her handsome new husband.

The newlyweds, married this morning slightly more than 24 hours after Barbara's quick divorce from her playboy prince, Alexis Mdivani, traveled by automobile with San Francisco their destination. They plan to remain in California for an indefinite period.

The Woolworth heiress' chauffeur, Clinton Gardiner, was at the wheel of her big gray sedan when it rolled westward from Reno after having been escorted to the city limits by police.

Before his dash by train and automobile from New York to Reno, the 39-year-old count made $25 bets that he would not be married within a year.

Today, however, in the residence of Dr. A. J. Bart Hood, of Reno, the count made the newly-divorced Woolworth $40,000,000 heiress his countess in five minutes.

President's Son Plans Activity In Rally Series

James Will Attend Summer Conferences Planned by Young Democrats.

James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President, revealed plans yesterday for a summer of Nation-wide activity among young Democrats, preparatory to the Presidential campaign next year.

Although it was announced at the White House recently that young Roosevelt, who has been in the insurance business in Boston, would devote himself to managing his father's estate at Hyde Park, he said yesterday tha his farming activities would be confined largely to week-end trips to Krum Elbow.

James, as secretary of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, announced plans yesterday for attending a series of regional meetings of young Democrats in all sections of the country between now and August 23, when the organization will hold its national convention at Milwaukee.

To Offset G. O. P. Rallies.

These meetings, at some of which young Roosevelt will speak, will serve to offset the regional meetings being planned by the Republicans, one of which will be at Springfield, Ill., June 10. James Roosevelt will attend a regional meeting in Chicago, June 7 and will speak at a regional session at Amarillo, Tex., June 8.

The President's son discussed his plans at a press conference in National Democratic Committee headquarters in the National Press Building yesterday. With him was Hampton Robb, of New York and Connecticut, whose appointment as chairman of the national finance committee of the Young Democratic Clubs of America was announced by Cliff Woodward, of Iowa, president of the organization. Claiming a membership of 3,000,000 Democrats, the organization will engage in a campagin for funds. This and the stimulation of party interest among younger voters are the primary objects of the summer activity.

Meetings will be held at dates to be announced later at Providence, R. I.; New York City, Annapolis, Md.; Detroit, St. Paul, St. Louis, Denver, Missoula, Mont.; San Francisco and Atlanta. Young Mr. Roosevelt expects to attend all.

President Invited.

The President has been invited to attend the national convention in Milwaukee. James was unable to say yesterday whether his father would attend.

The young Democrats will introduce a new idea in political rallies. They stated it was planned to invite representatives of Young Republican clubs to attend. Officials of the Young Democrats were uncertain how this would be received, in view of the statement last week by John D. M. Hamilton, of Kansas, in charge of work among young Republicans for the Republican national committee. Hamilton announced that no "fair-weather Republicans" were wanted at the Springfield rally, that he wanted only those willing to fight, and that particularly he did not want at present any Republicans who have been holding jobs under the New Deal.

"If the young Republicans don't come to our convention it will be their loss," said James Roosevelt.

Robb, chairman of the finance committee, is 39 years old and barely qualifies as a young Republican. The organization's constitution requires that elective officers shall not be more than 40 years old, although members and appointive officials may be of any age.

Robb, a former member of the NRA Industrial Advisory Board, said that his finance campaign on behalf of the Young Democrats would profit by his experience with NRA.

Will Decentralize Drive.

"We are going to decentralize our work," he said. "When I was with NRA I came to the conclusion that it would have been more effective if it had been decentralized sooner. In this work we hope to profit by that experience and decentralize it at the start."

James Roosevelt, in spite of reports of poor health, appeared to be looking forward to the summer's political activity with eagerness. He wore a good coat of tan, apparently left over from his recent cruise on the Nourmahal with his father.

Asked if his speeches this summer would be designed to offset Republican activity, he replied smilingly:

"The purpose of our meetings is to promote our own party purposes. If in passing we answer a few questions, that will be only coincidence."

Leader in Oil Industry Denies Asking U. S. Aid

Tulsa, Okla., May 14 (AP).—Axtell J. Byles, of New York, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said today Government regulation was forced on the oil industry and its leaders never did ask Government assistance in handling its affairs.

Byles, here for the mid-year meeting of the institute, was commenting on Secretary of Interior Ickes' recent statement criticizing the institute for opposing his plans when it had come to him on "bended knee" and asked help.

"I can not recall any of our directors or any of our outstanding executives doing such a thing," Byles said.

All were found guilty of murder in the first degree.

Farm Meeting Really a Lobby; Eloquent Silence of Mr. Morgenthau; Howe, the Author.

By Raymond Clapper

It is confusing to be told that the gathering of farmers here to demand continuation of AAA and enactment of the pending amendments is economic democracy in action.

Economic democracy is an idea which Henry Wallace, the young Iowa philosopher of the Cabinet, has been advocating ever since he joined the Administration. By that term he means machinery for giving economic groups a voice in making key economic decisions. In the case of AAA's control programs, this means, as Wallace interprets it, guaranteeing to every farmer who takes part a voice in decisions which affect the income he will receive from a given product.

But in the past, when groups so interested in pending policies descended on Washington, we have called them lobbies. Sometimes we have denounced their activities as the tactics of organized minorities. Prohibitionists lobbied before the brewers and distillers did it. Bankers and tariff-protected industries have done it.

Mr. Hoover was outraged when the bonus army marched on Washington. It was, he felt, an attempt to coerce government. Most people thought he took the bonus army too seriously. They thought he should have handled them as Mr. Roosevelt has handled the farmers, let them gather here and cheer, and make them a speech on the White House lawn. The chief difference is that the bonus marchers were here to get something Mr. Hoover didn't want them to have, whereas the farmers are here to keep something Mr. Roosevelt has given them.

Essentially they are the same, the march of organized groups on Washington to get special aid from the Government. But why call one economic democracy and the other an organized lobby, unless it is that a lobby is a group interested in something to which you are opposed?

• • • •

AAA officials have spent the last week denying they inspired the farmers' march on Washington. They profess to have feared an unfavorable backfire from it. Nevertheless, they were beaming all day long. Wallace and Chester Davis, head of AAA, addressed the farmers encouragingly. Mr. Roosevelt made an encouraging speech to them, throwing in at frequent intervals fighting references to those critics of the farm program who have "axes to grind" and who have been "lying" about the AAA. It was a timely demonstration, for the visiting farmers made the rounds of their Senators and Representatives and put the heat on for the AAA amendments. Also in ten days wheat farmers will hold a Nation-wide referendum to vote on whether they favor continuing the wheat adjustment program. It will be economic democracy's election day in the wheat belt. The farm meeting here serves to help along that campaign. It is like political democracy's big party rally the week before election. In fact, there are many indications that Secretary Wallace's economic democracy is learning rapidly from political democracy the essential lesson that the side which is organized best has the advantage.

Now following this demonstration, if those who have an interest in raising silver prices organize a demonstration, and those who want the Frazier-Lemke farm-mortgage greenback bill passed organize, and a few other groups organize, and especially if the taxpayers organize, out of the marching and counter marching of rival economic armies, possibly the conflicting forces will settle down into a balance of power that will keep the Nation on an even keel.

Meantime it shows an extremely loose use of language to denounce the Coughlins who bombard the White House with telegrams on the World Court and the bonus, the Townsendites who bombard Congress with old-age pension petitions, the utilities who bombard everybody with their propaganda, and at the same time praise the organized march of a few thousand farmers as a great demonstration of economic democracy.

All of it is lobbying by special interests who want to get in the trough, or keep in it. Far from being a healthy expression of interest in public affairs, it is an attempt to pervert the public interest to the advantage of a particular group, to stampede weak Senators and Representatives as well as administrative officials. The chief gainers are the hotel and restaurant keepers who, with the heavy tourist trade, have been doing capacity business anyway.

Several silent periods were noted in Secretary Morgenthau's address on "The American Dollar." Some listeners would have been left less confused if he had discussed the silver policy and explained why it isn't so mischievous as it seems to everyone.

Reference is made to this policy of boosting the silver price which has created serious currency difficulties in Mexico and several other silver currency countries and brought official protests from China. It has been condemned again in the annual report of the Bank for International Settlements, which declares that it has had injurious effects in those nations based on a silver standard and has disturbed their general foreign exchange position.

Neither did Secretary Morgenthau say anything to dispel the complacency with which several high officials recently have viewed the Patman bonus bill's $2,000,000,000 greenback feature. He was equally silent on the subject of the budget.

Postmaster General Farley can breathe freely again. Huey Long has been turned back by an almost solid Democratic front. On the Long resolution to investigate Farley, only the Kingfish himself, of all of the Senate Democrats, voted to investigate. Senator Wheeler, suspected by the Administration as a possible third party candidate next year, was paired against Farley. Two Republicans, Borah and Johnson, voted against the Long investigation. Two pro-Roosevelt Republicans, Norris and La Follette, voted with Long. Otherwise each Senator voted according to his political label. Now Gen. Farley is free to start in on 1936.

The last that had been heard of Col. Louis McHenry Howe until yesterday was that he was living in an oxygen tent at the White House, having the time of his life smoking and telephoning his friends. Yesterday the Woman's Home Companion appeared with an article by Howe predicting that within ten years women will cast a majority of the votes in this country and possibly elect their own President.

This came on the heels of the organization of Women Investors in America, Inc., a proposed mobilization of women on the ground that they now own 70 per cent of the wealth of the country and 80 per cent of the life insurance policies, and that this being the case, they should no longer be taking orders from the practically penniless males.

Col. Howe's fight for life continues to amaze his doctors. He spends about half of his time under the oxygen tent. He reads and talks with occasional callers, living quite comfortably in his own little world. However, the story that he is grinding out magazine articles under the oxygen tent is not quite accurate. He wrote his latest article before he became ill. The doctors won't let him do any work now.

Europe Cold To Money Talk By Morgenthau

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Despite Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau's speech expressing the willingness of this country to join, on its own terms, an agreement for the stabilization of currencies, prospects for early action in that direction yesterday appeared to be no better than before he addressed the country.

Among the monetary economists here the belief was widespread that Great Britain will not respond to Morgenthau's suggestion and that an agreement is out of the question without British participation. This belief was confirmed by cables from London reporting indifference toward the Morgenthau speech in governmental circles there.

In general, the Morgenthau speech had a neutral reaction, failing to cause any fluctuation in prices in markets at home or abroad. In some quarters it was regarded as a valuable statement of the American viewpoint, in others as an unfortunate statement in that it struck a pharisaical tone and on that score was regarded as possibly offensive to the British.

Although it was generally denied throughout the Administration that any further moves toward a stabilization agreement were in contemplation, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, leader of the Senate inflation bloc, introduced a resolution requesting the President to call a world currency stabilization conference to deal with both gold and silver.

It was doubtful whether the proposal would succeed, especially since Senator Thomas coupled it with a demand for further devaluation of the gold dollar. The British believe that the dollar has been too greatly devalued already.

Mills Defends Hoover.

Morgenthau, however, did strike sparks from the Republican anvil by his sharp criticism of the Hoover regime. Former Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills sprung to the microphone with a defense of the Hoover Administration's adherence to the gold standard, a charge that Morgenthau omitted facts which "completely destroy his case," and a denunciation of the Roosevelt monetary policies as "unnecessary and disastrous."

The nonpartisan monetary experts here held that Morgenthau's recital that the country was forced off the gold standard was amusing in view of the fact that the country had more gold in February, 1933, than it did six months previously and as much as in the boom year of 1929. It also was pointed out that in the second half of 1932 gold was flowing into the country, the basis of Mr. Mills' contention that adherence to the gold standard had nothing to do with the 1933 crisis.

The politically minded arrayed Morgenthau's castigation of the Hoover regime for "stubborn inaction" against the Democratic Party's platform pledge in June, 1932, to adhere to gold and Mr. Roosevelt's campaign promises and pronouncements—especially his indignation over former President Herbert Hoover's contention that in January, 1932, the country was within several weeks of slipping off gold.

Point to Omission.

Morgenthau's failure to make any reference whatever to the effect of the Roosevelt gold policy on the price level was regarded as a noteworthy omission, indicating, some thought, a shift of ground in retrospective justification of that policy.

When the President launched on his gold purchase program in October, 1933, which led to devaluation in January, 1934, he projected that action as "necessary in order to prevent dollar disturbances from swinging us away from our ultimate goal, namely, the continued recovery of our commodity prices." He added that "we are thus continuing to move toward a managed currency."

In the same speech, the President said in speaking of money and banking that "ever since last March the definite policy of the Government has been to restore commodity price levels." Permanent valuation of the dollar must wait on a restored price level, he asserted.

In reviewing the Administration's two years of monetary experimentation, it was pointed out, Morgenthau did not devote one line to price levels, while his expression of willingness to stabilize, in other words, to agree with other nations to give the dollar a permanent value, was taken as the first official admission that the Warren theory of raising price levels by manipulating the gold value of the dollar had been definitely abandoned.

That part of the speech was regarded as heartening. But Morgenthau's failure to discuss the Administration's silver policy caused disappointment in many quarters at home and abroad. Many authorities are sorely perplexed over the silver policy, which is causing great concern throughout the world.

Shanghai Disappointed.

Only yesterday Austria started withdrawing silver coins from circulation while on Monday Italy promulgated a drastic embargo against the exportation of silver in any form whatever. The Chinese economic situation is still precarious and Shanghai was reported by the Associated Press to have been plunged into gloom by Morgenthau's failure to indicate any relaxation of the American silver program.

Buyers on the Montreal silver exchange interpreted Morgenthau's slight reference to the white metal as an indication the Treasury would continue to purchase silver and the price accordingly advanced 175 to 225 points, although some of the early gain was lost. Silver prices quoted in New York also strengthened.

The gold bloc countries, chiefly France, seized on the Morgenthau willingness to stabilize with enthusiasm and contended it was "now up to England"—which some here believed was the real purpose of the speech. The reason for Morgenthau's address at this time remains somewhat of a mystery. The explanation that he wanted to complete a trilogy of speeches regarding matters under his jurisdiction was not conclusive to many observers.

The belief was projected that the Administration had grown weary of proposals from home that it stabilize and criticisms from abroad that this country's policy was an obstacle to the restoration of world economic order when stabilization is impossible without British cooperation and recent soundings revealed the British were not yet ready to cooperate.

So Morgenthau proceeded to "put England on the spot" by declaring this country's willingness to stabilize under any terms not disadvantageous to it. Some here believe he overdrew the picture. His contention that others started the depreciated currency war, with the intimation that they acted for selfish gain, while this country took similar action only out of self-protection, was regarded as pharisaical. Likewise was the intimation that this country's policy was conducive to steadiness while others were rocking the boat.

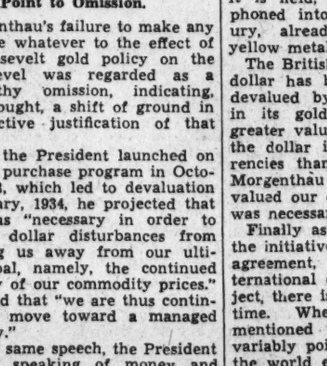

One fact, aside from domestic considerations, which has made the British reluctant to seek a stabilization agreement with the United States, it is contended here, is the uncertainty over the prospects of inflation in this country. As exemplified by the Patman bonus fight, there is a strong agitation on Capitol Hill for currency inflation. Where it will end none knows, it is argued.

Want War Debt Adjusted.

Some fundamental questions are raised whenever currency stabilization is mentioned to the British. Their monetary experts contend that adjustment of the war debts must precede any stabilization agreement and this country must be ready to adjust downward its tariff walls, otherwise British gold, it is held, would be rapidly siphoned into the American Treasury, already bulging with the yellow metal.

The British also contend that the dollar has been enormously overdevalued by the 40 per cent cut in its gold content and that a greater valuation must be given to the dollar in terms of other currencies than that now prevailing. Morgenthau asserted that "we revalued our currency no more than was necessary."

Finally as for the British taking the initiative toward a stabilization agreement, that is calling an international conference on the subject, there is small prospect at this time. Whenever the subject is mentioned the British almost invariably point out that they called the world economic and monetary conference and that President Roosevelt, after apparently favoring stabilization, roughly torpedoed the meeting.

Democrats Call G. O. P. Attacks 'Popgun' Blasts

Tinkham Sees Plot, Demands Withdrawal of Soviet Recognition.

By the Associated Press.

Political skirmishing and trench digging on several fronts yesterday forecast 13 months of preconvention battling before the 1936 campaign swings into its final stretch.

Republican attacks on the New Deal were termed "popgun" assaults by House Administration spokesmen.

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), New York, told the House the Republican Party "has not had a new idea in 60 years," and termed Monday's anti-New Deal assault by Representative Snell, of New York, the G. O. P. leader, "not the opening gun of the campaign, but the puff of a cap pistol."

Figures Questioned.

Snell had questioned President Roosevelt's "fireside chat" figures on unemployment and relief expenditures. O'Connor accused the New Yorker of juggling the figures and said it was "socialistic to the Grand Old Party for anyone to keep people from starving to death, to give employment, give the farmer a square deal and keep bankers from robbing the people."

A little later Representative Tinkham (Republican), Massachusetts, demanded withdrawal of Soviet Russian recognition and told the House a United States revolution was being "plotted" in the Soviet Union. He asserted Congress should determine whether officials who refuse to "defend the Constitution against a foreign enemy" are subject to impeachment.

Bone, Dickinson Clash.

In the Senate, Senator Bone (Democrat), Washington, insisted that Senator Dickinson (Republican), Iowa, who has been mentioned frequently as a possible presidential candidate in 1936, was speaking for the Republican Party in attacking Government ownership of utilities.

"I am not speaking for the Republican Party," Dickinson snapped back. "I am speaking my own views."

"I want to make it plain," Bone insisted, "that the Republican Party hates public ownership of power."

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Officers of the Republican National Committee will meet with Chairman Henry P. Fletcher in Washington tomorrow to fix definite quotas to be raised in six States in the drive for money to rehabilitate the party for the 1936 presidential elections, it was said at the committee's offices today.

Fletcher has summoned to the conference George F. Getz, treasurer, and his assistant, C. B. Goodspeed, both of Chicago, and George De B. Keim of Beverly, N. J., secretary.

Roosevelt Calls AAA Criticism Specious Lying

Pausing over his words, he continued:

"A few leading citizens have gone astray * * * "

"We have one down in Georgia," came a shout from the crowd.

"I was about to say 'have gone astray from ignorance'," the President went on, laughingly.

Contemplated No Destruction.

"It is high time for you and for me to carry, by education, knowledge of the fact that not a single program of the AAA contemplated the destruction of an acre of food crops in the United States," Mr. Roosevelt went on, "in spite of what you may read or be told by people who have special axes to grind."

Continuing, he asserted that farmers have the memory of the past too fresh in their minds to "be led astray by the solemn admonitions and specious lies of those who in the past profited most when your distress was greatest." This was his second use of the word "lie."

He declared, again leaving his text, that "we haven't quite got the engine tuned up yet, but it's a mighty good engine just the same." This was interpreted as a reference to the pending AAA amendments, hotly fought by processors and other business interests, which were indorsed at the farm meeting.

The President's speech was warm and chatty, reminding observers of his utterances during the 1932 campaign.

After he was presented by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace as "the heart of America," he paused to allow an ovation to subside and then told the farmers:

"It's a pretty good looking crowd. I'm glad to have quite a few members of Congress," motioning to several House agriculture committeemen standing near him, "in captivity with me today."

Wishes Throng "Good Luck."

In closing, he wished the throng "good luck—and I hope you come back to see us again." When a cry rose for Mrs. Roosevelt, he informed them that she was at Hyde Park, their New York home, and that he was sorry she could not greet them.

"I was kind of on the fence before I came here," confided W. G. Swanson, lean Minnesotan of the drought territory, as the crowd reluctantly moved away, "but—oh boy—he's got me now."

The farm meeting in Constitution Hall resembled nothing so much as a good-natured, rowdy political convention.

Seventy-five-year-old W. A. Shivers, of Grady County, Ga., stood tieless and tugging on his suspenders at one corner of the platform, exhorting "all you Georgia Crackers, come this way." Farmers who arrived with their coats on decided that Constitution Hall—the scene of concerts and D. A. R.—wasn't that formal, after all. There was a sprinkling of straw hats and an even larger number wore sombreros.

Deny U. S. Sponsored Trip.

With some confusion, leaders of the farm movement got the speech-making going. One after another, they told how the AAA is restoring prosperity to the farm. Warmly, they denied that the Government had anything to do with their trip, which they said was for the sole purpose of supporting the AAA.

Wallace was loudly greeted when he appeared, and, leaning over the speaker's stand, caustically referred to the "big boys," the American Liberty League, the processors and the middlemen.

"A lot of these boys," he declared, "want to take away our tariff. I say don't let them take away our processing tax, unless they take off all their tariffs."

Speaking conversationally, Wallace rambled on, urging the farmers "to keep your minds flexible" to changes that may have to be made in the program.

While he declared it the "most inspiring" farm meeting he had ever attended, at the other end of Washington the charge was made that the whole movement on the Capital was instigated by the Department of Agriculture.

Several Democratic Senators privately expressed doubt that the "march" was spontaneous, but it remained for a Republican—Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa—to voice his suspicions openly.

"In my judgment," he said, "the march on the Capital was inspired from Washington. They are trying to create the impression that the Administration farm program is popular, when every iota of evidence I have is to the contrary."

Charges Soliciting of Delegates.

The Senator said he intended "to find out if any of the AAA allotments have been used for this purpose." The delegates from Iowa, he said, were mostly holders of corn-hog contracts. He added that he had been informed some of the Middle Westerners had been solicited by county agricultural agents working for the department.

The fact that county agents took a leading part in encouraging the movement was confirmed by many of the visiting farmers, but they insisted in each case that the money for the trip was raised by voluntary contributions.

A large part of those here, it was said, are members of the county cotton, wheat, or tobacco committees at home. Customarily, these groups work in close co-operation with the county agents, who are supported in part by the Department of Agriculture and serve as a connecting link between the AAA and the crop contract signer.

The originator of the movement, by common agreement, was "Clif" H. Day, chairman of the Texas cotton advisory council. As such, he directed the passing of hats at yesterday's meetings to defray $600 of expenses incurred by the arrangements committee.

Besides Wallace, speakers at the morning meeting were W. H. Robertson, of Loachapoka, Ala., who served as chairman; L. M. Lawson, of South Carolina, who made the "keynote" address, and Herman A. Praeger, Claflin, Kans.; R. Hunter Page, Enfield, N. C.; Earl Dean, Mason City, Iowa, and A. M. Bourland, Vernon, Tex., who discussed the wheat, tobacco, corn-hog and cotton programs, in order.

Chester C. Davis, AAA administrator, addressed the gathering at the afternoon session and presented members of his staff. In reminding farmers that the farmer population is now the highest in history, he made an indirect reference to the rural re-settlement work of Undersecretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell, who was not present.

Asks "Safe" Living Standards.

"If agriculture is going to be made the shock absorber for industrial refugees," Davis declared, "then the Nation must give a permanent bond to its farmers that their standard of living is going to kept safe on an American plane."

Off the convention floor, leaders of the various State delegations drafted plans for the creation of a national organization which will be passed on at another session this morning. The group also drew up resolutions urging Congress to support the President and Secretary Wallace.

Dinners and meetings were held by most of the State groups last night, the largest of them being a banquet for Texans at the Mayflower Hotel and a dinner given by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, at the Burlington. The farmers plan to spend today seeing the sights.

The Text of the President's Farm Speech

Third Year of Policy of Adjustment Begun, He Points Out.

The text of the President's address to the farm delegates yesterday follows:

I am glad to welcome you to the National Capital. We can think of this occasion as a kind of surprise birthday party, for it was just two years and two days ago that the agricultural adjustment act became a law. And I well remember the fine group of representatives of farmers from every part of the Union who stood around me on that occasion when I signed the act.

In record time you and thousands of other farmers took hold and set up machinery to control your own affairs and put the new law to work.

I remember, too, the many high and mighty people who said you could not do it—that it was no use for you to try—intimating clearly that their only remedy to improve your situation was to let the sheriffs' sales go on. That was the old and very familiar way the high and mighty balanced farm production with demand. Those people did not understand and many of them do not understand today that, if the farm population of the United States suffers and loses its purchasing power, the people in the cities, of necessity, suffer with them. One of the greatest lessons that the city dwellers have come to understand in this past two years is this: Empty pocketbooks on the farm don't turn factory wheels in the city.

Go back for a minute to the spring of 1933—when there was a huge carry-over of almost 13,000,000 bales and a price, because of that carry-over, of 6 cents a pound. You and I know what 6-cent cotton means to the purchasing power of the cotton belt.

There was a huge carry-over of tobacco and the price of tobacco during the preceding six months was the lowest on record for many years. Wheat, with a carry-over of nearly 400,000,000 bushels, and a price of 35 cents on the farm; corn, with a price of 15 cents a bushel on many farms; hogs, selling at 3 cents a pound.

You and I know what that meant in the way of purchasing power for 40,000,000 people.

When we came to Washington we were faced with three possible programs. The first involved price fixing by Government decree. This was discarded because the problem of overproduction was not solved thereby.

Dumping Policy Shunned.

The second was a plan to let farmers grow as much as they wanted to and to have the Federal Government then step in, take from them that portion of their crop which represented the exportable surplus and, in their name, on their behalf, dump this surplus on the other nations of the world. That plan was discarded because the other nations of the world had already begun to stop dumping. With increasing frequency they were raising their tariffs, establishing quotas and clamping on embargoes against just that kind of proposition.

Therefore, we came to the third plan—a plan for the adjustment of totals in our major crops so that from year to year production and consumption would be kept in reasonable balance with each other to the end that reasonable prices would be paid to farmers for their crops and to the end that unwieldy surpluses would not depress our markets and upset the balance.

We are now at the beginning of the third year of carrying out this policy. You know the results thus far attained. You know the price of cotton, of wheat, of tobacco, of corn, of hogs and of other farm products today. Further comment on the successful partial attainment of our objective up to this time is unnecessary on my part. You know.

I want to emphasize that word "adjustment." As you know, a great many of the high and mighty—with special axes to grind—have been deliberately trying to mislead people who know nothing of farming by misrepresenting—no—why use a pussyfoot word—by lying about the kind of a farm program under which this nation is operating today.

Led Astray by Ignorance.

A few leading citizens have gone astray from ignorance. I must admit it. For example, the prominent city banker who was driving through Upstate New York with me four or five years ago in the late fall. Everything was brown. The leaves were off the trees. We passed a beautiful green field. He asked me what it was. I told him it was winter wheat. He turned to me and said, "That is very interesting. I have always wondered about winter wheat. What I don't understand is how they are able to cut it when it gets all covered up with snow."

The other was the editor of a great metropolitan paper. He visited me down in Georgia when the cotton was nearly grown, but before the bolls had formed. Looking out over the cotton fields he said to me:

"What a great number of raspberries they grow down here."

Raspberries was right. At 4½ cents a pound for cotton his mistake was, perhaps, a natural one.

I was speaking of adjustment. It is your duty and mine to continue to educate the people of this country to the fact that adjustment means not only adjustment downward, but adjustment upward. If you and I agree on a correct figure for a normal carry-over it means that if we have a bumper crop one year we will, by mutual consent, reduce the next year's crop in order to even up that carry-over. At the same time, if we get a short crop in a given year, you and I agree to increase the next year's crop to make up the shortage. That is exactly what we are doing today in the case of wheat.

Not Plowing Under.

It is high time for you and me to carry by education, knowledge of the fact that not a single program of the AAA contemplated the destruction of an acre of feed crops in the United States in spite of what you may read or be told by people who have special axes to grind.

It is high time for you and for me to make clear that we are not plowing under cotton this year—that we did not plow it under in 1934, and that we only plowed some of it under in 1933 because the agricultural adjustment act was passed after a huge crop of cotton was already in the ground.

It is high time for us to repeat on every occasion that we have not wastefully destroyed food in any form. It is true that the relief administrator has purchased hundreds of thousands of tons of foodstuffs to feed the needy and hungry who are on the relief rolls in every part of the United States.

The crocodile tears shed by the professional mourners of an old and obsolete order over the slaughter of little pigs and other measures to reduce surplus agricultural inventories deceive very few thinking people and least of all the farmers themselves.

Cites Destiny of Hogs.

The acknowledged destiny of a pig is sausage, or ham, or bacon or pork. In these forms, millions of pigs were consumed by vast numbers of needy people who otherwise would have had to do without.

Let me make one other point clear for the benefit of the millions in cities who have to buy meats. Last year the Nation suffered a drought of unparalleled intensity. If there had been no Government program, if the old order had obtained in 1933 and 1934, that drought on the cattle ranges of America and in the corn belt would have resulted in the marketing of thin cattle, immature hogs and in the death of these animals on the range and on the farm. Then we would have had a vastly greater shortage than we face today.

Our program saved the lives of millions of head of live stock. They are still on the range. Other millions are today canned and ready for the country to eat.

I think that you and I are agreed in seeking a continuance of a national policy which on the whole is proving successful. The memory of old conditions under which the product of a whole year's work often would not bring you the cost of transporting it to market is too fresh in your minds to let you be led astray by the solemn admonitions and specious lies of those who in the past profited most when your distress was greatest.

Prices Still Held Insufficient.

"You remember, and I remember, that not so long ago the poor had less food to eat and less clothes to wear and that was at a time when you had to practically give away your products. Then the surpluses were greater and yet the poor were poorer than they are today and when you farmers are getting a reasonable although still an insufficient price.

I have not the time to talk with you about many other policies of your Government which affect the farm population of the country. I have not the time to go into the practical work of the Farm Credit Administration which in all of its ramifications has saved a million farms from foreclosure and has accomplished the first great reduction in exorbitant interest rates that this country has ever known.

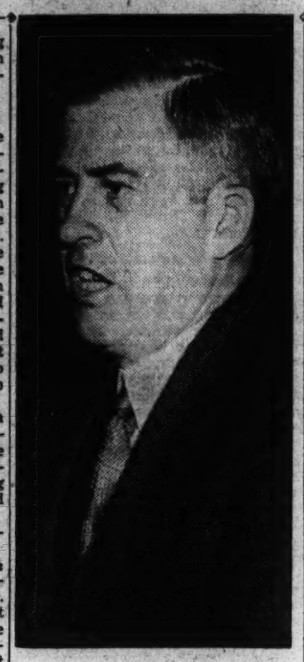

Because your cause is so just no one has had the temerity to question the motives of your "march on Washington." It is a good omen for government, for business, for bankers and for the city dwellers that the Nation's farmers are becoming articulate and that they know whereof they speak.

I hope you have enjoyed your stay in Washington. Seeing your Government at first hand, you may have a better idea why its efforts at times seem lumbering and slow and complicated. On the other hand, you may have seen that we are moving faster and accomplishing more practical results than you have been led to believe by the high and mighty gentlemen I have spoken of. I want to thank you for your patience with us. I want to pledge our wholehearted co-operation as you go forward.

Omissions Laid To Morgenthau By Ogden Mills

Statement of Facts Would Destroy His Case, Ex-Secretary Says.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Ogden L. Mills, Republican leader and former Secretary of the Treasury, took sharp issue tonight with assertions of Secretary Morgenthau that failure of the Hoover administration, in which Mills served, to abandon the gold standard in 1932, was "economic suicide."

Morgenthau, present Treasury Secretary, made the charge last night in a radio address reviewing the monetary policies of the Roosevelt Administration.

"I am amazed," Mills asserted in a statement, "because the facts do not support the Secretary's charge or statement."

Mills said that instead of gold leaving the United States in 1932 in "alarming amounts," as stated by Secretary Morgenthau, the calendar year 1932 showed an increase in the monetary gold stock of the United States.

Declares Trade Gained.

"During all of the summer and early fall of 1932," he said, "trade, business, prices and employment all turned upward. In other words, the fight for the dollar and returning confidence had done the trick.

"Why did Mr. Morgenthau, in what purports to be a recital of facts, fail to tell the people of the great inflow of gold during the latter part of 1932, of the actual increase in monetary gold stocks during that calendar year, and of the sharp upturn in business during the summer of 1932?

"Because these facts completely destroy his case."

The loss of gold by the United States during the first part of 1933, Mills asserted, was not because the United States maintained the gold standard but because of the fear of foreigners that the new Administration might abandon gold.

Refers to "Moral Suicide."

"It was not the maintenance of the gold standard that caused the banking panic of 1933 and the outflow of gold in the second and third months of that year, as is amply proven by all that took place during the summer and early fall of 1932," he continued. "It was the definite and growing fear that the new Administration meant to do what they ultimately did—that is, abandon the gold standard, and their refusal to cooperate in any way with the outgoing Administration.

"But, if as Mr. Morgenthau says, as early as January, 1932, when gold began to leave the United States, 'this was fair notice to all concerned that our turn was next;' if the ultimate crisis was due to the stubborn refusal of the then Administration to take the necessary action, namely, the abandonment of the gold standard, then what is to be thought of the position of the Democratic Party, which meeting in June, 1932, under the leadership of Senator Glass, pledged itself to the maintenance of the gold standard? * * *

"Whether it was wise and necessary to abandon the gold standard in April, 1933, is a matter as to which men differ. I hold that it was unnecessary and disastrous, and that we have not begun to pay the full consequences of the step taken at that time. * * * There is such a thing as moral suicide. * * *

"But this much is clear. The facts do not support Mr. Morgenthau's charge that the failure of the last Administration to abandon the gold standard was responsible for our trouble. And the theory now advanced can not be reconciled with the complete silence and the pledges repeatedly given during the campaign of 1932 by members of this Administration."

400,000 Georgians Vote Today on Liquor Issue

Atlanta, May 14 (AP).—Nearly 400,000 eligible voters tomorrow will decide whether Georgia legally can have liquor, beer and wines.

Both wet and dry leaders tonight were predicting victories. Voters have three questions on the ballot—for or against outright repeal, for beer and for wines.

If repeal wins the legislative provision for the referendum makes it mandatory that counties hold local elections afterward to decide the issue again before any liquor may be sold legally.

Doomed Killer Hangs Himself To Cheat Chair

Kaiser's Note to Mother Voices Regret for Sorrow He Caused Her.

Doomed to a murderer's death on June 11, Harrison McKinley Kaiser, convicted slayer of a labor union official, "cheated" the electric chair yesterday by hanging himself in death row in the District Jail.

Shortly after 6 a. m., a guard on patrol duty found Kaiser suspended from bars of his cell. He had improvised a noose by ripping apart a sheet and mattress cover. His hands were tied behind his back with loops of cloth connected to the noose around his neck. His struggles only hastened death by tightening the loop which strangled him.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald, after reading a farewell note addressed to the doomed man's mother, Mrs. Lucy Kaiser, of Portsmouth, Ohio, issued a certificate of suicide. Kaiser was convicted of slaying James P. Morgan, an officer of the Navy Yard Machinists' Union, during a quarrel in September, 1932.

The note to Kaiser's mother read in part as follows:

"Dear Mother—

"In my last hours I wish that I might do something to brighten your heavy load of sorrow. I wish that I might believe in your religion, but I can not, nor any other either. I just simply don't know. I don't have the faith. I wish that I could have gone through life without antagonizing the law. Though I am a killer of man by nature I have never desired to injure anything else.

"I regret that my children have to suffer for what I have done, not that I feel or have felt any remorse for anything that I have ever done, but that the law wishes to make an example of me.

"I lived a law abiding citizen for 40 years. I go to my long sleep with an untroubled mind.

"It is like getting ready to go on a distant journey and I am presently exhilarated and, oh, what a relief to escape from this dreadful dungeon in which the sunlight scarcely enters and from man's inhumanity to man which, in his evil, thinks he's entitled to another life."

Twice Granted a Stay.

Kaiser's mother and his wife, Mrs. Mae Kaiser, both of Portsmouth, were notified of his death at a rooming house where they are staying in the 900 block of K street northwest.

The prisoner was last seen alive about 5 a. m. when a guard saw him sitting quietly on the edge of his iron cell cot. On the next inspection tour, Guard A. W. Howard found him hanging. He was pronounced dead a few minutes later by a jail physician.

Kaiser had been given two stays of execution and at the time of his suicide was awaiting the result of an appeal in his case. He was originally scheduled to die on April 26, was granted a stay until May 28, and finally to June 11.

A Supreme Court jury took less than two hours to find him guilty at the trial.

Morgan's dying words were: "Kaiser did it."

Police Seize 18 In Betting Raid

Led by Sergt. George Deyoe, five members of Lieut. George Little's special vice squad battered their way into an alleged race horse betting establishment on the second floor of a building in the 1000 block of Fourteenth street late yesterday and arrested 18 men.

All but one of the prisoners were released at headquarters after the raid. Louis Waldron, 42, of the 3000 block of Fourteenth street northwest, said to be proprietor of a cigar store at the raided address, was charged with setting up a gaming table.

Police discovered an electrically controlled doorway in entering the place. They partially hacked it away.

Blackboards, police said, had been taken down at the time of the raid, and a quantity of alleged race horse slips burned.

Utility's Executive Blasts Control Bill

Gadsden Sees Bureaucracy in Senate Measure.

By the United Press.

Philip H. Gadsden, chairman of the committee of public utility executives, last night issued a statement saying that the public utilities holding company bill reported out by the Senate was "unsound in substance, punitive in spirit, and destructive in its effects."

Major consequences of the bill, if enacted into law, were outlined by Gadsden as follows:

1. Forced widespread liquidation in public utility securities with "disastrous consequences upon investors and upon general economic recovery."

2. Placing of the industry "in a straitjacket of bureaucratic control from Washington which will paralyze private initiative and management."

3. Supplanting State public service commission with Federal control.

Chain Mail Racket Halted.

Denver, May 14 (AP).—Three youthful prospectors who "mined" mail boxes for chain money letters were halted abruptly today. Postoffice officials, who interrupted, said the boys—all under 12—obtained a hat full of silver from mail boxes, posing as magazine salesmen to gain entrance to apartment houses.

Night Club Suicide

JEANNETTE McGHEE.

Hostess Kills Self With Gas At Night Club

Jeannette McGee Leaves Note Avowing Love for Missing Husband.

In a gas-filled kitchen at the rear of a night club at 1017 Fifteenth street northwest, the body of Jeanette McGhee, pretty brunette who had operated the club, was found shortly afternoon yesterday.

Police found a note addressed to "Mac," believed to be Malcolm McGhee, the victim's missing husband. The note read:

"Dear Mac: I love you. Take care of Val. I love him."

"Vall" is Val LeVan, a 12-year-old son of Mrs. McGhee by a former marriage.

Two ice men, making their daily rounds, broke into the kitchen when they smelled escaping fumes. They found the woman's body slumped over a table, and called police. An Emergency Hospital physician declared Mrs. McGhee dead when he arrived.

No One in Club Rooms.

Officers and ice men, I. H. Trunnell, jr., and A. R. Saylor, found no one in the rooms of the second-floor club, known as the Masquers' Club. Neither was there anyone in living quarters on the third floor.

Efforts to locate the husband were fruitless, and police later learned Mrs. McGhee had not known his whereabouts for the last week. The son, Val, is living with his grandmother, Mrs. Philip Mouton, in the 300 block of E street northeast.

The ice men said they had talked to Mrs. McGhee a few days ago, and that she had not seemed disconsolate. On the contrary, she spoke of plans to open another club in another section of the city.

They found her attired in a plain house dress, her head resting on one arm. The note beside her was on a neat, green card. The words were printed in pencil.

Professional Pianist.

Mrs. McGhee, known professionally as a pianist, had used the name of Jeanne LeVans.

After an inquest yesterday afternoon the coroner's office turned in a suicide verdict, and the body was removed to an undertaker's rooms.

Mr. and Mrs. McGhee were known as proprietors of the Masquers Club, and had operated it for approximately a year. The club occupied two large rooms in the forepart of the second floor, and the couple resided on the third floor.

Conboy Quits Post Of U. S. Attorney

By the Associated Press

New York, May 14.—Martin Conboy—close friend of President Roosevelt and often mentioned as a possible successor to Attorney General Homer J. Cummings—today announced his resignation as United States attorney for the Southern District of New York.

In the same mail that brought acceptances from the President and Cummings of his resignation, submitted May 6, Conboy received his appointment as Special Assistant Attorney General to prosecute Dutch Schultz, former beer baron, on income tax evasion charges.

By the Associated Press.

Syracuse, N. Y., May 14.—Dutch Schultz, awaiting a second trial July 23 for income tax evasions, today said he saw "Government extravagance" in the resignation of U. S. Attorney Martin L. Conboy.

"Mr. Conboy, by resigning, becomes special prosecutor (in the Schultz case) and by so doing will get a nice big fee instead of a flat salary as U. S. district attorney," he said.

"That, it seems to me, is a pretty serious matter, since it means expenditure of more of the taxpayers' money."

Wedding Anniversary Her Divorce Day, Too

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—On her wedding anniversary, Mrs. Vera Berly Williams, 30, was granted an uncontested divorce today from Weir Williams, 40, a Chicago business executive. Mrs. Williams, daughter of the late David Beryl, London and Paris publisher, charged cruelty and told Judge Francis B. Allegretti that Williams' violent temper brought about an estrangement. They met on a 'round-the-world cruise, she said, and were married May 14, 1928, in Paris.

Senate Denies Farley Probe, Continues NRA

investigate Postmaster General Farley was significant not only as a rallying point for controversy-torn Senate Democrats, but also as a resounding smack at Huey Long.

It came in the face of additional affidavits produced by the Louisianian, charging improper conduct by Farley in alleged swinging of Government contracts.

Huey Declaims.

Huey sensed the votes were against him.

"Go ahead and whitewash him," he cried, arms waving, hair tousled, and his voice hoarse from two days of nearly continuous shouting.

"But I warn you, I'll be at the next washing. You can no more make a man like him a pure man than you can make a rotten egg smell good or taste good. You are going to do this to save the Democratic Party. Yes, you'll save the Democratic Party! One more salvation like this one, and the Democratic Party is through."

The second affidavit produced yesterday by Huey was a statement by Miss Lottie Koch, former filing clerk for James A. Stewart & Co., which allegedly purchases material from the General Builders Supply Corporation, in which Farley holds stock.

According to Miss Koch's testimonial, her employers had asked her to go through her files for letters from Mr. Farley, pointing out there was to be an "investigation."

She said she found two letters from the Postmaster General. One, she said, addressed to an official of the firm, was in response to a request for Mother's Day stamps.

"The other letter from Mr. Farley was signed 'Jim,'" the affidavit said. "It contained a short paragraph reading as follows:

Says Case Closed.

The Senate Progressive Republican bloc split sharply on the Farley vote. Two of their number, Senators Robert M. La Follette, jr., of Wisconsin, and George W. Norris, of Nebraska, voted for an investigation. But Senators William E. Borah, of Idaho; Hiram Johnson, of California, and Henrik Shipstead, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, called "no" loudly.

Even Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, who Monday had demanded an investigation "for Farley's own good and the good of his party," voted finally against the Long resolution.

He said he did this under the impression that the Senate Postoffice Committee will proceed to investigate the affidavits produced by Long, on its own volition.

"I can not believe they will allow those affidavits to stand against the Democratic record," he said.

However, Senator Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, chairman of the Postoffice Committee, said so far as he is concerned "the case is closed."

"The committee is at liberty to make an additional inquiry if it chooses, of course," McKellar said. "But I don't believe it will be done."

Just before the vote, McKellar took the floor to charge Long with exploiting "a personal malice" against Farley. The Tennessean denied the James A. Stewart company's files had been "rifled" for fear of an investigation.

Associated Press dispatches later quoted M. E. Kalette, vice president of the Stewart company, as denouncing the Koch allegations as "malicious and perverted" and "90 per cent bunk."

Not at all feazed by the crushing vote, Long later took the Senate floor to predict again that Farley will have to get out of the Cabinet.

"But he will not retire to run the 1936 campaign," he shouted. "Oh, no, we've done finished that much of him. * * *

"He'll be around with his stiff shirt and his cutaway coat, but he won't run the Democratic Party in the next campaign.

"You've covered up the grave, but you haven't buried the corpse. But we will bury him yet and we'll bury him face down so that every time he scratches, he'll dig his way nearer home."

The Postmaster General had no comment to make, other than to say he planned, as chairman of the Democratic national committee, to spend the summer doing all that he could to re-elect President Roosevelt.

Disposal of the Farley resolution cleared the way for the most active single legislative session in recent Senate history. The Norris TVA amendments were pressed immediately forward, with only moderate opposition, following collapse of last week's filibuster against the measure, led by Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), of Vermont. Senator L. J. Dickinson (Republican) Iowa, kept the floor briefly to charge TVA with making a "social experiment," rather than promoting Tennessee flood control.

To Clarify Legality.

As passed by the Senate, the Norris bill authorizes TVA to finance municipalities in purchase of power systems for the sale and distribution of power generated at the Tennessee River dams. This and other amendments were designed to clarify TVA legality and meet issues raised by Judge W. I. Grubb in his Alabama Federal Court injunction against TVA moves to purchase power systems.

The Couzens amendment for establishment of a uniform TVA accounting system followed Republican charges of irregular TVA outlays. No money was appropriated to provide for development of the Cumberland Basin, authorized in the Logan amendment.

Several last-minute amendments by Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, author of the measure, were adopted. They covered expansion of TVA authority to manufacture chemicals to combat noxious weeds.

While the Senate was debating the measure, the House Military Affairs Committee decided to hold a thorough investigation into recent TVA activities before a vote on the companion House bill. Comptroller General J. R. McCarl, whose audit of TVA accounts brought to light alleged irregularities, will be called before the committee.

King, Queen to Rule Cotton Fete Tonight

The Alabama King and Queen of Cotton will be crowned tonight at the Alabama State Society meeting by Dr. Ferdinand Veverka, Minister of Czechoslovakia. The meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. at the Willard Hotel.

Dr. Veverka will be accompanied by his daughter, Mlle. Nella Veverka, who was Queen of the Winchester Apple Blossom Festival. Speaker of the House Byrns will deliver an address of welcome. The meeting is being held as a cotton festival.

Hugh C. Grant is president of the society, and Representative Oliver, of Alabama, will introduce Speaker Byrns.

Hutchinson, Kans., May 14 (AP).—A resolution saying veterans should be entitled to as much Government consideration as hitch-hikers was adopted today at the convention of the Kansas Spanish-American War Veterans. Speakers said hitch-hikers are receiving attention in transient centers while veterans are denied needed benefits.

Two others, one of them Otto's brother Hermann, were sentenced to terms of eight and six years for complicity.

Ask Appeal Be Denied.

In concluding the answer, Attorneys Jackson, Brabson and Weekley urged that the Hauptmanns' appeal be denied; that judgment be entered for taxes and that penalties prescribed by law be imposed. In a summary of the Internal Revenue Bureau's investigation of joint Hauptmann incomes, it was reported:

"Although the petitioners as husband and wife had an aggregate gross income and net income for 1932 and 1933 in amounts more than sufficient to require filing of returns, the petitioners willfully failed and neglected to make or file a return or returns and are therefore subject to penalties.

"In the event the board should find the petitioners were not guilty of fraudulently failing to file returns and report incomes for the two years, but should find that a portion of the deficiencies for the two years was due to negligence or intentional disregard of established rules and regulations, then the board should find the petitioners guilty of such negligence and appropriate penalties should be asserted."

The Hauptmann tax appeal document, filed on April 9, was drafted by Attorney Frank B. Meske, of New York.

Two-Year Litigation Seen.

Hauptmann's fight against the tax assessment may not end until long after his electrocution for the Lindbergh baby's murder. His appeal from the death sentence is scheduled next month. It may require two years of litigation before the tax question is settled.

Proceedings of the board usually require months for a hearing assignment and taking of testimony. After that, the parties are allowed 60 days on each side to file briefs and replies—necessitating another four months before the matter is referred to the board for decision.

In Hauptmann's lengthy appeal petition, the name of Isidor Fisch, tuberculous German furrier from whom he claimed to have received the Lindbergh kidnap money, appeared repeatedly, as did mention of the famous kidnaping.

The petition charged that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue was in error in crediting to Hauptmann funds received through operation of a joint brokerage account and in the joint operation of a fur business.

Roomers Identify Woman Hit by Car

Victim Proves to Be Mrs. Mary Dyer, 75.

The body of an elderly woman, victim of a traffic mishap last Sunday, was identified at the District morgue yesterday as that of Mrs. Mary E. Dyer, 75, of 2710 Ontario road northwest.

Roomers at the house said Mrs. Dyer had lived there several months. She was active and frequently traveled out of town, it was reported, and consequently her disappearance brought no alarm. Several friends, after reading newspaper accounts of the accident, made the identification.

Mrs. Dyer was struck by an automobile at Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest while she was on her way to church. She died a few hours later in Emergency Hospital. Ray A. Bane, 38, of the 100 block of Eighth street northeast, driver of the car, is free under bond of $1,000. He was charged with reckless driving.

20 More Scholarships Voted to Gallaudet

The House Committee on Education and Labor yesterday voted to report favorably a bill to add 20 scholarships to Gallaudet College of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf. The bill has passed the Senate.

Dr. Percival Hall, president of the institution, testified in support of the bill. He explained that it would increase the scholarships, available throughout the States, from 125 to 145, at an additional annual cost of $15,000.

Library Communistic, Chicago Legion Charges

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—The latest target for "red" charges is the Chicago Public Library.

The Cook County Council of the American Legion, in a resolution, declared that "certain branches" of the library were "spreading Communist propaganda." Carl B. Roden, who has been librarian for 17 years, today demanded that the veterans furnish details.

"No library is used to disseminate propaganda," said Roden. "This library is not so used. We have all kinds of books on Communism, vegetarianism and every other kind of 'ism.' They are available to all readers. We make no effort to interest the public in any book."

Lynch Efforts Fail; Coleman Killers to Chair

Judge Frederick W. Coleman ordered the courtroom cleared and the murderers, seemingly undisturbed, were hurried through a back door by State troopers.

Jury Out Four Minutes.

Trial of the pair lasted six hours but it required only four minutes of consideration by the jury to find them guilty. Five minutes after R. W. Hilderup, jury foreman, pronounced the verdict, Judge Coleman sentenced the prisoners to die.

The two colored men admitted complicity in the murder but each blamed the other for the actual killings.

The last witness to testify this afternoon was Tom Braxton, faithful colored servant of the Colemans for the last 30 years, who told of going to the home on the morning of the murder.

Guard of Ten Officers.

Eleven witnesses had testified for the prosecution when court recessed at noon. The prisoners, in custody of ten State officers, were taken to the county jail, which officers formed a cordon outside.

Among witnesses at the morning session were James Hilliard and Allen Montague, who told of seeing Snell and Jackson in vicinity of the Coleman home on the day of the murders; Elwood Haislip, Thornsburg filling station attendant, who identified Snell as the colored man who purchased cigarettes in his place about 10 o'clock on the night of the crime, driving off hastily in the stolen Coleman automobile which was recognized; William Roy and William Redd, Richmond colored men who identified the defendants as the pair who had driven the Coleman car to a Richmond restaurant on the night of the crime and abandoned it; J. W. Baggett proprietor of a Fredericksburg feed store, who told of seeing Coleman in his store about noon, April 2, day of the murder, and said Coleman had set his watch there. He identified a gold watch found in Snell's possession as a watch he had seen on Coleman a few hours before he was murdered.

Watch Is Identified.

The watch case and works, seized among Snell's effects when he was arrested in Haverstraw, also were identified by R. R. Buffington, Fredericksburg jeweler.

Sergt. J. C. Chichester, who obtained Jackson's confession, said there were no evidences of a struggle on the Coleman premises. Jackson, he said, told him of being asked to accompany Snell to the Coleman home.

First witness was Dr. W. A. Harris, county coroner, who told of examining the bodies. Winfrey Mason followed him to the stand and told of finding the bodies and three boulders, the heaviest of which weighed 150-pounds, in the well.

Riot Guns, Gas Ready.

Officer Walker Burgess told of his search for Jackson and of Jackson's voluntary surrender at police headquarters. Burgess related Jackson's story in which he admitted having part in the crime, but declared the job was suggested by Snell and that he stood guard at the road.

Speaking in low tones both prisoners pleaded "not guilty" after the indictment had been read by Clerk Arthur Cessmond.

In his opening statement Commonwealth Attorney Emmett Carner declared the crime was conceived and planned a week or ten days prior to its execution. He asked for a verdict of murder in the first degree, "a verdict which will carry nothing but a sentence of death," for what he described as a "brutal, fiendish and gruesome crime."

Harry H. Sager, for the defense, reminded the jury that he was acting only as an appointee of the court and directing his remarks to the jury said, "When you retire to consider your verdict, I will feel that my duty has been fully and sincerely discharged."

The prisoners were escorted to court from Henrico County Jail by ten State troopers, armed with riot guns, tear gas and pistols. Both were shackled and handcuffed.

Patriotic Society Plans Memorial Rites Today

The District of Columbia Society, Sons of the American Revolution, will hold memorial services in Oak Hill Cemetery this afternoon.

Members will form ranks at Thirtieth and R streets northwest and march into the cemetery. They will gather around the grave of Capt. Stephen Bloomer Balch, Revolutionary soldier-preacher, and the exercises there will be in commemoration of those who died in the last year.

Society Girl and Butler Who Sued

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS.

New York Socialites in Court on $100,000 Defamation Suit.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Garbed in a cutaway, stiff-bosomed shirt with horizontal stripes and winged collar, William Lawrence Graham today began trial of a $100,000 slander suit against his former employers, the socially prominent Mrs. Henrietta R. Flick and her daughter, Margot.

"This is not livery," explained the British-born butler and member of the King's Scottish Borderers during the World War. "It is just what a butler wears when he is doing his duty."

Part of his duty in the Flick service was to "supervise" a party for Miss Flick at her New York home, it developed at the hearing.

He asserted he became ill the following morning and went to Miss Flick's room with a thermometer to show he ran a temperature and would be unable to return to the family home at Lenox, Mass.

Graham said she was in pajamas. Her personal maid was in the room. He waited in an adjoining room, he testified, and heard Miss Flick telephone her mother, "You must get rid of Graham. He walked into my bedroom without knocking while I was undressed."

Graham was discharged—the first time since he had become a butler, said his lawyer, Bernard H. Sandler. He lost his bride of three months, took to drink, was unable to obtain employment and was forced to accept charity, Sandler charged.

Further evidence of slander was alleged by Sandler, who said Mrs. Flick had related the story of the butler's discharge in the presence of his wife and guests at a tea.

Henry A. Uterhart, defense counsel, charged that Graham was "just plain drunk" when he entered Miss Flick's room and that after he left, Graham went to the cook's room and went to sleep, clad in his hat and overcoat.

U. S. Paid $5,500,000 Won by Oil Inquiry

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Government received a $5,500,000 check yesterday as a result of the celebrated Senate investigation of the oil scandals.

Announcement was made by Harry Blair, Assistant Attorney General, who said the payment was made to the Federal Reserve Bank at Los Angeles by William C. McDuffie, receiver of the Pan American Oil Co., which Edward L. Doheny formerly headed.

The Government won a judgment against the Pan American company for $9,000,000 at Los Angeles. McDuffie agreed to the payment yesterday after release of property liens seized by the Government.

Missing Broker Held in Buffalo

Faces Charge of Larceny of $414,000.

By the Associated Press.

Buffalo, N. Y., May 14.—Harold L. McCormack, 38, hungry and down to his last nickel, was held tonight to await arrival of officers to return him to Boston, Mass., where he faces a charge of larceny of $414,000.

McCormack, missing three months since the brokerage house of Dill & Co. was closed, was taken into custody today as he left a public telephone booth after talking with his wife at their home in Waltham, Mass. He had 5 cents in his pocket.

"You're McCormack," a detective almost shouted at him.

Detectives bought his breakfast.

The prisoner was president of the closed brokerage house. He disappeared February 16, three weeks before his firm and a subsidiary, Investors Trading Corporation, were closed for violations of the Massachusetts "blue sky law."

Constitution Winning 25-1 In Filipino Poll

Ratification Sweeps Nation as Million Cast Votes; No Disorder.

By the Associated Press.

Manila (Wednesday), May 15.—Election returns flowing in early today indicated the Filipinos, with women balloting for the first time, voted by a margin of probably 25-to-1 to ratify the constitution of the forthcoming commonwealth government.

First returns indicated more than 1,000,000 votes were cast.

Bulletins from all sections of the Philippine Archipelago gave an incomplete count today of 438,847 votes for the constitution, and 11,089 against it.

Step to Independence.

It was the first step toward complete independence from the United States—to be granted after 10 years of preparation under the commonwealth, which will be inaugurated late this year.

The plebiscite yesterday was peaceful. There were no disorders like the uprising of the Sakdalistas or immediate independence advocates, whose revolt May 2 cost 60 lives.

Women enthusiastically exercised their right to vote and in some sections cast more ballots than the men.

This was taken by some women leaders as an indication women will be able to muster the necessary 300,000 votes in a special plebiscite to be held within two years to determine whether they wish the right to vote in future elections.

Aguinaldo Votes.

Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo voted for the first time since his capture 34 years ago ended the insurrection he headed against the United States. His entire family accompanied him to the polls.

Influence of Sakdalista extremists, who are opposed to ratification of the constitution ostensibly because it postpones independence, was little evidenced—except in the smaller percentage of votes of Laguna, Bulacan and Cavite provinces. In those provinces, where the uprising was centered, Sakdalista leaders had urged their followers to boycott the polls.

One exception to the otherwise virtual unaminity was recorded in the sub-province of Benguet in the mountains of northern Luzon Island, the inhabitants of which are Aboriginal Igorotes, who have been much benefited by the American regime. Nine of the 14 precincts gave 176 votes for ratification and 575 against it.

rolls also remained unsolved. Ickes said he believed there could be a provision in contracts requiring that labor be drawn from relief rolls. The PWA never has pursued this policy.

Selections Soon.

PWA employes being transferred to posts in the States will include 175 lawyers, engineers and finance examiners, as well as an undetermined number of trained stenographers and clerks. Selection of directors for the various State headquarters will be announced within a few days. In some instances, Ickes said, the State engineer will be named director, but in other States, where the volume is great, a director will be added to the staff.

The largest group to be sent to the States will be that of lawyers, numbering about 100. About 25 lawyers already are working in the various State headquarters. Ickes emphasized that creation of State NRA headquarters will not mean enlargement of the staff. He said the main effect of decentralization will be to reduce congestion in Washington.

Ickes said he expected the first allotments for specific projects to be made when the allotment board meets at the White House Thursday.

Ickes, Hopkins and Frank C. Walker, head of the division of applications and information, will discuss the works program over a radio hookup at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. They will speak from Walker's office.

"I believe, honorable senators, this also is your thought."

At the conclusion of his impromptu address, Il Duce was greeted with cheers from the senators and packed public galleries.

Mussolini's speech followed another blunt address to the senate by Michele Lessona, undersecretary for the colonies, in which he asserted the "situation in Africa is not only not changed (for the better), but aggravated, showing that the causes of such a situation are to be found in the constitution of the Abyssinian state as it is today organized."

U. S. Narcotic Farm To Open on May 25

Cumming to Dedicate Addicts' Refuge at Lexington.

By the Associated Press.

Opening of a Federal narcotic farm for isolating and rehabilitating the criminal narcotic addict—the first of its kind—yesterday was set by the Public Health Service for May 25.

Surgeon Gen. Hugh S. Cumming will officiate at the formal dedication of the institution, located at Lexington, Ky. Soon, 315 addict Federal prisoners will be transferred to the farm to be treated and guarded by a staff of seven doctors and a personnel of 260, all under the direction of Dr. Lawrence Kolb.

"The situation respecting repeated prison sentences has challenged the usefulness of handling drug addicts through prison sentence alone," Cumming explained yesterday. "The object of the Lexington narcotic farm is to rehabilitate, restore to health and train to be self-supporting and self-reliant those who are admitted thereto."

'Protocols of Zion' Held Fake by Court

Obvious Forgery, Judge Says in Swiss Ruling.

By the Associated Press.

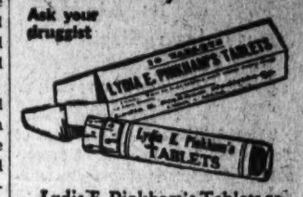

Berne, Switzerland, May 14.—The long-disputed "protocols of the elders of Zion," against which the Jews throughout the world had protested for years, were declared today by a Swiss court to be "forged and faked."

The court forbade the sale and distribution of the "protocols" in Switzerland and fined two of the five Swiss Nazis who were charged with slandering Jewry and distributing "immoral literature."

"It is now definitely established," the court said, "that the protocols were copied or plagiarized largely from Maurice Joly's 'Dialogs in Hell,' and the protocols are consequently obvious forgery and plagiarism."

Fairfax School Glee Club Test Set for Today

Elementary Competition First of Its Kind in Northern Virginia.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

The Fairfax County Federation of School and Civic Leagues will sponsor an elementary school glee club contest today in the Fairfax School, starting at 10:30 a. m. The contest is the first of its kind to be held in northern Virginia and cash prizes will be awarded to the three winning clubs.

The judges of the contest today will be Dr. Robert Harmon, who is in charge of George Washington Glee Club; Mrs. Ernest Trice, of Richmond, and Mrs. J Forney Donaldson, supervisor of music in Arlington County.

The schools scheduled to participate in the contest have been announced by Mrs. Elsie A. Davis, elementary school supervisors, as follows: Baileys Cross Roads, Fairfax, McLean, Forestville, Franconia, Annandale, Falls Church, Lorton, Fort Belvoir and Groveton. Groups from the participating schools will be limited from 20 to 25 pupils Miss Dorothy Brown of the Fairfax faculty will lead the group singing.

The Town Council of Fairfax, Va., has decided to continue the corporation tax rates of $1.20 for the next fiscal year. The new rate includes 80 cents for water bonds and 40 cents for streets and lighting.

The water rate will fall short of raising the necessary annual sinking fund requirement for the water bond issue of $50,000, but the receipts from the sale of water during the year will be about $2,500. The portion of the water receipts over the cost of maintenance and operation will be diverted to the sinking fund account to make up the shortage.

Despite the fact the public schools in about 80 of the 100 counties in Virginia are threatened with shortened terms this year because of the failure of Federal school funds to come through as expected by State officials, the schools in Fairfax County expect to be able to complete the full 180-day term, W. T. Woodson, divisional superintendent, has stated that this will be possible through the strictest economies.

At the end of the present fiscal year on June 30, the county school system will have a balance of about $20,000, which is about half of what is needed to prepare the schools for the fall term and pay expenses until taxes are collected in November. Superintendent Woodson stated that on the expectation that the final Public Works Administration grants will be paid at the close of the fiscal accounting period and with no unexpected emergency, the county school board plans to conduct the usual 180-day school session.

Gen. Lee's Funeral To Be Held Today

Funeral services for Maj. Gen. Harry I. Lee, commanding general of the Marine Barracks at Quantico, will be held today at the Quantico post.

Services at 9 a. m. will be conducted by Lieut. August Hohl, of the Chaplain Corps of the Navy. The body then will be tawen to Arlington National Cemetery for burial with full military honors. Services at the grave will be held shortly after 11:30 a. m., when the funeral cortege arrives at the Fort Myer entrance to the cemetery.

Honorary pallbearers will be Maj. Gen. John A. Lejune, retired, former commandant of the Corps; Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the Naval Bureau of Aeronautics; Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews, quartermaster of the Marine Corps; Brig. Gen. David Porter, adjutant and inspector of the corps; Col. Henry N. Manney, and Lieut. Comdr. Clarence C. Kress, U. S. Navy.

Fair Planned as Benefit.

An old fashioned country fair is being planned by the public health lay committee of the Woodside-Silver Spring (Md.) area as the means of raising funds to carry on a pretentious program of health activities for the summer and fall. The affair will be held the latter part of June.

Wheat Policy Benefits Told Farmers' Rally

Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel Cites Advantages of Curb at Rockville.

The wheat program under the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the purpose of its continuation was discussed yesterday by Dr. Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, at a meeting held in Rockville, Md. The meeting was attended by approximately 300 farmers.

Dr. Ezekiel pointed out that even though there had not been a normal wheat crop in this country for several years, the world supply remains high, thereby keeping prices in the United States low. He said that the European countries maintained high prices through high tariffs. In discussing the price situation, Dr. Ezekiel brought out that a small drop in the price of bread to consumers necessarily meant a large reduction in the price received by the farmer for his wheat, the middlemen sharing in the profits.

It was brought out that even though the reduction program affected only the basic commodities, all other crops were indirectly affected.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration is conducting the referendum primarily to determine the attitude of the farmers in regard to the continuation of the program, and is not attempting to influence them in their voting, he said.

Paul E. Nystrom, of the University of Maryland, in charge of the wheat program in Maryland, pointed out that Montgomery County wheat producers to date had received approximately $200,000 in benefit payments, in addition to the increased price of wheat. This amount has not been a gift from the United States Treasury, but was raised through the processing tax, the program being entirely self supporting, he said.

Nystrom pointed out that the criticism which has been advanced that "we are attempting to control production with one hand and importing with the other" is not well founded, because the imports of all grains during the past year amounted to six-tenths of 1 per cent of this country's average production of grains, and less than 2 per cent of the loss of grain crops which was attributable to the drought.

O. W. Anderson, county agent for Montgomery County, urged that all farmers who are eligible, vote in the referendum. He announced that a series of meetings will be held this week in all wheat producing districts of the county to explain the conditions surrounding the voting.

Board Raises Rate of Taxes In Falls Church

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Cla. 800. Clarendon, Va.

The county board at its meeting held yesterday at the courthouse set the levy for the county's section of Falls Church at $1.70 on the $100 assessed valuation. This is an increase of 30 cents over what it was last year. The increase is to take care of the sewer installation.

The levy is divided evenly: 85 cents for schools, the balance for general purposes.

The plumbers code, which has been prepared after a study of more than a year, was adopted and will become effective June 1. Printing of the code in booklet form for those wishing a copy at small cost was authorized.

Mrs. Golden Dagger appeared before the board, representing the Organized Women Voters of Arlington County, with a plea that the board adopt an ordinance prohibiting the sale of fireworks. Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas was authorized to draft an ordinance to be considered at the June meeting.

Expenditures totaling $21,208.32, of which $5,855.73 represented the monthly pay roll, was approved.

Seeking a rehearing by the zoning appeal board on his request for a rezoning of his property near the intersection of Pershing drive and Virginia avenue that he might erect an apartment house, Calvin I. Kephart asked the board that it be referred back to the appeal board. The request was granted.

Recognizing the urgent need of adequate approaches to Washington, the board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce last night voted to request the county board to proceed without further delay to purchase the abandoned right of way of the Arlington-Fairfax Railway extending from Clarendon to Hatfield. It was pointed out that with this roadway developed it would connect with the Lee boulevard and would also reduce the time into Washington by way of the Highway Bridge.

President George M. Yeatman stressed the point that the county is growing faster than any time in its history and provisions must be made to develop its highways and provide adequate approaches to Washington.

With Arlington County today without a suitable building to provide for group mass meetings, President Yeatman presented to the board a proposal for the erection of a county-wide community center building. After much discussion the president was asked to make a further study of the plan and to present it at the June meeting.

A special commitee consisting of Monroe H. Stockett, Walter U. Varney and Jack Cummins was appointed to visit the various civic associations in the county, requesting that they become members of the Chamber of Commerce.

It was voted that each organization becoming a member would have one delegate.

Monroe H. Stockett was appointed to represent the chamber on the ten-year development program which is now being worked out by a special committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation.

George E. H. Goodner was re-elected president of the Thrifton Village Sanitary Corporation at its annual meeting held last night in the Grace Episcopal Church parish hall.

Other officers elected were: E. P. Jenkins, vice president; J. C. Johnson, secretary, and H. C. Roberts, treasurer.

Election of officers will feature a meeting of the Woman's Club of Lyon Village to be held tonight at the home of Mrs. Freeland F. Chew, 225 Courthouse road.

A play entitled "The Path Across the Hill" will be presented under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Walker Chapel Church at the church tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

The play will be presented by the dramatic club of Fort Myer Heights.

The Woman's Society of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church will serve a benefit chicken supper at the church tomorrow evening from 5 to 7:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Walter F. Sunderman is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

William Gardiner Dies at Cheverly

75-Year-Old Sail Maker to Be Buried in Baltimore.

William Gardiner, 75, for 30 years a resident of Prince Georges County (Md.), died yesterday at his home on Landover road near Cheverly.

Mr. Gadiner was a sail maker and house painter. He is survived by his wife.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1 p. m. at Francis Basch's Sons funeral home at Hyattsville, with the Rev. George G. Oliver, pastor of the Hyattsville First Methodist Church South, officiating. Interment will be in Loudoun Cemetery, Baltimore.

Farmers Told To Vote Views On Crop Curbs

AAA Is Open to Revision, Myer Says at Rally in Poolesville.

The farmers must point out the improvements for the AAA just as the owners pointed the way to improvements of the early automobile, Dillon Myer, director of the program planning division of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration told a large gathering of farmers at Poolesville, Md., Monday night.

The meeting was held in the Poolesville School under auspices of the United Young Men's Democratic Clubs of Montgomery County and the Montgomery County Farm Bureau.

The AAA is only 2 years old, Myer said, and it is in the same position as the automobile in its infancy. The drivers of the early automobiles pointed the way to the modern automobile and in the same manner the farmer must point to the necessary changes in the AAA set-up, he said.

For this reason, referendums are being held on each phase of the AAA in order to get the farm viewpoint. He urged the farmers to vote in the wheat referendum, May 25, whether they were for or against continuation of the wheat program, so that the actual sentiment can be ascertained.

C. M. Wilson, principal of the school, introduced James W. Cummings, jr., president of the United Democratic Clubs, who presided O. W. Anderson, county agent, talked on local farming problems and also urged a 100 per cent vote in the wheat referendum.

Club to Elect Heads.

Election of officers will feature a meeting of the Woman's Club, of Woodside, Md., this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ralph D. Smith. Mrs. Lawton G. Herriman is chairman of the nominating committee.

Annual competitive drill by cadets of Alexandria, George Mason and Washington-Lee high schools will be held at the Alexandria school at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Trophies for the winning companies will be awarded by Vulture Locale, No. 934, Forty and Eight Society, American Legion.

Officers of the regular army, names to be announced just before the drill, will be judges. Col. Clarance Deems, jr., former professor of military science and tactics in Alexandria schools, is chairman of the arrangements committee but, because of his illness, the presentation will be made by Franklin DeDier, of the Forty and Eight, vice chairman of the committee.

The Alexandria Teachers Association held its final business session of the year at George Mason Hotel Monday night, following a dinner in the Lee room.

Following officers were elected: Miss Mary Waller Dickinson, Alexandria High School, president; Mrs. Mary B. Appleton, Mount Vernon School, vice president; Miss Lula Whitaker, Jefferson School, secretary-treasurer. Miss Dickinson presided.

R. Wendell Eaves, chairman of the entertainment committee, presented a program which included a memory test by Mark B. Woody, of Washington. An address was delivered by T. C. Williams, superintendent of schools, and there was music by the Four Islanders, a string quartet, and Frank Trapp, accordionist.

State personal property tax returns must be made to the commissioner of revenue, Charles H. Callahan, not later than June 1, according to notifications now being served on all taxpayers in the six wards of the city. Failure to make returns will entail a penalty.

A check-up is being made and the commissioner of revenue announces that after its completion, those listed by canvassers who have failed to make returns will arbitrarily be assessed according to best information available.

Paul L. Delaney was elected exalted ruler of the Alexandria Lodge of Elks at an annual meeting Monday night. Other officers: Leonard A. McKenney, esteemed leading knight; E. Joel Tregar, esteemed loyal knight; Joseph B. Cook, esteemed lecturing knight; George H. Railing, secretary (twelfth consecutive term); Herman Friedlander, treasurer (twentieth term); Howard D. Carter, trustee; Harry Fedder, tiler; W. H. P. Kelley, alternate to the grand lodge; Paul L. Delaney, delegate to the grand lodge.

Representatives of the lodge will attend the Virginia State Elks Association meeting at Charlottesville July 14 and 15 and will participate in flag-raising ceremonies at Monticello, home of Thomas Jefferson, July 14.

New officers will be installed June 10 when the list of appointed officers will be announced by Exalted Ruler Delaney and a program of activities for the coming year will be outlined.

James E. Moriarty has been appointed chairman of a membership campaign to be staged by the Alexandria Young Democrats Club the remainder of this month. Other members of the committee are Stanley King, Maurice Rosenberg, Miss Elizabeth McGahey and Miss Virginia Burgess. Many former members who have failed to renew memberships are expected to enroll.

Liberty Rebekah Lodge, No. 16, had as its guests last night at Odd Fellows Hall the degree team of Dumfries Lodge, which conferred degree work on a class of candidates. Plans were also made to attend the Rebekah Assembly in Roanoke the latter part of May.

A free chest clinic will be conducted in the city health office Monday, May 20, by Dr. Charles L. Savage, of the Virginia State Health Department. White patients will be examined in the morning and colored in the afternoon. Each patient examined will be required to have written consent from a physician.

It is announced that appointments may be made at the health office or by telephoning Alexandria 900, after 5 p. m.

Mrs. Eva Smith Remington, 42 years old, died Monday night at her home near Penn Daw, south of Alexandria. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Smith. In addition to her parents she is survived by a brother, Richard Smith, of Accotink. She was a member of Liberty Rebekah Lodge, Odd Fellows, of Alexandria. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Willard H. Grimes.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 14.—Willard H. Grimes, 50, former school board member and pioneer in Boy Scout work, will be buried Thursday in Shepherdstown. He died at his home yesterday.

red-brick building, and has but one room. Its president is Max Vollberg, of Calvert street, Riverdale. Bank officials announced last night the loss was covered by insurance.

One of the bandits opened a savings account Monday, James told police. The card he filled out to open the account is being checked for possible fingerprints and will be studied by hand-writing experts. Last night the victims of the holdup came to police headquarters here to look over the rogue's gallery, but failed to identify any of the pictures.

Cool-Headed Clerk Aids in Thug's Arrest

By the Associated Press.

Idabel, Okla., May 14.—A cool-headed bank clerk, who argued successfully with his abductor while bullets spattered about them, told a gripping story tonight of a gun battle in which a convict-bank robber was wounded and loot of $5,000 was recovered here today.

Two escaped Arkansas convicts, Sam Day and Rube McKean, robbed the Idabel National Bank, then raced to their parked motor car with two bank employes as unwilling shields.

But in backing the car, the robbers crashed against a truck and officers took that moment to open a blast of gunfire. Day was shot in the shoulder. "He slumped over in the seat for a minute," said C. R. O'Neal, jr., assistant cashier, and one of the abducted pair. "Then he sat up and the other man began arguing with him, trying to get him to give up.

"All during this time, the officers were pouring lead at the car. Finally I joined the second man in talking to the fellow who was shot. I told him he didn't have a chance to get away and finally he gave in and said he would surrender; but he added, he didn't know how. I told him I'd fix that part. He said to go ahead and I pulled out my handkerchief and waved it at the officers.

"They stopped shooting and came over to the car and got the two men. That's when I got kind of scared."

Post Staff Photos.

Mrs. L. K. Baer Dies at Home In Takoma Park

Widow of Civil War Veteran to Be Buried Friday in Baltimore.

Mrs. Lizzette Krumm Baer, 80, widow of Nathan Baer, Civil War drummer boy, and later doorkeeper of the diplomatic gallery at the United States Senate, died yesterday at her home, 108 Flower avenue, Takoma Park, Md.

Mrs. Baer, a native of Baltimore, Md., was the daughter of Christian and Christine Krumm, who came to America on a sailing vessel which took four months to make the journey from Germany. She was married more than 50 years ago to Mr. Baer in the rectory of Christ Church at Alexandria, Va., by the Rev. Henry Sutter.

The couple subsequently lived at San Diego, Calif.; New York City and Washington, where they were engaged in the delicatessen business. Mr. Baer, who enlisted as a drummer boy and water boy at the age of 12, served throughout the Civil War. For many years he was doorkeeper of the diplomatic gallery of the Senate.

Mrs. Baer was a charter member of the Women's Benefit Association of the Maccabees and at one time was a lieutenant-governor of one of the Washington branches. She had retired from active participation in recent years, but still was a member. The association will participate in her funeral services.

Two sisters, Mrs. Nettie Bosch and Mrs. W. E. Miller, both of Baltimore, survive, as well as a large number of nephews and nieces.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 10 a. m. at the residence by Rabbi Abram Simon. Burial will be in Lowden Park Military Cemetery, Baltimore, beside her husband.

Peery Will Speak At Safety Session

Two-Day Conference to Draw Big Crowd.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 14.—On the eve of his State-wide safety conference, called in the interest of "accident prevention at work, on the streets, on the highways, in the homes, at play," Gov. Peery said this afternoon reports reaching him indicated attendance from throughout the State would be large.

The conference will continue through Thursday.

Presiding at opening session tomorrow will be John Q. Rhodes, State director of the division of motor vehicles. Mayor Bright, of Richmond, will extend a welcome, and Gov. Peery will speak. An address will be made by Dr. Miller McClintock, director of street traffic research, Harvard University.

Morris, Crozet; Paul Cale, Red Hill; Miss Annie Hancock, Crozet; Noble Smith, Scottsville; Miss Jean Moore, Red Hill, and Mrs. Ruby Young, Greenwood.

Wheat Crop Fall Due in Maryland

Survey Indicates 20 Per Cent Below Average.

By the Associated Press.

College Park, Md., May 14.—The May 1 survey of the Maryland Crop Reporting Service indicates a winter wheat crop 20 per cent below the five-year average from 1928 to 1932.

The low production, the report states, is due largely to the fact that acreage is about 13 per cent below average. The condition of the growing crop, it was reported, is above average, though field work has been retarded by frequent rains the last two months and warmer weather is needed.

The indicated production of 6,916,000 bushels compared with 7,934,000 a year ago and the five-year average of 8,648,000 bushels.

The production of rye is estimated at 216,000 bushels, as compared with last year's crop of 300,000 and the five-year average of 264,000.

Memorial Eye Clinic Opened in Richmond

Richmond, Va., May 14 (AP).—The establishment of the John B. Tabb Memorial Eye Clinic under the direction of the Virginia commission for the blind was announced here today.

The announcement was made by the directors of the John B. Tabb Memorial Association, who voted to turn over a special fund held by the organization to memorialize further Virginia's blind poet.

Child Dies in Attempt To Save Drowning Sister

By the Associated Press.

Emmitsburg, Md., May 14. — A 12-year-old girl gave her life today in a vain attempt to rescue her 6-year-old sister from drowning in an abandoned rock quarry near their home here. Their father recovered the bodies.

Theresa McLaughlin, 6, stepped into deep water while wading in the quarry and went down. Audrey, 12, her sister, went to her aid and both girls drowned. Persons summoned to the quarry by shouts of other children called the Emmitsburg Fire Department. Attempts at resuscitation failed.

Terracing Machine Ordered.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 14.—The Albemarle Terracing Association, recently organized here, has completed arrangements for the purchase of a terracing machine for the use of the farmers of the county. More than 1,600 acres of terracing work have already been contracted for by farmers in the county.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., May 14.—W. H. Barnes, of Arnold, Md., is serving a ten-day term in the Franklin County Jail in default of fine and costs, after his truck left the highway and overturned on the lawn of the Harry Harbaugh residence at Buena Vista, east of here. Barnes was charged with reckless driving.

Dr. Frost Is Dead; Blind Astronomer

Famous Yerkes Scientist Victim of Peritonitis.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Dr. Edwin Brant Frost, blind director emeritus of the Yerkes Astronomical Observatory at Williams Bay, Wis., died today. He was 68 years old.

Attending physicians at the Billings Memorial Hospital said death was caused by peritonitis, which set in after a major operation May 12.

The famous astronomer's wife, who assisted him in his work since he became blind 15 years ago, and other members of the family were at the bedside at the time of death.

The Value of "Intangibles"

No MILKMAN lives by plant and equipment alone.

Along with the substance of his business he requires certain "intangibles."

Routes, for example.

Over a period of years milk routes become well established.

They define the milkman's market. In a very real sense they constitute the capacious circulatory system by which the milkman, the farmer, and the citizen are sustained.

The value of milk routes issues from the fact that they signify a daily outlet to enough customers to make regular delivery economically feasible.

Ordinarily, the greater the number of customers and the smaller the area serviced, the lower the cost of delivery.

Milk routes have no public identity like the city's highways and byways.

A Tip From Crabtown.

People in Annapolis are having quite a bit of fun out of the scarlet fever scare now faintly disturbing Anne Arundel County. Midshipmen from the Naval Academy have been forbidden to enter buildings outside the institution walls. Probably there would be no fear of an epidemic except that the annual June week exercises are almost at hand. Not to lose the middies' trade, shopkeepers throughout the city have obligingly moved their businesses out of doors. First classmen who must have their ensigns' uniforms for the approaching festivities are being fitted in broad daylight. And restaurateurs have moved tables and chairs out on the ancient brick pavements to cater to academy patrons.

All of which serves to revive the question of why sidewalk cafes are not a regular part of Annapolis life, to say nothing of Washington or any other community in these latitudes. Certainly if any climate lends itself to al fresco dining, the summer airs allotted to this vicinity do so. They not only lend themselves, they cry for it. True, there is the problem of finding adequate sidewalk space. But if Annapolis with its narrow little byways and if inch-greedy New York can manage it, there is no reason why Washington can not. During the past few years more and more little pink-shaded tables have appeared along Gotham avenues, snuggled behind fringes of tubbed shrubbery.

Travelers from the North admit that at first there is likely to be some slight embarrassment about dining in the open. But, they hasten to add, any gold-fish feeling that there may be soon vanishes before the combined charms of soft summer light and cooling breezes. And, of course, no little part of the color and romance of the Old World emanates from the open-air cafes where all the world and his wife meet for conversation and the enduring pleasure of real relaxation.

Who will have the enterprise to install Washington's first Cafe de la Paix, complete with dominoes and chess?

The Only Hope.

The suicide of Mrs. Mattie Estelle Rogers, in unconsolable despair over her unwitting part in the death of Mrs. George Bowerman last month, emphasizes another tragic aspect of the traffic problem. That is the mental suffering of the truly responsible driver, something apt to be overlooked in the overwhelming flood of sympathy for the victim and the bereaved. All too evident is the tragedy of the defenseless, whose life is snuffed out in a way which so often seems avoidable. But no less poignant is "the hell within" created by a sensitized mentality holding itself morally responsible for the taking of human life, whether absolved of blame or not.

There is no moral to be drawn from the pitiable psychological repercussion which caused Mrs. Rogers to take her own life. Obviously only one of the finest spiritual texture would have chosen the decision which she bravely took. Morals and maxims are indeed futile when dealing with so complete a disaster. Words are superfluous in the face of this double tragedy. Yet surely neither pedestrian nor driver can fail to get its full import. That being so, from the community viewpoint these two unnecessary deaths will not have been in vain.

Commuting Dictators.

The life of the modern dictator, American style, resembles that of a commuter: to hold his job, he has to be going somewhere most of the time. When Senator Long tarries in Washington in an effort to build up his national reputation, the increasingly rebellious elements back home stage demonstrations against his plans and policies. His present sojourn in Washington, for instance, has provided an opportunity for public outbursts in Louisiana that he may soon have to handle on the spot. But should Senator Long return to confront his detractors back home, he will have to forego the national advantages he seeks to attain through obstructing the legislative program in Washington.

It must be a wearing life, in marked contrast to the existence of ease and relative security led by men like Penrose, who were also the political czars of the States they represented in Washington. These Senators of the old school were not elected by popular vote. If they controlled their State Legislatures, they did not have to propitiate the people. A subservient legislature could be counted upon to return a Senator to office as well as to do his bidding at home. Such fortunate individuals were able to appear in the dual roles of local czar and national statesman, with a minimum amount of effort and often with real credit to themselves.

The popular election of Senators has changed all that. Today it is necessary for a man who aspires to be political ruler of his State to consider constantly what impression he is making upon the masses. Dominance of the legislature will come in handy after he is elected to office. But he must, nevertheless, try to ingratiate himself with the voting majority by a "Share-the-Wealth" or other cure-all. Wherever he is, in consequence, he knows full well that he should be somewhere else. The old days may not have been politically purer than these times. They were unquestionably better adapted to the needs of the man who aspired to be a dictator without lowering himself to the level of a mountebank.

Behind The Defense.

The elaborate defense of the Administration's monetary policy offered by Secretary Morgenthau is of secondary importance to his closing assertion that when the world "is ready to seek foreign exchange stabilization, Washington will not be an obstacle." Not even all the qualifications with which the Secretary of the Treasury hedges this statement—not even his reminder that it would be easy to devalue the dollar further—can entirely conceal the tacit confession that the managed currency policy has failed to work and should be abandoned at the first advantageous opportunity.

To save face in making this admission Mr. Morgenthau sought to glorify the system of monetary management ushered in with so much ballyhoo in the fall of 1933. Since the Secretary has no responsibility for initiating the policy this was a sporting gesture. But he should have stopped short of attempting to lay all responsibility for the depression upon the high exchange value of the gold dollar. He even intimated that the wholesale bank closings were primarily due to failure of the Hoover Administration to abandon gold. Even for the radio audience this is naive propaganda. For Mr. Morgenthau himself knows perfectly well that the international exchanges had little to do with a situation created by the collapse of a speculative boom of domestic origin, in full swing long before Great Britain was forced off gold.

The Secretary of the Treasury should also know better than to assert that it was "obviously economic suicide" for the Hoover Administration to refuse to devalue during the gold drain which took place in early 1932. If he had been speaking with consideration of the dignity of his office, rather than for political effect, he would have remembered that before the end of that year the exported gold flowed back again. There was no fear of the soundness of the dollar at the end of 1932. There was no reason for such fear. Anxiety as to the future of the dollar really began with this Administration's tampering with the currency, in a fallacious and abortive effort to promote economic recovery by raising commodity prices through monetary manipulation.

Similarly unconvincing is Mr. Morgenthau's attempt to show that the current revival in certain export lines is a well-rounded upturn due to the monetary policy of the New Deal. In spite of the undoubted stimulus of devaluation, the fact is that agricultural exports have steadily continued to decline from the low levels of 1932. As the Secretary himself admits "in 1934 we shipped one-third less cotton than in 1932, but we got 6 per cent more money for it"—in depreciated dollars!

Even without consideration of the silver-purchase spasm, on which Mr. Morgenthau was careful not to dwell, the monetary policy of this Administration stands out as one of the most inept experiments in financial history. It can only be defended by distorting the facts and soon or late its complete failure must inevitably be admitted. The fact of failure can be read between the lines of the radio address given by the Secretary of the Treasury on Monday night. The effort to gloss over this fact for political effect will deceive nobody who has followed the record with any care.

On The Construction Side.

The actual work of demolishing Washington's alley dwellings will shortly be under way. As soon as the approval of the Attorney General can be obtained slum property costing $140,000 will pass under control of the District Alley Dwelling Authority and no time will be lost in its transformation. In fact, the families formerly living in Ruppert's court have already been moved to other localities and preparations are being made for the erection of garages where miserable shacks now stand.

In the first two projects undertaken by the A. D. A. land now occupied by dwellings will be put to commercial use. A considerable part of the property coming under the jurisdiction of the authority is in semi-commercial zones. Consequently, its use for the construction of new residential quarters might be very unwise. Mr. Ihlder's practice of seeking natural uses for this land is unquestionably sound.

It is apparent, however, that the destruction of alley homes in advance of any low-cost housing construction tends to accentuate the shortage of living quarters in this class. Some of the projects contemplated by Mr. Ihlder will provide new, modern homes in place of the hovels now hidden in narrow insanitary courts. But there is some doubt as to whether these units, even when they are completed, will be sufficient to house the alley dwellers who must necessarily be displaced by this program.

The progress now being made in the campaign against alley huts emphasizes anew the urgent need of modern houses and apartment units that may be rented to families in the low income group. Private enterprise gives little promise of supplying this need. And certainly the PWA housing division is having plenty of trouble getting its low-cost housing projects under way. Neither of the two local undertakings on which this agency is working has as yet progressed to the construction stage.

In such a new field progress will necessarily be slow. Delay is always preferable to headlong plunging where there is an absence of precedent to guide. But it is obviously desirable that these undertakings be pressed with all reasonable dispatch.

A Challenge To Leadership.

In all the crises of his Administration the President has not encountered a more formidable challenge to his leadership than that which is now centered in the bonus drive. Mr. Roosevelt has unsuccessfully made the appeal to reason. The inflationists have responded by making unscrupulous demagogic appeals, by intensifying political pressure through highly organized lobbies and by threatening to disrupt the recovery program unless the White House yields to their demands.

Against these tactics leadership in both the House and Senate has been pitifully weak. Politics has taken precedence over statesmanship. The majority of Congressmen have deliberately closed their eyes to the probable consequences of this rash proposal. The bonus itself, of course, is not the real issue. There would be no question of a veto if the revenue to cover this appropriation were in sight. But using the veterans as a stalking horse the Patman bill advocates are concentrating their pressure precisely because they know this measure as written is an inflationary wedge.

Terrific pressure is now being applied to the President himself to nullify his well established opposition to the Patman bill. A veto is taken for granted, but it is suggested that a passive veto message—conducive to final enactment of the measure by a two-thirds vote in both houses—would redound to the interest of the majority in Congress and would eliminate a troublesome political issue from next year's campaigns. In other words, the President is told that he should tolerate this attack upon national welfare in order to strengthen his party for 1936.

To this unscrupulous appeal has been added a threat to which no self-respecting President could yield. Senator Thomas' scheme to append the Patman bill to every Administration measure before the Senate, in the event that a bonus veto is sustained, would disrupt the entire legislative program. It is a reckless challenge, backed by a direct threat of sabotage, that calls for fearless repudiation from the White House.

In such a situation the only honorable course is a veto backed by an unequivocal message. There can be no compromise with those who say seductively that the Patman bill itself would not be altogether ruinous and therefore should slide through. At Bunker Hill the colonials did not run on the assumption that one defeat would not ruin the cause of freedom. They stood to their guns. If the traditions of this country are worth preserving the President must do the same.

To The Defense Of Archibald.

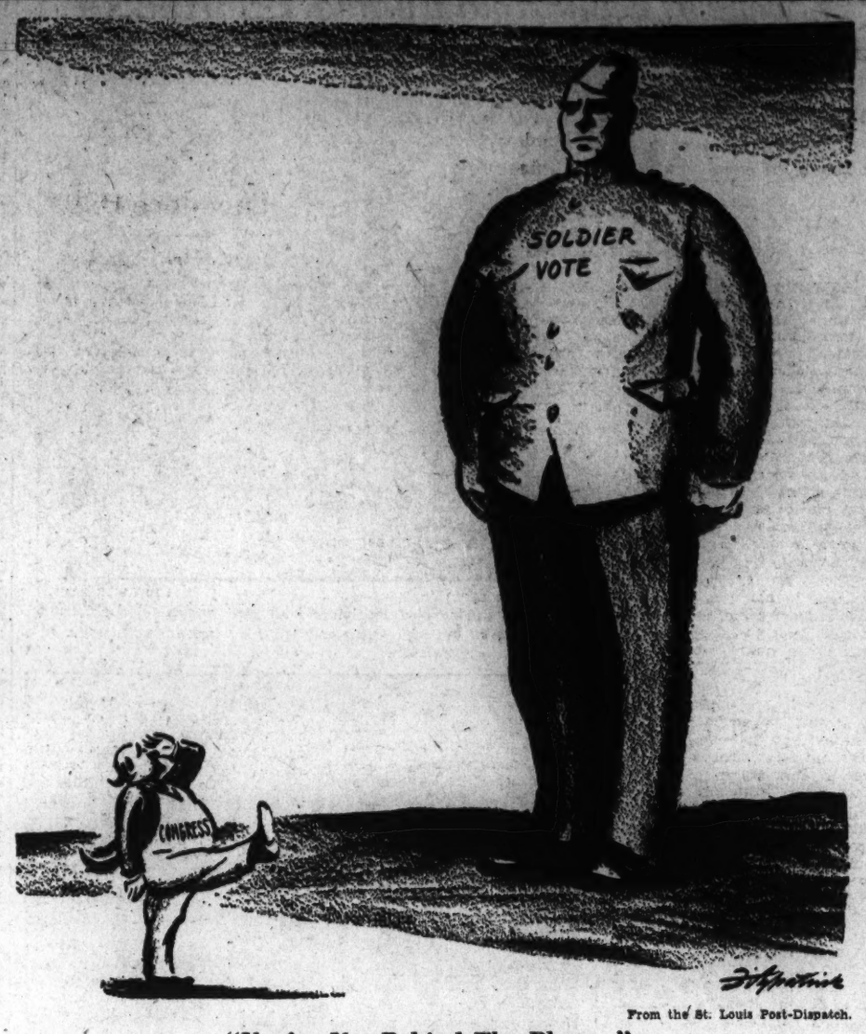

Naming babies is one of the most moot, and sometimes painful, of all practical pastimes. It is a foregone conclusion that mother, father, grandparents and relatives are all going to have different ideas on the subject. The first son may usually count on having his father's monicker wished off on him, no matter what it may be or how his dad might hate it. But, after that, selections run fast and loose and many a nose is bloodied in the cause of defending nominal appendages which parents have imposed upon their sons.

There are definite trends in names. Each generation has its crop of boys named for contemporary Presidents or national heroes and its girls for favored actresses or beloved characters in fiction. A very small minority goes to the trouble of consulting the stars and birth date and brewing therefrom the name most suited to the individual. Few parents bother to look up the derivation, social origin, or meaning of a name for the youngster once they have decided on it. But even if they go to great pains in the selection, and the name fits like a glove, it is sheer paternal optimism to assume that the chosen cognomen will be carried by him through life. For that depends entirely upon the fancy of his playmates or schoolmates. In nine cases out of ten, a "Shakespeare" at home is a "Bill" to his pals.

A new book has just been published which lists thousands of names and their sources to meet the contingency of the Great Undecided. It purports to be a first aid to parents in its suggestions for what to name the baby. No doubt the book will serve a useful purpose and find a ready market. But after thinking over the situation, it does seem that the author might better have spent his energy on a tome entitled, "What Not to Name the Baby." From a cursory glance through "Who's Who," it appears that it's the baby who needs assistance along this line. For although some are born to names and others acquire them, most of us just have them wished upon us.

True it is that Government is costing a lot, but no one can say that we're not getting plenty of it.

"Where can I get the highest price for my true confession story?" a girl asks. Sell it to a jury, sister.

"You're Not Behind The Plow—"

During the temporary absence of Mr. Elderman, The Post's cartoonist, a symposium of editorial reaction to current national and foreign affairs will be published from day to day in this space. The reprinted drawings will not necessarily represent our own viewpoint, but are selected as reflections of considered opinions on the passing scene. The editors of The Post wish to make full acknowledgment of the courtesy of their contemporaries in granting permission for this procedure.

Letters To The Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation, and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

On The Marriage Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily agree with Representative Cochran in his condemnation of Claude Babcock's testimony before the House Civil Service Committee hearings on the repeal of the "married persons law."

Apparently Mr. Babcock and Mrs. Edwina Avery think that those people who are, allegedly, evading the law by "simply overlooking marriage," though living together, are to be condoned and that for their benefit this law should be repealed so that they may retain their jobs and some other employe be dismissed in case a reduction in personnel should become necessary.

What can be said of a man and a woman who will deliberately resort to immoral living in order that they may enjoy two salaries instead of one, at the same time forcing out some other employe who may have no means of support whatever?

Poverty, no doubt, prevents or ruins many marriages, but the repeal of the married persons law will not cure proverty, and I quite agree with Christopher C. Murphy, who is quoted as saying that "When one-third of the population of the United States is on relief, every married woman with an able-bodied man to support her should step out of her job." "V. W. Q."

A Question Of Survival.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Washington Post and the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs have done an excellent public service in organizing the First Greater Washington Art Exhibition.

If it is to be an annual event, however, can not something be done to emphasize the fact that such exhibitions are held primarily to sell the artist's work and help him to earn his living; not merely to entertain and educate the public. Although this point was made repeatedly in The Post throughout the month, and even though some of the merchants were generous enough to advertise the pictures, most people still think an artist should be satisfied if he gains the momentary attention and praise of the casual exhibition visitor.

Only if the artist can overcome this very general conviction that he exists to amuse, or at best to instruct, and can establish instead the belief that his work is a necessary adjunct of every-day living, will it be possible to create the much broader market which is essential if he is to survive the present readjustment of economic forces.

Memorial To Cutting.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The death of Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, who paid an extraordinary tribute to Philippine independence when he participated in it about three years ago becomes a national factor of the Philippine Islands.

I would suggest that the Philippine Government appropriate money for the building of a memorial in his honor. JOSE P. DALISAY.

Bonus Arguments.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading in the paper about the soldiers' bonus, and knowing what I do about many things that have been going on in this country for a number of years, I wish to state that I am in favor of paying the bonus in full for the following reasons: There were 2,000,000 aliens who claimed exemption on that ground, while 5,000,000 of us were in the service. That 2,000,000 reaped the benefits of high wages and a good living, and while we were away at the front, the labor unions of the country took them into their unions in violation of their laws and the unions protect them today, and many of them are still aliens organized in various foreign organizations which control the work as has been proven in the "kick back" investigation.

There were sent to foreign countries in the years from 1929 to 1931, inclusive, $607,000,000 by the people of foreign birth, who are holding our jobs, and this has been going on for three years. This money will never be spent in this country, while every cent of the bonus would be.

Now our President is asking for $4,000,000,000 more for public works. I hope that before that amount is put into circulation that laws will be passed to protect us from racketeering by contractors who sub their work, knowing fully well that the work which they sub out can not be done for the bids presented by the subs, but they are at present immune from prosecution.

I am with our President 100 per cent, but I am also for justice to the veterans. The bonus, if paid, will be spent in this country by loyal Americans, many of whom are over 40 and are on the unemployed list, because of their age.

Suggested Slogan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As the 1936 Presidential campaign approaches, I am moved, as a patriotic American, to make a suggestion for the guidance of one great party. Of course, there is nothing obligatory as to its acceptance.

Still, I think the Republicans could add 48 States to their standard bearer by adopting just one slogan—Home, James!

ROWLAND B. MAHANY.

Contrary Apples.

Over at Cornell University scientific plant propagators in pursuit of the mystery of life have taken a step that involves even greater mystery. They have discovered that the apple tree seems to be an exception to one of the most generally recognized principles in the production of its fruit.

Everyone knows that parents share their characteristics in their children, and that in animal husbandry and plant propagation great care is taken to retain desirable characteristics by careful selection of parent stocks. But the apple tree appears to be independent of this law.

For the New York experimenters have found that pollen from the blossom of a red apple tree does not make the blossoms of a yellow apple tree produce red fruit or even fruit streaked with red and yellow. Nor will pollen from the blossom of a crabapple tree introduced into the blossom of a tree that produces big pippins or red astrachans produce smaller fruit.

(Detroit News.)

The Naval Appropriations Bill.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Answering the complaint of Representative Biermann that details of the huge naval appropriation bill were sprung suddenly on the House in a way to preclude proper study and informed debate, Representative Cochran replies if the Naval Affairs Committee had reported it out any sooner "we would be flooded with letters and telegrams protesting against this and that in the bill."

Do the sponsors of the naval bill fear an informed public opinion? Is the bill really so bad they don't dare allow popular sentiment a chance to be vocalized upon it before it can be rushed through?

Small wonder if Congressmen suspect that a majority of citizens in these times, when domestic relief problems are imperatively pressing, when public schools are having to close by hundreds for lack of funds, are not enthusiastic about needlessly blowing in more than a $1,000,000,000 for provocative sword rattling.

An Administration that is horrified by a request to pay the soldiers of the last war their bonus because it says that would threaten ruin to the national credit has no fiscal qualms about plunging into the costliest war preparedness program in our history—a peace-time military program that eclipses even the costs of waging the Civil War.

The contemplated military and naval outlay of from a billion to a billion and a quarter dollars for the coming year is nearly twice as much as the annual average Federal expenditure for meeting all the costs of our Government during the Civil War period—which averaged $684,000,000 per year.

And this is an Administration that was elected on a platform critical of slightly rising military expenditures by the preceding Administration.

Why, without any perceptible popular mandate, this plunge into the maelstrom of competitive militarism?

Your correspondent, "Columbia," defending the purposes and philosophy of the service schools, says civilians are always the ones who get us into wars that the military men have to finish. With Congressmen jumping through hoops to please the military gentlemen, however, it may look as if the service schools, in producing the professional military mind which demands all this staggeringly expensive and dangerous swashbuckling, is a form of tax-supported education that is giving us a pretty costly and dictatorial kind of martial brain trust.

A Congress which lets the military clique put a ring in its nose and start it out on a threatening $1,000,000,000 goose-stepping parade this year should have no words of criticism for foreign governments that permit themselves to be run off their feet and into insolvency by the jingo whims and hallucinations of dictators and skittish professional militarists. The Post Impressionist Personal Privilege.

Post Office, Wednesday.

TWO letters in the Column's postbag, today, clamor for immediate attention. Both may be classed as personalities, but each is sui generis.

* * * *

There is news, for instance, in the communication from P. H. O.—real literary news. We are all puffed up at having beaten Mr. Theodore Hall to it:

The name of Hemingway has passed into natural history!

* * * *

P. H. O. writes us:

"The ensuing facts, which I have salvaged from a distinguished technical periodical, can be added to Hemingwayiana by anyone who has any others to add them to.

"To Ernest Hemingway has come a distinction that comes to few writers—indeed, to few anybodies. It sounds fishy, but it's true. Yes, sir, the great matador, fareweller to arms, also raiser of suns, etc., is now assured of immortality—and that's a consummation greatly to be fished for.

"Here is the upshot of it all:

"A new species of scorpaenoid fish—Neomerinthe hemingwayi—has been named for him. It was described by Henry W. Fowler, of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, in the proceedings of that institution on April 23 last, and named 'for Ernest Hemingway, author and angler of great game fishes, in appreciation of his assistance in my work on Gulf Stream fishes.'

"The type specimen was collected by Otway H. Brown, 70 miles southeast of Cape May, N. J., and is now No. 63,482 in the Academy's ichthyological collection. It is a rosefish, and, the description says, 'after being in alcohol, the vermilion tints all fade to pink and rose and the lower surface of the body whitish. All the darker or gilt-like blotches become various shades of gray to slate or even black.'

"That alone," remarks Mr. P. H. O., "is enough to suggest the poor fish's specific name to anyone who has read some of Hemingway's more pickled paragraphs."

And the second letter? As a rule, we refuse to record the bickerings of our contributors; but there must be an exception when our two best Alexandrines differ.

A while ago, Mr. James Harrison, of Alexandria, expressed the opinion that the Column's correspondent from the same city who signed himself "Clerk" was in reality not a clerk at all. "Clerk" thereupon declared that his name was Maxwell Clerk James and that he did indeed clerk for a living. He added that Mr. Harrison was proud because his friends considered him "a monstrous clever fellow."

"Mr. William Clerk James," writes Mr. Harrison, "may be a clerk, but he is no true Alexandrine. Nay, he isn't even a good Egyptian. If he does live in Alexandria, he has either migrated or been imported. No bona fide native of this place could write as much as Esquire James without once mentioning the name of George Washington.

"For myself, I must admit to a certain sum of egoism—perhaps a larger amount than is my due—but I am at least a native, and I have yet to find a fellow-citizen who thinks me a 'monstrous clever fellow.' The majority express a united opinion that I am just a plain damphool. Moreover, I must say that, though the majority may go wrong at the polls, they seldom make any mistake in passing judgment on those who desert the status quo, I think I am a pretty good damphool myself.

"What hurts me deeply is the discovery that Esquire James has no original sarcasm to fling around my youthful dome. It is hard to suffer Cabellian (James Branch Cabellian) thrusts in 1935 and to find that Esquire James can lift 'monstrous clever fellow' out of a book without so much as a 'Thank you, Jurgen.' This rapidly maturing world of ours ought to put away Cabellian verbiage, just as it is outgrowing its taste for the humor of John Erskine.

"In view of this clerical error, it boots little (as he would say) that Clerk James has proven his status as a clerk. I like clerks. In fact, I used to be a clerk. I used to be clerk in lots of places, and I am of opinion that being a clerk is the best thing that could happen to Clerk James. But, unless he can get away from James Branch Cabell, he will never be more than a clerk—or a Congressman.

"Yet—after I have taken such pains to conceal the fact that my friends (who are they?) consider me a 'monstrous clever fellow'—James Esquire suggests my retirement from literary pursuits! I refuse. After all, I am at least a genuine Alexandrine . . .

"But why go on?

"Why," concludes Mr. Harrison, "start?"

We trust, indeed, that he hasn't started something.

Along The Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

Uncle Joe's Visit.

UNCLE JOE, who came up with the farmers to spend his crop benefits, compares the Roosevelt Administration with the time the train ran over his six best sows. At least, he insisted they were his best sows when the railroad claim agent came around. The crop benefits are his greatest windfall since then, he said. He was having his picture taken for the sixth time as he talked and believe me, I was getting tired, not tired of listening to Uncle Joe talk, because he's right funny, but tired of going around with him. I have never put in such a day in my life.

"It stands to reason the Government had to do something," he said, "to make up for the money the railroads used to pay us. In the good old days all we had to do when we wanted some cash was to let the sows out on the railroad tracks. But when the railroads got hard pressed they up and cut this business out and started suing us every time a train hit our sows, suing us, mind you, for the damage the sows did to their trains!"

• • • •

My worst apprehensions were borne out when Uncle Joe telephoned bright and early yesterday morning. From the time I heard about the farmers coming here I would bet my last penny that Uncle Joe would be along. He was always keen on going to meetings. We used to like to have him come to visit us when we were kids. He'd start to drinking beer as soon as he hit town, and we kids would go around with him all day retrieving his hat and watching out for him, because in the late afternoon, when he got on to the second dozen, he was the best-hearted man you ever saw. On one visit he gave me 75 cents, three quarters, one right after another. The record, though, is held by my brother, who got $1.25 one time.

But now that we've grown up and have jobs and our own spending money, you can imagine how bothersome Uncle Joe can be.

It didn't seem like I had been in bed more than 30 minutes when he telephoned.

"Come on, boy, you goin' to sleep all day?" he shouted jovially. One of the embarrassing things about him is that he shouts. I could have heard him better had he just stuck his head out the window. When I asked him what time it was he said it was 7 o'clock.

"Well, he's your relative, not mine," my wife said as I uttered imprecations against the people who got up this movement.

The first thing he wanted to do was to have his picture taken, and then to send Aunt Minnie a card saying, "Having good time, wish you were here." If he sent her one card like this he sent her a hundred. I said to him "Uncle Joe, don't you suppose Aunt Minnie knows by now you are having a good time and that you wish she were here? Why have you got to send her so many cards?"

"I like to torment her," he said. If ever a woman had right to sue a man for divorce on grounds of mental cruelty Aunt Minnie has. How she has put up with him all these years is something we could never understand.

The first thing he wanted to do was to see Senator George to get his money for the land which the Government is going to buy to distribute among the share croppers. "There is no need of their going anywhere else," Uncle Joe said. "I've got all the land they want."

He said Senator George wrote him some time ago that the Government was going to pass the Bankhead bill appropriating a billion dollars for this land. When I told him the bill hadn't been passed he seemed right impatient. He didn't want to be coming to Washington all the time, he said; might as well get everything done on this trip.

• • • •

It struck me as funny he could be so determined on this and yet not be able to make up his mind as to whether he wanted to go up in the Washington Monument.

"It looks mighty tall and slender," he said. You can imagine how I was on nerves' edge after a whole day going around to places like the Smithsonian Institution, the Unknown Soldier's Tomb, the National Cathedral and then we had to go all the way to Glen Echo so he could have his picture taken in an artificial automobile. He finally compromised on the Washington Monument trip by having his picture taken alongside of it. I had the fright of my life just as he was about to catch the 9 o'clock train. Free spender as of old, he had blown in all of his $275 crop benefits.

"I've gotta good mind," he said, "to stay up here until they buy my land."

Can Aguinaldo Recoup?

Filipino General Seeks Presidency Of Islands Despite Lack Of Running Mate And Badly Outdated Conceptions Of Existing Political And Economic Affairs.

By Vincente Albano Pacis.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Manila.

NERVED by the thought that what Emilio Aguinaldo has done Emilio Aguinaldo can do again, and apparently convinced that the Filipino people would rather have independence in three than in ten years, the generalissimo of the Philippine wars against Spain and the United States and President of the Philippine Republic which he himself proclaimed in Malolos, is a candidate for President of the Philippine Commonwealth.

Aguinaldo eventually gave up to the American forces when Gen. Funston captured him in the fastnesses of northern Luzon. Whether he will be more daring in politics or not remains to be seen, although he has already established a record for dogged persistency. To run for President he has to have a running mate to occupy the Vice Presidency if his ticket should win. Among the first steps he has had to take to realize his new ambition has therefore been to look for a man to play second fiddle under his banner. He has so far failed—but not discouraged.

The general first approached former Speaker Manuel Roxas, through emissaries, but the young and ambitious but wise statesman, though fallen in the graces of Quezon, against whom Aguinaldo must run for the Presidency, would have nothing to do with the veteran's candidacy. His refusal was quite positive and flat. Undismayed, friends of Aguinaldo next picked Juan Sumulong, former president of a defunct minority party, who has since joined the Quezon ranks. Don Juan, as he is called by his constituents, could not think of leaving the party in power after having been in its fold for only a little over a year and has just started to savor the honey of political victory. Another refusal was thus entered in the general's record.

But still undiscouraged, though rather upset, the Aguinaldo henchmen next turned to Senator Ruperto Montinola, also a former president of Sumulong's party, but who, in the great political split of 1933, when the first independence law was rejected by the Philippines, joined the group against Quezon. "I was never so mortified," Montinola later related the incident. "The Aguinaldo delegation came to my home but I nearly forgot the elementary requirements of courtesy and told my visitor to get out."

• • • •

IT IS now reported that Aguinaldo is considering Gregorio Aglipay, a veteran of the revolution, who was a former Catholic priest but who later founded the so-called Philippine Independence Church and is now its supreme bishop. Because of his religious influence, Aglipay has long been considered the uncrowned political emperor of several of the northern provinces where his church is well intrenched. Running with Aguinaldo may therefore give him the opportunity to play open politics. He is reported to be quite agreeable to the idea.

Aguinaldo's candidacy has given way to numerous appraisals of his political capital. His friends, of course, point to his having been head of the revolution, President of the first Philippine Republic, and a Filipino hero of some glamour. His enemies—and also some of his friends who want to save him from making a fool of himself—point out to the evident fact that, in present-day politics, Aguinaldo is a glaring anachronism.

Since Gen. Leonard Wood, who befriended him, placed him in the good graces of reactionary Americans, Aguinaldo has lost some of his sense of proportions, his critics believe. When Wood and Quezon parted ways and the latter coined his famous war cry, "Better a government like hell run by Filipinos than a government run like heaven by Americans," Gen. Aguinaldo emerged from an idyllic retirement and actively supported Wood. Wood's gratitude and that of his many friends in Manila and America have since converted the diminutive general in the eyes of Americans from the bandit that he was called in 1898-1900 to the foremost living Filipino. When friends told him that he was absolutely the best known and most respected Filipino in America, Quezon not forgotten, he took their comments to heart.

BUT, on the other hand, his public controversy with President Quezon, which inevitably became the second phase of the Wood-Quezon war, resulted in Aguinaldo's losing much of his local glamour and prestige. For Quezon actually knocked him down and dragged him out until most of his historical and heroic tinsels were worn out on the rough road of polemics. Today, to the Filipino popular mind, Aguinaldo is simply a has-been who does not quite realize his predicament.

His critics may be uncharitable but truthful when they state that Aguinaldo not only had no background and training before he was catapulted to national prominence when a suburb uprising which his brother had headed became a national movement and his brother died, but he also has failed to keep up with the progress of the Philippines. Aguinaldo himself has unwittingly given an illustration of this failure. In a banquet several years ago in which he was one of the speakers and his audience was made up of Americans, he read a speech prepared for him in Spanish, in which he explained his inability to talk English on the score that he had always expected America to leave the Philippines momentarily so that he had thought it useless to learn America's tongue.

Aguinaldo's failure to learn English, his enemies aver, is typical of his failure to learn the political and economic needs of the Philippines. He is obsessed, they declare, with the idea that the last three and a half decades of reconstruction are immaterial, that the work to be done for the country today is just a continuation of the work he did in 1898, and that 1898 and 1935 dovetail as if they had been pieces broken from each other.

• • • •

IN 1898, Aguinaldo brandished his sword and demanded absolute independence on the spot; today he advocates independence in three, not ten, years, regardless of the economic dislocations that must be minimized. In 1898 Aguinaldo had thousands of kampilans and a few rusty guns and cannons and he defied both Spain and the United States with them; today he believes that the same armaments could be polished up in order to keep out Japan from the islands. In 1899-1900, he was President of the Philippine Republic, so now he is convinced that he should again be the first President of the Philippine Commonwealth. His critics state that the intricacies of international trade, public finance and civic responsibility have never made their impressions in his mind. A hero they say, by stepping down from his pedestal, has become a returned Rip Van Winkle. They should add that while Rip Van Winkle's sleep lasted only 20 years, Gen. Aguinaldo's dormancy has been over three decades.

No Sense In Music

By

Wm. Lyon Phelps.

WHEN Browning published a series of eight volumes of poems in the six years preceding his marriage, he called them "Bells and Pomegranates." He thought everyone would immediately understand the significance of the title and nobody did. Finally he explained that by "Bells" he meant sound and by "pomegranates" he wanted sense; and that the two words together signified the union in good poetry of music and meat, or sound and sense.

A recent discussion on music by a famous musician leads me to ask my readers this question. Poetry can be mainly sound, like Poe's; or mainly sense, like Emerson's; and Shakespeare's poetry is surely a combination of ravishing sound with profound sense.

But is it possible for music to be anything but sound?

• • • •

I am led to these reflections by an address delivered before the Authors' Club in London by Sir Thomas Beecham, the famous opera conductor and composer.

As reported in the London Morning Post, he said: "Literature is fundamentally sense; music is entirely sound. There is no sense in music, although it is organized sound, and people who try to import sense into it make a great mistake."

At first sight this remark may appear to many readers to be itself entirely without sense; but on the contrary, it states a great truth that should be more generally recognized.

The greatest music can not be translated into words; the language of music and the language of words can not be really interchanged. Symphonic music immediately appeals to and is understood by our inmost emotional senses as a revelation of the inner meaning of life—that is, of the reality of pleasure and pain, joy and grief; but not of any particular pleasure or particular pain.

• • • •

The vast majority of operas are written to nonsensical words. In the case of Wagner, where the opera composer wrote his own words, Sir Thomas Beecham said: "Has anyone stopped to consider what sort of words they were? Wagner solved the problem by writing stuff which was absolutely unliterary."

The words to Schubert's songs are mainly sentimental mush, he went on to say; and some of the most popular song-tunes that set the whole world singing and whistling, were set to something that is not words at all, but rather like "She only answered ting-a-ling-a-ling."

"Literature now intrudes itself into music at every point, with fatal results. People rush into the concert room with a piece entitled 'Accident on the Railway' or 'Disasters at Sea'; yet if one listened without knowing the title, it would be impossible to know what the music meant."

No End of Books

Subtle Propaganda.

REVIEWING a book which discusses book-reviewing is very like that brand of baking powder which bears, on the can, a picture of a can of baking powder which bears a picture of a can—well, hold on. It is the involuted abyss itself.

But just see what I ran into on page 92 (author and title in a minute, please): "Present-day reviewing ranges from an extended critical essay by a scholar of authority to a 'notice' of three or four paragraphs turned out by a hack-writer. 'Notice' is the word that the editors and reviewers have for it (I beg pardon? I very rarely hear the word so used. For myself, I say 'piece,' 'squib,' or 'thingummy.' T. H.) . . It may be the production of a 'literary' aunt or niece of the country editor, who runs the book department of the agricultural weekly; or the compact, lively summary of an experienced journalist turning his hand to any odd job; or the magisterial pronouncement of self-conscious youth serving a novitiate in 'literary work;' or the thoughtful, balanced, responsive utteraance of a competent professional reviewer."

I may be unduly sensitive, but that sort of thing is always a facer to me. At least, I'm nobody's aunt.

• • • •

AND as if that weren't enough, the book goes on to define good reviewing. Spare me from repeating the generalities of accuracy, conciseness, good judgment, etc. They remind me too much that all we need to know is that Truth is Beauty. But shall we try it?

Miss Helen E. Haines (she gives a test for nonfiction: "What are the author's qualifications? special preparation for writing this book?" and there's not a line about her anywhere around the volume) has written a librarians' vade mecum which I admire. "Living With Books: the Art of Book Selection" (Columbia U. Press, $4) is an omnibus of bookish lore. Miss Haines (of course she's a librarian; this is the second volume of the "Columbia University Studies in Library Service") begins with the place of a library in a community; goes on to people's tastes in books; tells how to judge a book, what to use as book guides (from the massive bibliographical catalogues to the book sections of papers). Then she discusses the physical side of books, and the mechanics of the publishing trade, and the famous editions and series. The last generous half of this plump book takes up, dilates sensibly upon, and gives outstanding titles in such fields as biography, history, sociology, poetry, fiction, and so on.

The book is written for librarians who want to learn the range and criteria of books. But there is a wealth of value in it for all who are interested in books—from the lay but ambitious reader who wants to know the good, basic books on drama to the literary club member who has to annotate a book list, from the young man selecting his little personal library to the teacher trying to inculcate the book-loving habit.

And that's "Living With Books" in two paragraphs. And do I like them? My stars, no! I knew I was going to be thrown off my stride.

• • • •

HERE I wanted to talk about the observation that "women read more books than do men; men give more time to newspaper reading than do women; the unmarried are more interested in books than the married; though married people give more time to newspapers and magazines."

Or the fact that the "American Library Association Catalog" recorded these changes in proportions of publishing from 1904 to 1931—general works advanced from 2 to 4 per cent; sociology from 8 to 10 per cent, and fiction went down hill from 16.3 per cent to 9 per cent. And that's more interesting than it might appear.

It was worth a line or two to ramble around the point that our peak in book production occurred—in 1914 with 12,000 titles, never equaled since.

And there were all kinds of remarks to be made about the change in title of the same book in England and in America—as Hemingways "The Sun Also Rises" went over as "Fiesta," Hawthorne's "The Marble Faun" became "Transformation," and Van Loon's "Geography" became "The Home of Mankind," while the sea-change on a westward crossing made Richard Hughes' "High Wind in Jamaica" into "The Innocent Voyage," E. M. Delafield's "Challenge to Clarissa" into "House Party," and G. B. Stern's "Tents of Israel" into "The Matriarch." Room for detective work, says Miss Haines, and she's right.

And just to show you how the dull summary up above might receive you into thinking this book were a stodgy work of learning, let me hasten to correct it with a glimpse of Miss Haines' ever-present nimble observation. She's talking about indexes, routine things for the most part. But she found one that was anything else but—the index of Raymond Pearl's sharp little book on students' reading, "To Begin With." Sample entries: "Allah, piously mentioned;" "Homo sapiens, ridiculous animal;" "Music, the modesty of the author regarding his skill as a performer of," and, most amusing of all, "Uplift, subtle propaganda against"—with a page reference which includes the entire book.

Well, those are some of the things I wanted to chat about. Have I made plain enough my subtle "propaganda against uplift" in book-reviewing?

Streamlined Canal Boats Ply British Waterways

London (AP).—Britain's inland waterways or canals are gradually being brought up to date to enable them eventually to carry ten times the present traffic.

The authorities have started development schemes involving expenditure of several million pounds under which locks will be rebuilt, tunnels widened and general improvements undertaken.

Old horse-drawn barges will be replaced by streamlined electrically driven barges.

The Grand Union Canal Co., controlling 240 miles of waterways between London and the Midlands, has placed orders for 100 new vessels with a capacity of 55 tons each.

Professor to Observe Home Life of Termites

Chicago (AP).—Just to get better acquainted with a species of white ants, a University of Chicago professor plans to spend six months in the Panama Canal Zone.

He is Dr. Alfred E. Emerson, professor of zoology. During the months he and his wife and two children spend on Barros Colorado island in Gatun Lake, Dr. Emerson expects to make an intensive study of the termite insects, which he says have one of the most nearly perfect social organizations known.

Termites are related to the roach family. In his study, Dr. Emerson plans to analyze the effect of temperature changes, humidity and light upon the insects, and also will arrange battles between termite "soldiers" and other species.

Crop of Grandparents Is Large in Indiana

Columbia City, Ind. (U.P.).—Nancy Elaine, two-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Spann, has ten grandparents who are still living.

They are Mrs. Catherine Bowers, a great-great-grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Spitler, great-grandparents; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Spann, grandparents, all of near South Whitley, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Langohr, great-grandparents; Mrs. Mary M. Brown, great-grandmother, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Langohr, grandparents, all of near here.

Pied Piper Employed By Iowa Community

By the United Press.

Fort Madison, Iowa.—E. N. Averill, of Chicago, is Iowa's temporary pied piper.

Averill has been engaged by the Fort Madison city council to drive the rats out of the city.

Averill and his corps of assistants expect to make Fort Madison scot-free of rats within six weeks.

When the council hired Averill, it was specified that rats must not crawl away and die inside of houses, thus making them malodorous. Averill said his method makes the rodents crawl out in the open, and expire without any fuss, or inconvenience to householders.

Aspirants to Mayoralty Should Try Out Beards

Milwaukee (AP).—If you aspire to become mayor of this city, grow a beard.

Since the days of Solomon Juneau, clean shaven, who served as Milwaukee's first mayor from 1846 to 1847, only five of the 31 chief executives have been without hirsute adornment.

Twenty-one has worn beards, ranging from goatees and a chin fringe to the full whiskers in vogue in the nineties. Five, including Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, have preferred mustaches.

Midwest Floods Cost Farmers Heavy Losses

Kennett, Mo. (U.P.).—The spring floods in southern Missouri and northern Arkansas have caused damage estimated at more than $2,500,000 to property, crops and live stock.

The flood of the White River was estimated as having cost $500,000 and that of the St. Francis River, which broke through levees in 60 places, at $1,500,000.

Live stock and crop losses each were figured at $125,000,000.

Nebraska Communities May Own Utility Plants

Lincoln, Nebr. (U.P.).—The Nebraska Legislature, now hurrying toward adjournment, opened the door for expansion of public ownership of power utilities as one of its final acts.

The Howard-McGowan enabling act, permitting cities and villages to finance power plants or transmission systems by pledging future earnings, is believed certain to result in general acquisition of utility holdings by municipalities throughout the State.

The bill was forced through the Legislature under sponsorship of the Nebraska League of Municipalities, in the face of bitter opposition from a strong power lobby.

Shelter Belt Plantings Due in North Dakota

Bismarck, N. Dak. (AP).—Shelter belt plantings that in a few years will protect farmsteads from cold blasts of winter and heated winds of summer are to be set out on 404 farm locations in North Dakota soon.

The windbreaks will be planted in 49 counties under a demonstration program conducted cooperatively by the Agricultural College extension service and the State School of Forestry at Bottineau. It is planned to plant 176,891 trees.

George Calls His Committee On Holt Seating

Group to Decide Whether to Probe Rights of Senator-Elect.

Whether the United States Senate has the constitutional right to seat a 29-year-old Senator-elect, even after he reaches the legal age of a Senator, may be settled by the Senate once and for all.

Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Privileges and Elections Committee, has called a meeting of his group for Friday to determine whether to go into the question.

The seat of 29-year-old Senator-elect Rush D. Holt (Democrat), of West Virginia, hangs on their decision.

Counsel for former Senator Henry D. Hatfield (Republican), of West Virginia, defeated by Holt in the last West Virginia Senatorial elections, has filed a contest petition with the committee, challenging legality of the youth's election while he still was under the age of 30.

George declined to comment on the petition last night, pending a study of it. His committee will consider it in executive session, and decide whether to hold open hearings, he said.

Holt, who did not claim his seat when the Senate convened last January, said last night he will ask to be sworn after his next birthday, June 19.

"I have a clear right to the seat," he insisted. "If the committee decides to go into the case, I will present a brief setting forth ample precedents."

King's Doctor Strives to Save Lawrence's Life

Author's Skull Fractured, He Grows Weaker After Cycle Crash.

By the Associated Press.

Wool, Dorsetshire, England, May 14.—As desperate a fight as ever "Lawrence of Arabia" waged on the desert was fought today by the King's honorary surgeon to save the life of the famed war-time figure, his skull fractured in a motorcycle accident.

The military hospital at Bovington camp, where T. E. Shaw, known as Col. Lawrence, lies unconscious, announced that "it is now ascertained that Shaw has a fractured skull." A hospital attache said "his condition is very serious."

Lawrence took a turn for the worse, his physicians announced tonight after a lengthy consultation. His condition was termed "extremely critical" and he had still failed to regain consciousness.

Dr. Cairns, a specialist from a London hospital, said Lawrence's condition was too critical to permit an operation.

Thrown 130 Feet.

The authorities maintained a strict silence regarding the details of last night's accident. It was apparent that Shaw was traveling at a terrific speed when his vehicle shot around "Hellfire Corner" at Moreton Heath and collided with a 15-year-old cyclist with such a violent impact that Shaw was catapulted 130 feet.

Acquaintances of the mystic figure, the so-called British "Haroun al Raschid," recalled that he once crashed at 45 miles an hour while he was bringing some sausages back to the camp where he was "Aircraftsman Shaw." He also took a bad spill once at Highgate Hill and was known as a daredevil cyclist.

Marks on the roadway at the scene of the crash indicated that Shaw braked hard in a frantic effort to avoid running down the young cyclist.

Scene of Hardy's Novels.

The spot is in a densely wooded area known as Egdon Heath in Thomas Hardy's novels. It is not far from the cottage to which Shaw, a quiet-voiced man who left Oxford in 1907 to devote himself to archeology, retired recently after a glamorous and heroic military career.

Maj. Gen. J. W. West, honorary surgeon to King George, was in attendance.

The youth who was riding the bicycle, Albert Hargreaves, suffered from a concussion and was taken to the same hospital.

Tense Situation Is Believed Behind Adjournment on Eve of Hearings.

By the Associated Press.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, May 14.—A Senate investigation into the Administration of Gov. Paul Pearson was suddenly postponed today as an imposing array of witnesses and documents had been gathered for the start.

Senator Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, chairman of the Senatorial sub-committee, gave lack of time as reason for the postponement until October. He said the full Senate committee, headed by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, would come here in the fall.

Although no announcement was made in the courtroom of the tense situation in the Virgin Islands at present, it was evident that the adjournment was influenced by this, especially in view of recent inflammatory meetings.

Problems to Remain.

Edward Colgan, of Baltimore, counsel for the committee, announced investigators would remain here until fall. Senator Reynolds said he thought it would be unfair to proceed singly with evidence he believed the full committee should hear.

Colgan said adjournment was necessitated because probers had secured so much evidence that it would be impossible to present it before May 29, when Reynolds and others would have to leave.

The move is in no sense an abandonment, he said.

In February a Senate committee at Washington took steps to investigate charges that the Virgin Islands, under administration of Gov. Paul Pearson, was the abode of "an oppressed people under the American flag."

The Senate Territories Committee unanimously voted to recommend that the Senate authorize investigation of the charges of Paul Yates, former administrative assistant to the Governor, that the Governor's administration was "wasteful, extravagant, inefficient and tainted with corruption." He said Pearson's administration was "hateful and odious to the residents."

Pearson said he welcomed the investigation.

Yates had been dismissed four months earlier by an order signed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes. The Secretary at that time, October 11, 1934, declared he believed "the rest of my appointees are behaving."

Data Received Upon Court Work

Virginia Assembly Group Pushes Survey.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, May 14.—The committee appointed by the General Assembly to study redistricting of Virginia's judicial circuits met at the Capitol today and took under advisement data submitted by court attaches as to the work done in their respective jurisdictions.

The legislative group, of which Delegate R. E. Williams, of Buchanan County is chairman, discussed plans to meet again in conjunction with the sessions August 8, 9 and 10 of the Virginia Bar Association, which has a committee studying practically the same problem.

Among the data assembled by Chairman Williams' committee were reports, complete for 87 counties, on the number of criminal procedures, actions at law and chancery causes coming before the 34 circuit courts in the year September 1, 1933, to August 31, 1934.

He Said She Was 'Sweetest Girl,' So Jury Throws Out Balm Suit

Peer Wins Breach of Promise Action Brought by Angela Joyce.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 14.—A jury which listened to the court's charge that "a man doesn't promise to marry a woman by saying 'you're the sweetest girl I've ever met,'" today tossed out the heart balm suit of Angela Joyce against young Lord Revelstoke.

The charming young "Miss England of 1930," who was born Ivy Dawkins, must pay the costs.

Harold Davidson, unfrocked as rector of Stiffkey for immoral conduct in 1932, was among the group which expressed regrets to Miss Joyce.

"God bless you," he said, as he shook her hand warmly.

Banker Leaves With Wife.

Lord Revelstoke, wealthy banker whose letters to Miss Joyce in earlier days were described by the judge as "the incoherent vaporings of a boy of 19," left the court arm in arm with Lady Revelstoke.

The Old Bailey jury, which included three women, required but 30 minutes to reach a verdict for the handsome young peer.

The beauty contest winner had testified that as Rupert Baring the peer proposed to her almost innumerable times while he was at school in Cambridge. One of these moments arrived while the two were in her bedroom, she told the jury.

He Wasn't Interested.

Revelstoke testified that the only one who brought up the subject of a wedding ring was Miss Joyce. He said he always had replied that he wasn't interested.

The letters were read. In them Angela was described as "the supremest, sublimest, superbest girl in the world," as "the loveliest girl in the world," and as "the most wonderful girl in the world."

Rich Demands List Of 'Thieves' in House

By the Associated Press.

A demand that the House clerk make public a list of members who have been "stealing" typewriters was made to the House yesterday by Representative Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania.

He quoted testimony which South Trimble, clerk, gave to the Appropriations Committee, remarking that some members did not know the law and took Government-owned typewriters home with them when they were supposed to be kept in the House Office Buildings.

"South Trimble should tell the people of the country who are stealing these typewriters," he said. "We are all incriminated unless he makes public a list of the members who have stolen typewriters."

Representative Ludlow (Democrat), Indiana, interjected that "Trimble didn't insinuate that any members were thieves. He just said that some didn't know the law."

Defiant Senate Votes 9-Month NRA Extension

Clark Resolution Rushed Through With Only 30 Members Present.

put through a new NRA law would result in a fight lasting many weeks.

Senator Clark, author of the resolution, said that he believed NRA should be wiped out but that he considered the resolution the only practical solution at present. He said he would not only oppose a two-year extension bill in Congress but that he would oppose even sending such a bill to conference.

"I would rather let nature take its course after June 16," he said.

Senator La Follette declared that he believed it would be better to "let NRA expire than to pass this pusillanimous resolution."

"Under this resolution," he said, "NRA would be deader than a door nail."

Senator Huey Long said he would vote for the resolution "not because I am for NRA but because this resolution will gum it up."

Shipstead Move Beaten.

Senator Glass said he did not wish to have his vote for the resolution interpreted as a vote for the NRA. He said he had nothing to do with NRA in his business and that it had nothing to do with him.

NRA officials yesterday were inclined to agree with Senator Long that the best that could be expected under the resolution would be a "gumming up" of NRA. They said it would be impossible to rewrite codes within 30 days, that enforcement for a 9½-month period would be difficult and that collection of code assessments under a temporary arrangement would be particularly hard.

The only attempt in the Senate to amend the resolution was made by Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, who asked that open price filing be prohibited. His amendment was promptly voted down.

Future Sure, Says Richberg.

Richberg's talk was made before about 1,500 NRA employes assembled in the Commerce Department auditorium. It was explained that the meeting was intended only for higher NRA officials but that the crowd "just drifted in." It was explained that the fact that many NRA employes are attempting to "drift out" of the NRA through transfer to other departments had nothing to do with the meeting.

"The future of that which we have been trying to do here for the last two years is just as sure and certain as the future of government itself," he said.

"The idea that you can abandon efforts at cooperation and improvements in self-discipline and social discipline simply assumes that you are to abandon the onward march of civilization. So what we should be considering today in a wholly sane world is merely the improvement of the administrative machinery, and not an attack upon a fundamental concept which is so obviously sound that only a confused and muddled mind could think of attacking it."

Sees Jobs Permanent.

Intimating that temporary extension of NRA would kill the whole program, Richberg said advocates of this plan "remind me of the doctor who was betting he would be shown to be right in the autopsy."

He declared that "one form or another of legislative sanction is inevitable."

Richberg urged the NRA employes to look upon their work as permanent.

"If we are to play a part effectively in this work the organization itself must grow into a sense of permanence. This is one of the primary reasons, I might say, for the complete folly of an extension for a few months.

"It would be one of the most tragic things imaginable to government and to business to lose the experience and benefit of this organization and its personnel in the handling of these problems."

Richberg declared he believed the NRA organization to be loyal and held out the promise that efficient workers would be promoted from the ranks.

Typewriter Bared As New Evidence

the proffer was withdrawn. The defense counsel having objected to the introduction of this first document at the hearing, the State abandoned all evidence of a technical nature.

"The day after the defendants Lyddane and Boland were arrested, a typewriter formerly used at the Farmers' Banking & Trust Co., of Rockville, by the defendant Lyddane was impounded as State's evidence.

"The State expects to present evidence to the grand jury on Monday which will show that this typewriter wrote certain documents to the co-conspirators in this case."

Until her arrest, Mrs. Lyddane was employed as secretary to the president of the Farmers' anking & Trust Co.

From the time Mrs. Lyddane was arrested, her husband, "Slom," has stood by her, although at the preliminary hearing he testified that he knew she was "going around" with another man.

Mrs. Lyddane herself testified that she had been seeing Arthur Beall even after his wife had withdrawn the divorce suit.

'Ambush-Slaying' Trial Up Today

Morgan Goes Before Jury at Leonardtown.

By the Associated Press.

Leonardtown, Md., May 14.—Charles Henry Morgan, 22, is scheduled to go on trial in St. Marys County Circuit Court here tomorrow on a charge of slaying John Thomas, 50, Negro farmer.

Morgan was arrested last October, and, according to State's Attorney John H. T. Briscoe, has confessed he killed Thomas from ambush under orders of George Joy, his employer. Joy, according to Morgan's confession, threatened to kill him if he did not slay Thomas. Joy also has been charged with murder. He is at liberty under $5,000 bail.

Morgan was to have gone on trial in March, but the case was postponed when A. F. King, defense counsel, asked additional time so that Morgan could be examined by alienists.

Gulf's new Multi-sol process now brings you

A PREMIUM MOTOR OIL FOR 25¢

THE NEW GULF-LUBE

Again Gulf offers you a saving . . . Now you can get a premium oil at a popular price!

HAVE YOU ever wished for a premium motor oil—without a premium price . . . ?

Then—you are one of the thousands of motorists who will welcome this news enthusiastically . . . :

There is now a premium oil—with full premium oil qualities—that sells for only 25¢ a quart. It is the new Gulf-lube.

What makes Gulf-lube a premium oil?

For many months, Gulf chemists and technologists focussed their efforts on a newer, more efficient method of making motor oil.

Out of their efforts has come a giant new Gulf refinery unit, operating upon a new refining principle—the Multi-sol process. Newly-designed apparatus replaces older, cruder equipment. Chemical reactions, temperatures, pressures, are controlled with almost surgical precision.

And from this new process and new refinery comes the new Gulf-lube!

How the Multi-sol process works

Under this history-making new process, solvents of two opposite actions are used.

One action dissolves out the impurities in the crude oil—tars, gum and carbon-forming compounds—and settles them to the bottom of the extraction tanks. The other action selects the desirable parts of the oil and floats them to the top. This selected oil, is then "skimmed off," thoroughly de-waxed and filtered—to form the finest motor oil 25¢ ever bought!

What the new Gulf-lube brings you

Modern, high speed motors demand two all important things of an oil. Less tendency to oxidize or develop sludge. And less tendency to form carbon under the influences of heat.

The new Gulf-lube has both these qualities to a far higher degree than many premium oils! Nor is this all.

Gulf-lube has long had a reputation as "the high mileage motor oil." From Maine to Texas, it showed motorists they could drive a quart farther than any other 25¢ oil before that quart needed to be replaced!

And now, thanks to the Multi-sol process, Gulf-lube's already high mileage has been stepped up 20% to 25%!

Try just one filling!

We urge you to try this extraordinary new oil. Drain your worn oil, replace with the new Gulf-lube—and you'll notice a difference before you drive your first hundred miles.

You'll add less oil between drains. You'll get less carbon, less sludge—and your motor will get better protection than any other 25¢ oil in America could give it.

GULF REFINING CO.

No other 25¢ motor oil gives you all these quality points!

1. It is Multi-sol processed.
2. Its already high mileage has been stepped up 20% to 25%.
3. Highly resistant to oxidation—non-sludging . . . extra long life.
4. It has a high viscosity index—thins out less under heat . . . easy starting year-round. Thoroughly de-waxed.
5. Forms far less carbon.
6. High film strength—a pure mineral oil that will not corrode new alloy bearings.

THIS BOTTLE of milk shows what the Multi-sol process does for Gulf-lube. It separates the "cream" from the "milk." Selective solvents settle the impurities in the oil to the bottom, and float the desirable parts to the top. This "cream" or selected oil is then skimmed off. Gulf-lube is the only 25¢ oil made by this process.

SEE WHAT HAPPENS when a piece of ordinary glass is hit with a hammer. Now see what happens to a piece of shatterproof glass. That's the difference between a "brittle" oil and "shatterproof" oil—Gulf-lube. The former breaks under piston heat. The latter keeps its body and protects your motor.

Japan Defends Drive for U. S. Textiles Trade

Population Press Behind Competition, Nipponese Tell Tariff Board.

By the United Press.

Representatives of Japanese textile concerns yesterday began their defense against the demands of American producers that imports from Japan's cotton mills be stopped to protect this Nation's industry.

It was the first time in recent years that a large delegation of Japanese appeared before any Government agency. They were introduced by William Culbertson, former tariff commissioner and recently American Ambassador to Chile, as they testified before the Federal Tariff Commission, which was ordered by the Senate to undertake the investigation.

Charles Marshall, counsel for the United States Cotton Textile Institute, charged that an "unprecedented inflow" of Japanese bleached cotton goods was demoralizing American markets. He said Japanese imports to the United States last year exceeded those for the 12 previous years and that imports during the first three months of 1935, if continued, would surpass one-third of the total comparable domestic production.

Japanese representatives pointed out that despite heavy textile exports to the United States, Japan still had an unfavorable balance of trade with this country.

Reisuke Ishida, New York representative of the Mitsui house, said a Japanese economic mission was en route to Brazil to encourage reciprocal exchange of goods. He explained that this new source of cotton was particularly attractive in view of the many nations, including the United States, threatening to exclude Japanese goods.

He said population pressure was behind Japan's drive for foreign markets, that the island empire's home soil would not support a larger population while most foreign nations had closed their doors on allowing Japanese to settle there.

"The only remaining way for us to survive is to manufacture goods and sell them to feed our people," Ishida said.

Mooney Loses Again But Plans New Move

San Francisco, May 14 (AP).—Thomas J. Mooney, convicted preparedness day bomber, lost again today in his protracted fight for freedom, but his attorneys immediately began plans for further court action.

George T. Davis, of Mooney's legal staff, announced filing of an original writ in the State Supreme Court would be undertaken soon.

The State District Court of Appeals denied a writ of habeas corpus today. The majority opinion quoted the previous ruling of the California Supreme Court that the prisoner's release could come only through a pardon from the Governor.

The dissenting opinion of Judge D. A. Cashin held he believed Mooney "was entitled to release."

Maryland League Backs Ban on Liquor Ads

Baltimore, May 14 (AP).—The board of trustees of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League today adopted a resolution favoring passage of the Capper bill in the United States Senate to prohibit the advertising of intoxicating liquors.

The resolution stated that the Anti-Saloon League would "bring every influence possible to bear to secure the enactment of the Capper bill" and of similar measures in the various States. George W. Crabbe was elected superintendent of the league for the nineteenth time.

Snakes' Death Battle Watched by Crowds

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 14.—Found in deadly combat, a huge blacksnake and a copperhead were brought into an arena at Keedysville yesterday to complete the battle while crowds looked on.

Ray Valentine found the snakes fighting while hunting mushrooms. The blacksnake had seized its adversary back of the head, preventing it from striking. In this position Valentine placed them in an arena. Later the copperhead was killed and the blacksnake, nonpoisonous and a destroyer of rodents, was released.

Anti-Bet Bill Backed by Jury In Hagerstown

Telegram Sent to Nice Asking Him to Sign Measure.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 14.—The May grand jury here late today sent a telegram to Gov. Harry W. Nice, asking him to sign the anti-bookmaking bill enacted by the last Legislature. The telegram said a resolution it had adopted was being mailed to him.

The resolution condemning bookmaking was unanimously adopted by the grand jury. It called attention to the growth of race track betting here and pointed out the demoralizing influence of such establishments.

"The evil has become so widespread and notorious that an aroused public opinion demands its suppression," the resolution stated.

"We believe that the considered and responsible opinion of the people of Hagerstown and Washington County is in favor of legislation immediately outlawing places kept for betting on horse races and that only those persons directly interested because of personal profit and those other peculiar persons in the community in alliance with the underworld for pecuniary advantages to themselves, favor their continuation."

The resolution followed a charge made yesterday by Judge Frank G. Wagaman, in which he pointed out the growth of gambling here and called upon members of the grand jury, if they so desired, to pass and send to the Governor a resolution showing the sentiment of those charged with maintaining peace and good order.

Clarke Sending 2 Boyce Pupils To Spell Here

Area Finals of National Bee Open Saturday in New Museum.

Two pupils from Boyce Agricultural High School will represent Clarke County in the area finals of the National Spelling Bee in Washington Saturday morning. David Levi won first place and Ethel Vorous second in the match at Berryville Saturday. Both are eighth grade pupils in the school, of which Miss Eva D. Massey is principal.

Archie F. Robertson, superintendent of schools, presided at the Clarke County contest. Miss Rose McDonald called the words and the judges were Edward McC. Williams and McKay Smith.

Only two more counties are to be heard from. On Saturday all first and second place county winners will meet in the New National Museum in Washington to compete for the championship of Maryland and Virginia. Pictures of the contestants will appear in Friday's Washington Post.

The Post will award a 12-volume set of the Encyclopedia Britannica Junior to the champion of the area, and a four-volume Champlin's Young Folks' Cyclopedia for second place. In addition to receiving Britannica Junior, the winner of this match will advance to the National Spelling Bee, where he or she will compete against champions of other parts of the United States for $1,750 in cash prizes. The National Spelling Bee also will be held in the museum, and both matches will be broadcast over Station WJSV.

Since more than 50 contestants will take part in the area match this Saturday, it can be broadcast only in part. It will go on the air from 10:30 to 11 a. m. to give every contestant a chance to be heard by friends at home. The latter part of the match will be broadcast from 2 to 3 p. m.

The final contest, for the national championship, will be broadcast from the same station on Tuesday, May 28, at 11:45 a. m.

Road Board Employes Fete Retiring Engineer

Baltimore, May 14 (AP).—Employes of the State roads commission surprised Harry D. Williar, retiring chief engineer, with gifts and a dinner today. Williar, a Democrat, wound up his affairs with the commission after 20 years' service. He will be succeeded tomorrow by Nathan L. Smith, acting chairman of the commission, who is a Republican.

Gov. Nice will induct the new State roads commission into office tomorrow at informal ceremonies. Dr. Homer E. Tabler is to be the new chairman, and C. Nice Wilkinson, Republican, and Frank F. Luthardt, Democrat, members.

Henry Johnson, Fish Hatchery Expert, Is Dead

Served as Chief Clerk of Maryland Commission Since 1916.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Md., May 14.—Henry Herbert Johnson, chief clerk of the Maryland Conservation Commission since its organization here in 1916, died at his home today.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Clyde L. Johnson, and three daughters, Mrs. Milton C. Greer, jr., Mrs. J. Wilson Odgers and Miss Ruth M. Johnson, all of Baltimore.

Mr. Johnson was regarded as an authority on conservation, Commissioner Swepson Earle said, particularly fresh water fish hatcheries and the oyster industry.

Born 54 years ago in Dorchester County, Mr. Johnson attended the University of Maryland, where he obtained his legal training, and became associated with conservation work through the old Fisheries Board in 1912. He had followed it closely until the time of his death.

Roofs in Order As Night Clubs Close Seasons

Powhatan and Arlington to Open Summer Program in Near Future.

By Kay Ware.

Night clubs, like day-old corsages, droop, wither and die as the weather gets warmer. One by one the indoor places prepare to move to roofs (if they can find one); others consult the budget and figure out the cost of an air-cooling system (if they haven't one already). And the night clubbing public buys white linens and fluffy organdies and prepares for openings—almost as exciting as formal openings in the fall.

The two most important roof openings in the near future are the Powhatan and Arlington hotels. Pete Macias closes up his Heigh-Ho nest Saturday—and that means the tap room too—takes a two weeks' vacation and starts off the Powhatan season on May 31. Club Habana's season closes on the same Saturday. The Arlington roof opens on May 29.

The Troika has a funny time of it. They had planned to close the first of this month, but folks would come back and demand blini, so the door remained ajar and the "welcome" mat won't be pulled in until the middle of June.

As for the entertainment possibilities of these three spots—Heigh-Ho is featuring Helen Ault, young singer; Habana's big moments are Susan Hall and Walter Doe, dance team, and Billy McIntyre, the clever impersonator who had such a long run last winter. Moe Baer and his boys, Ralph Hawkins (the father of a son, by the way) and Jimmy Bright add their bit.

Troika is staging a new skit all about a drunk, a peasant girl and a park bench. Players: Bolshakoff and Larinova, the dance team, and Anna Sablukova, the contralto.

La Paree is going around in circles with three dance teams, and the main problem is to keep them all identified. All because each member of each team takes it upon himself or herself to do solos as well. The teams: The Digitanos (ah, you've seen them before — and where?) York and Lewis and Brett and Young. Oh yes, and Amelia Gilmore does acrobatic numbers.

Don't miss the big finale with Mr. Digitano whirling Mrs. D. around the edge of the floor, just out of reach of the patron's head.

New personality to be seen at the Lotus—Zona Hall, a lyric soprano and radio star, who sings with Prince Obolensky's Chanters on Town Hall program. If you like the finale of the show be sure to thank Al Norton. He wrote it. Gilbert and Fleurette, dance team, have been held over another week. Bill Strickland and Capitolians supply the music.

Potomac River line continues its cruises, rain or moon. The Steamer Potomac leaves Sixth and Water street dock at 8:45 p. m. for a three-hour cruise. Sundays bring Arthur Godfrey and his orchestra, sailing at the same time. A special Sunday afternoon cruise leaves at 3 p. m.

Margaret Ward, stately contralto from South Dakota, and Albert Davis, Philadelphia baritone, happened in as the guests of Mrs. Florence Vining, Federal Housing executive, and Stanley Rayfield, of London, England.

Mr. Rayfield, a pianist, persuaded the two singers to do something, and without benefit of rehearsal they proceeded to sing "My Hero," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" and "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," accompanied by the Paradise Islanders. The latter, Hi-Hat's regular entertainers, opened their eyes in amazement at the quality of the singing while the entire crowd of guests applauded with gusto.

Charles Opunui, of the Islanders, has a new arrangement of "About a Quarter to Nine" for steel guitar.

The Spanish and Latin-American diplomatic sets take a great interest in Senorita Maria Tover, niece of former Cuban President de Cespedes, who is making a debut as a professional dancer at the Madrillon this week. Her partner is Carlos de Vega.

This pair offer both solo and duo numbers. Especially striking is the provocative rumba by Miss Tover, also a beautiful salon tango. Gypsy dances, the pregon, malaguena, the Portuguese fado and other authentic dances are also presented.

Leon Brusiloff's Brusiloffians have been augmented by Violinist Casenio Ralon and Bass Player Charles Hellinger for the period of the Tover-de Vega engagement.

Shoreham show: Ramon and Ruth portray the dances of the Far East and of Spain and Cuba while wearing the native costumes; Antonio Rossitto, tenor from the Chicago Civic Opera, is making his Washington debut this week; Sylvia Brown presents acrobatic and rhythm tap dances.

Visiting Nurses Seek Volunteer Workers

An appeal for volunteer workers to prepare surgical dressings for the Instructive Visiting Nurse Society was made yesterday at the regular meeting of the board of directors. Mrs. John W. Davidge, second vice president, presided, and reports were read by Joshua Evans, jr., Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, and Mrs. Charles B. Crawford. Although 102 volunteers have been working on surgical dressings, the summer supply has not been made up, Mrs. Crawford said in her appeal for additional workers.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

New York, May 14.

The Dawn Patrol.

The weather-beaten men who make their office in New York Harbor are tremendously excited over the impending arrival of the giant S. S. Normandie. To find a broadway simile, the Normandie arrival is to the harbor folk what a Ziegfeld-Sam Harris-Noel Coward show would be to the Dawn Patrol. Capt. Tony Huseby, Norwegian pilot of the Moran fleet of tugs, and of the canniest watermen in the business, upon whose shoulders will fall the task of berthing the giant French liner, already has made his calculations. He will assign between 12 and 14 tugs to the job, and standing on the bridge of the Normandie, his shrill bos'n's whistle will direct each of the tugs where to apply its power to best advantage. On the trip up the bay from Quarantine, Huseby, aboard the Normandie, will decide how best to handle her, just as a boxer might decide from the first few rounds of a fight how to handle an opponent. The boxer's judgment will be studied and criticized by the experts in the working press section; Huseby's judgment, if it is at fault, will be studied and criticized by the pilots and tug captains of every port along the Atlantic seaboard, for the arrival of the Normandie is nothing less than an event.

• • • •

Accompanied by my good friend, Jeff Brophy, I went down to Pier 54 on Friday night. The S. S. Berengaria was sailing, and the Moran Towing Co. had granted permission for us to board Capt. Nelson's tug and see how the Berengaria was swung around in midstream and pointed for Europe. It was really a night for writing. A slice of moon, a portion of lemon pie on a plate of blue, hung in the sky over the Jersey shore. As we waited on the sturdy tug, the S. S. Bremen came charging down the Hudson with all the compact grace of an Omaha in full Preakness stride. It was a few minutes before 1 a. m., but the Bremen was a flood of lights, each porthole spilling yellow illumination on the water. A few minutes later, we cast off our lines and crept around to the port side of the Berengaria. You never realize the bulk of these ocean greyhounds until you look at one from the deck of a tugboat. Capt. Nelson moved in until the nose of the tug pressed against the steel bow of the huge Cunarder. Suddenly there came an iron growl from the belly of the giant, and the ship started moving out to midstream. Like a bulldog clinging to the throat of a St. Bernard, the tug moved with it, nose to bow. In midstream, Nelson signaled for greater power. The planks of the tug groaned as the sturdy little boat really went to work. In five minutes, the Berengaria was pointed downstream, and we turned around and went back to the pier, the night's work completed.

• • • •

In docking the Normandie, new colossus of the high seas, Huseby's chief task will be to keep it off the dock as his fleet of tugs berth it. The friction of a huge ship rubbing against a dock can best be compared to the friction of two pieces of wood. If the Normandie is berthed faultily, or if the tide swings it out of tug control, that portion of the dock which it touches instantly will become a smoldering, smoky furnace. Men with pails of water will have to drown out the heat and fire created by the friction. I asked Capt. Nelson if he thought Huseby would do a good job. He leaned out of the glassed-in bridge, spat expertly into the wind, and said: "Sonny, don't you lose any sleep about it. He could land that boat on the roof of the Holland Tunnel." And he spat again. I guess this Capt. Huseby must be quite a man!

For the first time in six years, we are moving, and ladies and gentlemen, you can have it. As you are about to sit down, a man snatches a chair from under you and another one seizes upon the typewriter. You look for a reference book and learn that it has just been taken away in a trunk. It's an awful experience. In despair, you move bag and baggage to Gregory Taylor's chateau for six days. I guess there isn't enough gypsy in me. I don't like to move. I'm the kind of a guy that likes to stay in a rut, I guess.

Col. Cooper Ill In Courtroom; May Delay Trial

Stricken in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday, Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the Commercial National Bank, now awaiting trial in the District Supreme Court on a charge of misapplying funds of the bank, was a patient last night in Garfield Hospital. His condition was described as "undetermined."

Col. Cooper appeared in court to hear arguments in a case in which his bank was interested. In the midst of the hearing he complained of violent pains in his abdomen, and he was escorted to the balcony of the building by attaches.

Lapsing into unconsciousness, Col. Cooper was removed to the hospital. He was examined by his personal physicians who said they were unable to tell whether he had suffered an attack of acute indigestion or a heart attack.

The banker is scheduled to appear in the District Supreme Court today to answer the charge of misapplying thousands of dollars of the bank's funds. It is probable now his trial will be postponed indefinitely.

Cinema Stars In Theft List

Arrests in $500,000 Ring Reveal Wholesale Robbery Plot.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, May 14.—Names and addresses of prominent motion picture actors and actresses were found today in a booklet on the person of one of five suspects arrested in what police said was the breaking up of a ring that had looted fashionable residences of $500,000 in gems and furs during the past six months.

The movie stars apparently had been marked as future victims, police said.

The arrests were made at various addresses last Friday.

The five suspects, one a woman, were held incommunicado until today. They were booked on suspicion of burglary and suspicion of conspiracy to commit burglary under the names of Mrs. Frances Krug, 38; Steafen Gonachian, 45; Adam Rejy, 28; John Rankin, 34, and Joseph F. Messina, 29.

Police said the $500,000 loot came from mansions in the Wilshire, Hollywood and West Los Angeles residential districts, and included, in addition to the jewelery and furs, clothing and furnishings.

$5,000 Willed to Horses Upheld by Kansas Court

Olathe, Kans., May 14 (AP).—The will of De Forrest Piazzek, who bequeathed $5,000 to a team of 22-year-old horses, stands.

Relatives' contentions the wealthy former president of the Kansas City Board of Trade was incompetent when the will was drawn shortly before his death in 1933, were overruled by Judge G. A. Roberds. The horses are living in luxury on a farm near Stanley, Kans.

Rome, May 14 (U.P.).—Italy tonight appointed two members of the conciliation commission to meet with Abyssinian delegates. They are Count Luigi Ladrovando-Marescotti and Grand Officer Raffaele Montagna, both diplomats of long service.

Assailant Shielded By Union Leader

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Clyde Osterberg, stormy petrel of Chicago Motion Picture Operators' Union affairs, was near death tonight, but he refused with a shake of bandage-swathed head to tell who shot him.

An anxious group gathered about his bed at Cook County Hospital. They sought the identity of the men who fired four bullets into his head and body in the latest outbreak in the fight for control of the operators.

"Sure, I know who did it," Osterberg told Capt. John Stege and Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty.

"Who?" they asked.

"Forget about it," he replied.

But authorities believed they knew why he was attacked for the second time in two weeks. They reported they had learned he attempted o place members of the independent union he formed in 1933 in theaters at wages below those demanded by the parent organization.

Capt. John Norton sought George Hall, bodyguard who was with Osterberg when he was wounded last night, and George Brown, head of the Chicago Motion Picture Operators' Union. He wanted to question them.

22 Organizations Ask Gas Tax Ban

Twenty-two national organizations yesterday jointly petitioned the President and Congress to discontinue excise taxes on gasoline, automobiles, parts, tires, oils and other products used in motor transportation.

Legislatures of 21 States have memorialized Congress, by action of both legislative branches in each case, to eliminate the Federal tax on gasoline. Exhibits attached to the petition also show more than 200 national, State and local organizations have lodged formal protests against reenactment of the Federal gasoline tax provisions.

Mrs. Garner Attends Fete At Lee House

Mrs. Hawes Hostess at Stratford Hall, Where General Was Born.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Mrs. John Nance Garner, wife of the Vice President, and a large group of distinguished women motored through the beautiful Virginia countryside to Stratford Hall, in Westmoreland County, yesterday morning to attend the luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Garner by the Senate Ladies' Luncheon Club. Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, wife of former Senator Hawes, of Missouri, was hostess.

The old plantation, birthplace of Robert E. Lee has been restored almost to its original beauty by the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, and is now one of the show places of Virginia. The fathers of our country, and those men who came shortly after them, surely picked the most beautiful sites for their homes; Mount Vernon, looking up and down the broad Potomac from its height of rolling lawns; Monticello, high on its mountain, surveying the valleys below, and Stratford, looking toward the mountains, from tree-shaded gardens.

Directors Assist Hostess.

Mrs. Hawes received her guests yesterday in the recently restored great hall of the historic mansion, which was also the birthplace of the general's illustrious kinsman, Richard Henry Lee, President of the Congress of 1785, and signer of the Declaration of Independence. Assisting Mrs. Hawes were other directors of Stratford, Mrs. H. Snowden Marshall, of New York and Charleston, S. C.; Mrs. David Roberts, of Alabama; Mrs. William N. Fain, of New York and Greenwich, Conn.; Mrs. Granville G. Valentine and Mrs. Charles E. Bolling, of Richmond; Mrs. B. F. Cheatham and Gen. Cheatham, former Quartermaster of the Army, and now resident superintendent of Stratford.

Following an inspection of the changes and improvements which have been made in the mansion and grounds since the last visit of the members of the luncheon club, the ladies were served luncheon in what, 200 years ago, was the "Under Room Office" of the builder of Stratford, Col. Thomas Lee, president and commander in chief of the Colony of Virginia. The table decorations were of the blossoms from the flowering trees of the 1,100-acre plantation.

Works for Shrine 6 Years.

As a member of the board of directors of the Robert E. Lee Memorial Foundation, Mrs. Hawes has been associated with the making of this national shrine for six years. This is the second visit of the Senate ladies' group. Their first visit, nearly two years ago, also marked the occasion of the coming to Stratford of Mrs. Roosevelt. Yesterday's meeting centered around the visit of Mrs. Garner, Mrs. Cordell Hull, Mrs. Claude Swanson and other members of the club.

Texas, within the past six months, has taken a notable part in the Stratford restoration work, under the direction of Mrs. Lee Davis, of Waco. Mrs. Morris Sheppard and Mrs. Tom Connally also represented their State yesterday at Stratford.

Other Representatives.

Representing other States were Mrs. Hugo L. Black, Alabama; Mrs. Fred H. Brown and Mrs. Henry W. Keyes, New Hampshire; Mrs. William Cabell Bruce and Mrs. George L. Radcliffe, Maryland; Mrs. Bennett C. Clark and Mrs. Harry S. Truman, Missouri; Mrs. Peter G. Gerry and Mrs. Jesse H. Metcalf, Rhode Island; Mrs. Pat Harrison, Mississippi; Mrs. Daniel O. Hastings, Delaware; Miss Holt, West Virginia; Mrs. Hiram W. Johnson, California; Mrs. A. Harry Moore, New Jersey; Mrs. John H. Overton, Louisiana; Mrs. Rice Means, Mrs. A. C. Stanley, Mrs. Robert L. Taylor, Mrs. John M. Robinson, Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett, Mrs. Nathaniel Dial and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, Washington, D. C. Others present were Mrs. Alva B. Adams, Mrs. William E. Borah, Mrs. William J. Bulow, Mrs. Edward R. Burke, Mrs. Marcus A. Coolidge, Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, Mrs. Vic Donahey, Miss Gibson, Mrs. Thomas P. Gore, Mrs. Carl A. Hatch, Mrs. Carl Hayden, Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. Robert M. La Follette, jr., Mrs. Pat McCarran, Mrs. Sherman Minton, Mrs. A. Harry Moore, Mrs. Gerald P. Nye, Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Mrs. Key Pittman, Mrs. James P. Pope, Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas, Mrs. Elmer Thomas, Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, Mrs. Frederick Van Nuys, Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Mrs. Wallace H. White, jr.

Hubert Works Are Hosts At Mayflower Dinner

Dr. and Mrs. Hubert Work, of Englewood, Colo., who have been at the Mayflower for ten days, entertained guests at dinner at the hotel last night. They will attend the banquet tonight of the American Psychiatric Association, of which Dr. Work is a past president. They will leave for Philadelphia tomorrow and before returning West will spend some time in New York and Atlantic City.

Graysons' Home Will Be Opened To Aid Scholars

Benefit to Be Held Today With D. C. Society in Attendance.

Mrs. Grayson, wife of Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, is opening her home and garden this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock, for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the National Capital Division of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association. Mrs. Otto L. Veerhoff is president of the National Capital Division, and Mrs. Grayson is chairman of the scholarship committee which aims this year to give short-course scholarships to rural women in each State of this division.

Music will be furnished during the afternoon by two boys, John Darby Bauman, jr., and Timothy Pasma, with their accordion and guitar. At 5 o'clock Mrs. H. Hays Mirkil will appear in costume and will talk on "Rural Women in Albania." There will be an exhibit of garden furniture and farm women's products. Tea will be served by the ladies of the Farm Women's Market of Montgomery County, assisted by 4-H Club girls under the direction of Miss Gertrude Warren.

In case of rain, the party will be held tomorrow.

Among those who will attend are Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, jr., Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Charles L. McNary, Mrs. Raymond A. Dancing Added For Younger Set At Country Fair

Platform Being Erected at St. Gertrude's School for Event May 27.

As an attraction for the younger crowd, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, chairman of the Country Fair, to be held at St. Gertrude's School of Arts and Crafts, May 27, is having a large platform erected on the school grounds for dancing. An orchestra has been engaged and members of the junior committee, of which Senorita Chita Arguello is chairman, will be in charge of this feature.

In addition, the committee will present Marian Venable, dancer, who will give solo numbers in addition to Johann Straus' "Blue Danube" ballet with a group of her pupils.

The book committee was active last week, many well-known authors having contributed autographed copies of their books. President Roosevelt has given a copy of his book "On Our Way," and Mrs. Alice Longworth has promised "Crowded Hours" as her contribution. To date Mrs. John Franklin Carter, Mrs. Joseph O'Mahoney, Mme. Prochnik, Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mrs. John Eckert, Mrs. Minna S. Adams, Miss Engracia Freyer and Miss Marie McIntyre have collected a small "library."

One of the most charming booths will be in charge of Mme. Saito, wife of the Ambassador of Japan, who, with the ladies of the embassy, will preside over a tea house where tea and cakes will be served native style.

Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, wife of the Ambassador of Belgium, Mrs. Marvin McIntyre, Mrs. Joseph Frederick Healey, Mrs. Leigh Palmer, Miss Carol Grosvenor, Miss Eleanor O'Donohue, Miss Polly Foote, Miss Junia Culbertson, and Miss Eleanor de With, daughter of the Minister of the Netherlands and Mme. de With, will conduct a flower mart where all varieties of garden flowers and small plants, donated from some of the most beautiful gardens here, will be on sale.

New Mask Kit Now Available For Home Use

Two Treatments a Month Recommended Through the Summer.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

NOTHING gives the skin a cleaner, fresher look than a mask treatment. Nothing so quickly erases the myriad of fatigue lines and takes away the muddy sallowness which so often obscures a fair complexion.

Hundreds of women, however, hesitate because of budget limitations to invest in expensive mask treatments. It is these women who should greet enthusiastically the appearance of a small mask kit which enables them to have six treatments at home. Of course they must play the parts of beauty operators themselves, but the kit is so complete and the mask so easy to apply they'll find it more fun than bother.

The kit includes a greaseless liquid cleansing preparation blended of vegetable oils. This quickly removes stale make-up and surplus oil so that no sooner is it applied than the skin already looks fresher and younger.

The mask comes in powdered form. This is mixed with water and smeared over the face where it remains until it is quite dry. Because of the medicinal properties of the powder it purges the pores of extraneous matter and goes a long way toward healing pimples. After you remove it your skin feels infinitely soothed and looks years younger.

Many women have found that this facial treatment agrees remarkably well with their skins while other treatments have irritated it and left it blotchy. Undoubtedly this is because the preparations used are pure and especially adapted to delicate skins.

Those of you whose skin seems dry all winter only to take on an oily aspect with coming of warm weather will be glad to learn that the masks tend to cut this surplus oil in the skin and the cleansing liquid used with the mask in no way accentuates oiliness.

The kit is especially attractive to women who are going to have a summer of travel and who appreciate the necessity of giving strict care to the skin under trying conditions.

By giving yourself two mask treatments a month in the summer months you'll find that your skin will retain its clear spring freshness.

"But what about us," exclaim those women whose skins continue to be dry and scaly, come winter or summer. "If we used masks so frequently our skins would literally shrivel!" That is a long standing fallacy. While masks do tend to dry the skin at the time, if they are followed by a good rich cream they are in no way abnormally drying.

However, these women with dry skins should certainly hear about a certain creamy liquid prepared by a well-known New York doctor especially for skins which lack sufficient oil.

This dry skin boon is highly recommended for use during the summer. Often the delicate tissues are so dried out by overexposure to the sun that fall finds many women with coarse, scaly and even wrinkled skin because of lack of care.

While this creamy liquid is not exactly given away, it scarcely can be called expensive. Just the veriest drop of it spreads over the entire face. Because of this a small-sized bottle easily will see you through the season.

An Extra Stiff Brush.

An unusually fine hair and scalp brush, used and indorsed by many professional hairdressers and scalp specialists, is sold at a certain downtown store for a very special price of $1.25!

These brushes are shaped to enable you to roll them through the thickest hair with an easy swing. The extra stiff board bristles penetrate through the hair thickness to the scalp and serve not only to keep the scalp stimulated but clean as well.

Official's Wife Credits Her Success In Writing to Persistence and Work

Courses Based on Fixed Rules Disapproved by Olga Moore.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

A DESCRIPTION of Olga Moore could be used for the heroine in a modren short story. In fact, the appearance of this slender, attractive young woman with blue eyes, dark hair and a puckish sense of humor would be in keeping with many things—except the proverbial conception of an author. Yet the June issue of a certain widely read woman's magazine carries one of the many stories Miss Moore has sold to "the big slicks."

The wife of Dr. Carl F. Arnold, assistant general counsel of the Federal Communications Commission, Miss Moore recently moved to Washington. Her husband is on leave of absence from the University of Wyoming, where he was dean of the law school.

Yesterday at her apartment Miss Moore was asked to bring out her bag of writing tricks, to reveal what short cuts she had found to crashing big-paying magazine markets when many established professional writers had drowned in a flood of rejections slips during the depression.

Persistence and Hard Work.

An answer covering all that was a large order. But as soon as the flicker of a smile lifted the corners of her mouth and spread over her face, it was evident Olga Moore was used to just such questions. Furthermore, it was soon apparent here was one successful writer who didn't pretend her work was the fruit of sheer genius, "but rather persistent effort; in other words, tenacity of purpose and hard work."

After protesting the idea she had really "arrived" as a writer, she modestly mentioned some of the milestones in her progress thus far.

Born in Wyoming, she spent much of her life in her native State. Her first literary effort ("a sort of fairy story that was pretty terrible") found a market in the home-town newspaper, thus making her an embryo fiction writer and a budding journalist almost overnight. "From then on," she smiled, "my fate was sealed. I was virtually coerced, by my relatives, to select writing as my career. Eventually I got used to the idea."

A few years later, after she was graduated from college, the "journalistic bud" became a full-blown blossom; Olga Moore was writing advice to the lovelorn on a newspaper in Sheridan, Wyo. From there she went to the staff of the Denver Post and subsequently went to Boston, where she continued journalistic work.

The training she got in working out love problems for others (on her first newspaper job) came in particularly handy when she turned exclusively to writing fiction.

"But breaking into the magazines, although I had a good agent, wasn't an easy matter by any means," she admitted. "And even now when I write a story, I'm not sure any editor will like it."

The fact remains, however, that so far, plenty of editors have liked her stories to the tune of fat checks and choice space in their magazines. Her list of sales in recent years would make many "big names" blink their eyes and check up to find where they are slipping.

Law students at the University of Wyoming knew this attractive young woman as "the dean's wife." Readers of popular magazines are familiar with her stories, written under the name of Olga Moore. In Washington she will be known as Mrs. Carl F. Arnold, wife of the recently appointed assistant to the counsel of the Federal Communications Commission.

How had she achieved success as a writer so soon, at an age when most writers are just beginning to cut their literary teeth? Did she take a course in writing? Or did she, like many persons, look askance at methods whereby authorship is allegedly taught?

"Yes," she replied quickly in answer to both queries. Then she explained why she gave the same answer to seemingly contradictory questions.

"I don't approve of the average writing course where rules are set down and religiously followed," she said. "Yet I've taken one course in writing five times."

It differed from most courses, she explained, in that no time was spent on studying technique. "It was merely a class in criticism," she said. "Each pupil wrote his stories in his own way, not bothering about commercial formulas, 'slanting' and rules of plot building. When a story was finished, the instructor pointed out the weak spots in the narrative, gave suggestions for improvement, and advised necessary revisions. This, I believe, is the best method of helping any would-be writer."

She doesn't worry, even now, about writing her stories by formula, nor about "slanting" her work toward any market. But there are some principles she follows in turning out her stories. First, she gathers her material from familiar sources. Most of her narratives are set in the West because she knows that part of the country best. And although she enjoys reading, she gets her plots and her characters straight from life as she observes it, rather than from another writer's interpretation of life.

Employs Simple Themes.

Convinced that most readers want to be entertained, she weaves her narratives around simple love themes, sprinkles light dialogue lavishly through her stories and works hard to make her stories amusing. Occasionally, however, she essays a more serious theme and works it out "against all the rules most editors observe." She did this once, and then, against the advice of one of her best critics, sent the story out. On the first trip it sold to the Saturday Evening Post.

In contrast to many other successful writers, Miss Moore doesn't keep regular working hours and doesn't require a daily stint from her pen. She sandwiches her writing in between keeping house and entertaining her friends. And she doesn't carry a notebook in order to jot down precious ideas lest she lose them. "Even in my college days I never got the note-taking habit," she said, "and now if anything impresses me enough I can keep it in my head until it goes on paper."

She confesses she "works very hard" on her stories, but she obviously doesn't take either herself or her writing too seriously. Her blue eyes twinkled as she recounted instances when stories had come back with amazing regularity, escorted by rejection slips.

"So you see I'm a long way from real success," she said as she arose from her divan at the close of the interview. Which proves this young writer who is bringing bits of her native Wyoming to readers throughout the country doesn't measure success entirely by acceptances and big checks.

Stew Solves the Meat Problem For Dinner at Irregular Hours

Serve It With Fruit Cup, Salad and Strawberry and Rhubarb Pie.

By Dorothea Duncan.

"WE'LL BE as hungry as bears, but we don't know just when we will be home for dinner."

Hearing this, is the poor housewife in a whirl? She is not. This thing happens many times to the woman who has children in school, or older ones working odd hours. Dinner tonight, contrary to thought, is going to be one of the easiest types to prepare, and ten to one, it will be a family favorite.

The main dish, and it should be a hot one, must be one that will bear reheating. Steak and chops then are out, but stews fit right into this picture. A stew doesn't reach perfection until it has been reheated. The long, slow simmering does something to bring the several flavors into unity and impart a delicious mingling of vegetables, meat and seasoning.

Let's keep the table set, so eating for the late comers will be comfortable and attractive. The first course may be a fruit cup, left to be spooned out of a large dish that is keeping cool in the refrigerator, or it may be a pitcher of tomato or grapefruit juice, likewise in the refrigerator. The salad will become soggy if made up ahead of time, so clean the lettuce or greens and keep them fresh and crisp in a damp towel or the vegetable box in the refrigerator, and have a good dressing close by.

Dinner Menu
Fruit cup
Ground beef and kidney bean stew
Salad of greens with any preferred dressing
Bread and butter
Strawberry and rhubarb pie
Milk

Now let's make up a delectable stew. This one doesn't have any name, but it was created for just such an occasion as this. The quantity is enough for four generous servings. Here it is:

Put butter in a frying pan, a heavy one, and when it is hot add one medium-sized onion which has been sliced in thin shreds. Cook the onion until it is a golden hue and add one pound of raw ground beef. Season the meat to taste with salt and pepper, and add several slices of green pepper which have been chopped fine. When the meat has become sufficiently brown, stir in one can of red kidney beans, a number two can, and one 10½-ounce can of thick tomato soup, plus a dash of Worcestershire sauce. A little extra moisture may be necessary, so fill the tomato soup can to a quarter of its height with water, rinsing it out carefully to get any of the remaining soup. Stir the mixture well, to blend the ingredients thoroughly, and turn the heat low. Cover the pan and let it simmer for a while.

This stew may be left on the back of the stove and reheated when the stragglers come home to dinner.

A dinner of this type demands dessert, and there is nothing that will top it off so well as a luscious fresh strawberry and rhubarb pie. Just a bit of thickening must be employed to keep the crust from becoming soggy. Two tablespoons of quick cooking tapioca added to the filling will keep the juice in, but won't impair the flavor. Combine two cups of halved strawberries, 1½ cups of diced rhubarb, 1¼ cups of sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon of melted butter. Let this mixture stand while you are preparing your pie crust. This amount of filling will make a 9-inch pie.

Any type of stew or a large pot of vegetable soup may replace the ground beef and kidney bean mixture at this kind of meal. Here is your complete dinner menu.

HOW to KEEP WELL

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

AS a part of the digestive system of the body the liver takes rank as an organ of prime importance. It is the largest gland in the body and is absolutely essential to life.

Just how the liver can carry on its many vital functions is difficult to understand. As a rule the body fixes the responsibility for special types of work upon gland structures that are given but one or two things to do. The liver, on the other hand, must perform at least a dozen tasks.

No matter in what form we eat sugar it is practically all converted into glucose, and the liver in turn converts this material into a substance that closely resembles starch (glycogen). When we are well, sugar in the body not needed for immediate use is taken by the liver, converted into glycogen, and stored, only to be reissued as glucose upon the demand of muscles and other tissue.

The principal secretion of the liver is collected by tiny capillaries and is discharged into that portion of the intestine immediately attached to the outlet of the stomach (duodenum). The secretion of bile is going on constantly, whether we are awake, asleep, eating, or resting, although it is somewhat more rapid during digestion. If the bile is not needed in the intestine it may be stored in the gall bladder, and from there reach the intestine as food demands require. Whenever food arrives in the duodenum this structure contracts and draws in a flow of bile.

If the body is to continue healthy bile must be confined to its proper channels. It is a very disagreeable and irritating, even poisonous substance whenever it enters the tissues. If the ducts leading from the liver into the intestine become blocked, jaundice results.

Girl Says Parents Wish Her to Marry Man She Doesn't Love.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: When the parents of a girl aged 20 seem dead-set on marrying her off to a boy she has known all her life but doesn't love and never can, and discourage all her interests in other men, what should she do? That's my problem, and a pretty big one to me.

* * * *

From the time I was old enough to be allowed to go places with other boys, or where other boys were going to be, my father and mother have seemed determined to pair me with this boy. He likes me, too, I guess, more than I like him; and even his parents seem to think it would be a fine "match." Our two families have known each other always, and our mothers went to school together.

* * * *

When I show a decided interest in some other boy, my parents always ask me what on earth I see in him. They're always pointing out what a fine boy this one they want me to go with is; how smart; how much he's going to amount to; how lucky I am to have him want to be my escort, and so on. He is a nice boy, and he is popular with the girls, but we just don't "click" in "that way."

* * * *

Can you tell me how I can make my parents realize the mistake they're making? They've had their life; and married whom they pleased, and why shouldn't I be free to make the same choice? Should I sacrifice my chances of happiness just to make them happy? Please help me. TULIP.

Strategic Resistance.

DEAR TULIP: The important thing to do in a case of this kind is to keep a stiff upper lip and a level head on your shoulders. On the one hand, don't permit your parents to maneuver you into a loveless marriage, and on the other, don't make the equally tragic mistake of rushing into marriage with the first personable chap you may happen to fancy yourself in love with, just "to get away from it all," as the phrase goes.

* * * *

Since the boy is a friend of such long standing, why not take him into your confidence and make him an ally in circumventing your parents' design, if such it really is. If you don't and can't love him, and he is wasting time on you, matrimonially speaking, he may appreciate hearing the truth from your lips. No doubt he's young enough to find other heart interests without too great pain. Ask him for old times' sake to give you a wide berth in future, so far as soliciting your company is concerned.

* * * *

Since your parents are thinking of your future in terms of marriage, they will scarcely be content to see you without an escort, and may of necessity revise their program to include other contenders for your hand.

I agree with you that every girl should, within sane and reasonable limits, be allowed a free hand in choosing the man she marries.

M. H.

Students Past 45 Equal to Youths, Survey Reveals

Persons past 45 years of age can learn as fast as youths, Dr. Edward T. Thorndike, of Teachers College, Columbia University, said in a survey on "Adult Interests" just made public.

Dr. Thorndike said he found after nine years of research that "adults may excuse themselves from learning because they are tired or sleepy or in need of entertainment rather than improvement but not because they can not, being old, be sufficiently interested."

Dr. Thorndike's experiments indicated that persons who lacked interest in a subject were less likely to learn about it than persons who were interested. He declared, however, that the handicap of lack of interest in a subject was much less than was popularly supposed.

Motion Saving Will Be Taught At University

Woman Engineer to Instruct Purdue Students in Facilitating Tasks.

By the Associated Press.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., May 7.—A mechanical engineer, the mother of 11 children, is going to Purdue University in the fall to teach students to become "motion-minded."

"Motion-minded persons," says Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth—she has been called America's outstanding woman engineer—"are those who know how to conserve energy by eliminating wast motion and effort in their work. Analyze your daily chores and you'll be surprised at the amount of energy you waste with useless motion.

Hint for a Housewife.

"Housewives can save energy by studying their tasks," she holds. "Why, for instance, should a laundry be in the cellar and a sewing room on the second floor? The two tasks are closely related. Put the sewing machine in the laundry and you save motion.

"I go to the city to buy a dress. I try it on and buy it. The dress is taken from the hanger, pressed, wrapped in yards of tissue after it is folded. Then it is placed in a box which is tied with string, and delivered to me. I untie the box. I take the tissue off. I unfold the dress. I press it again. Then I place it back on a hanger, just as it was in the store. Why couldn't the store leave the dress on the hanger, hang it in a truck, and deliver it to me? Waste motion and lost energy."

Carries On Husband's Work.

Her husband, the late Dr. Frank B. Gilbreth, who died 11 years ago, was the originator of "motion study." It was not his purpose to increase a worker's production. He taught him how to do his day's work with less effort and fatigue. He photographed bricklayers at work, and told them how to make their jobs easier by eliminating certain arm and leg movements.

He experimented before his shaving mirror, and concluded that task could be accomplished with less effort and motion if two brushes were used.

Now his widow is carrying on his work. She lectures, teaches, and is employed as a consulting engineer by numerous large industries. She is a world authority on the subject of motion as it relates to the conservation of energy in industry. Pencils and other implements are arranged on the desk of her office-laboratory so they can be reached and put into use with a minimum of effort and motion.

Savant Ridicules Idea Of Inferiority Complex

Dr. Jelleffe, Capital Convention Speaker, Says Everybody Is Genius and Life of the Party Is Just Being Herself.

A STOCKY, white-haired man with waggish smile and kindly eyes plopped himself down yesterday noon on the deep cushions of a divan at the Mayflower and within a couple of minutes upset some of the laymen's most cherished notions concerning the way a psychiatrist looks at human beings.

The stocky, kindly-eyed man was Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, of New York, one of the most noted psychiatrists in the United States. This morning he will address a section meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in session at the Mayflower, his second appearance on the current program.

Ideas Are Presented.

Here are some of Dr. Jelliffe's ideas, set forth as he chatted informally between sessions:

There is no such thing as an inferiority complex.

Everybody is a genius.

The woman who is the life of the party is much more natural than reserved, lady-like creatures.

The belief that men and women are exactly alike in their behavior and emotional reactions is ridiculous.

The term "inferiority complex" is merely a blind for superiority complex, according to Dr. Jelliffe.

"This inferiority business certainly has been overplayed," he said. "No, I don't mean the term is outmoded. It's inaccurate. Nobody has a sense of inferiority. Most persons have a pretty strong sense of superiority," he chuckled.

It is this feeling of superiority carried to considerable lengths that keeps a person from being a genius, the psychiatrist believes.

"Geniuses aren't set apart," he continued. "We're all born geniuses, every last one of us. Fear of criticism is the thing that keeps us from realizing our potentialities. The person who wins the world's acclaim as a genius is not afraid of criticism. He learns something by it. Those who fail to reach the heights think they already know it all. They don't want criticism. Nor do they profit anything by it."

The woman who is the life of the party, far from being a show-off, is simply being herself, according to Dr. Jelliffe.

"She isn't stopping to wonder what people may be thinking of her," the psychiatrist said. "She doesn't care. She's too busy enjoying herself, being herself. I wish there were more like her."

What about exhibitionists?

"Oh well, aren't we all exhibitionists?" and he shrugged to show how little it mattered.

The prevalent notion that men and women are exactly alike, "because, after all, they're both human beings," struck Dr. Jelliffe as absurd.

"They're both bisexual is more like it," he exclaimed. "Each sex has its own characteristics, but there are times when one sex assumes characteristics of the other. Thus while man is aggressive and woman is compliant, the woman under certain conditions will become aggressive. Under normal circumstances the sexes complement each other. The man's dominant characteristics are complemented by the intuitional feeling and logic of the woman."

Woman's vaunted intuition is no greater intrinsically than man's, Dr. Jelliffe is convinced. However, woman uses her's more.

"As conservor of the race she has learned she must," he said.

The psychiatrist sees no widespread evidence of women assuming maculine characteristics or of men becoming effeminate.

"Of course, they keep exchanging temporarily from time to time some of the characteristics of behavoir. When they take on the opposite sex's characteristics permanently, the psychiatrist gets some more patients," he smiled.

Limerick Death May Be Solved By Rusty Gun

Ballistics Expert Probes Find Near Murdered Usherette's Home.

Possible solution to one of Washington's most sensational murder cases—the slaying of pretty Beulah Limerick in 1930—hinged last night on a small caliber, rust-covered gun.

Lieut. John Fowler, police ballistics expert, said the weapon's value as a clew could not be determined until after an extensive series of scientific studies. The gun was found by 3-year-old Albert J. Pearson in an ash heap behind the former Limerick home at 18 Nineteenth street southeast. The youngster, grandson of Lee A. Pearson, present tenant of the house, unearthed the gun April 29. It was turned over to police Monday night after nearly a month's delay.

It will be several days before Lieut. Fowler is able to discover whether the weapon actually was used in the slaying, he announced last night. Although the caliber—a .25 automatic, with an empty shell jammed in the chamber—is similar to the suspected death weapon, Lieut. Fowler said heavy corrosion from long exposure will make identification difficult.

He explained that if tests show that the automatic's firing pin make the same mark on the rim of a cartridge as those found in the Limerick home, a definite clew will be established.

The gun's serial number had been filed off, but after careful study, Lieut. Fowler uncovered another number which may lead to identification of the owner. The gun apparently had been in the ash pile for several years. The Pearson boy kicked it while playing near the house.

Beulah Limerick, 19-year-old one-time usherette at the old Poli's Theater, Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was found dead in a basement room of her home early on the morning of December 31, 1930.

Cause of her death was not discovered until an undertaker found a bullet hole at the base of her brain. Examination of the girl's room disclosed a bullet hole in the floor beneath a small cot on which she lay.

Seeking solution to the baffling case, police later arrested Beulah's brother, Vernon; Richard Reed, a youth who lived at the Limerick home; William Paddy, 26, and Robert F. Langdon, a policeman. All were released after questioning.

Meanwhile, in an effort to trace the gun, a circular letter will be sent to all chiefs of police, mail-order houses and importers, describing the weapon and asking them to search their files for a clew to the identity of the buyer.

On the Air Today

By Katherine Smith.

The Columbia Broadcasting System has announced three new policies, the like of which have never been seen in the radio business.

All are concerned with advertising. First, advertisers must cut down on the length of their plugs; effective July 30, a maximum of 10 per cent of the total broadcast may be devoted to the sponsor's commercial announcements, including contest and offers, on programs after 6 p. m. On daytime programs the maximum will be 15 per cent. Further, "unpleasantly rapid delivery of the sales message, to effect a crowding of excessive material into the period allowed for the commercial announcement, will not be permitted."

Secondly, advertising of articles which "by their nature present questions of good taste in connection with radio listening," will be prohibited. This policy is effective immediately in regard to new business. As to existing business, the policy is effective as the contracts expire. The last of these expires March, 1936.

Thirdly, Columbia cracks down heavily on children's programs. Prohibitions include features that exalt gangsters and criminals, glorify disrespect of parents, present greed and selfishness as a worthy motivation, or make dishonesty or deceit attractive. In purifying these programs Columbia is engaging a child psychologist and an advisory board to steer the programs into proper channels.

In a lecture delivered yesterday before the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard, George Henry Payne, Federal Communication commissioner, said that if the broadcasting companies would devote as much time to the cultural aspects of radio as they did to politics, the programs would be improved vastly.

Dial twists:

Samuel Barber, Prix de Rome winner, presents another song recital on WMAL, 2 p. m. He will sing three of his own compositions.

Upton Close asks "Will America Pay the Price of Peace?" on WMAL, 8:45 p. m.

Banking Bill's 'Menace' Seen By Chicagoan

Brown Cites Possibilities of Forced Subscribing of U. S. Issues.

By the Associated Press.

Administration omnibus banking bill was described yesterday by Edward E. Brown, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, as a measure which would permit the Administration to compel banks to swallow new Government bond issues when the public would no longer take them.

The husky square-jawed Chicago banker was one of three men—two bankers and a representative of a credit association—who appeared before a Senate banking sub-committee to oppose sections of the bill, particularly the parts vesting in the Federal Reserve Board increased control over the banking system, money and credit.

Francis M. Law, president of the First National Bank of Houston, Tex., and former president of the American Bankers Association, said that association sought a modification of the bill to give the regional Federal Reserve Bank governors a voice in shaping the monetary, reserve and rediscount policy.

H. H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, warned that continuation of the bank deposit guarantee was an invitation to loose banking methods.

"I am afraid the board would be apt to force Government obligations upon the banks," Brown told the committee, "which the investing public would be unwilling to take."

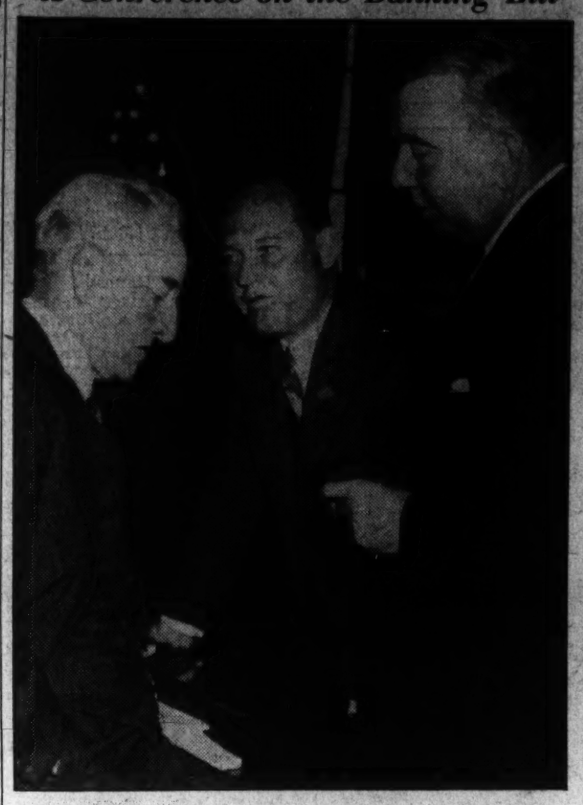

As a means of doing that, he said the Reserve Board was given authority in the bill to govern rediscount rates and the amount of reserve against deposits. Either of these, he said, might be used as a threat to compel taking such issues.

"Inability to market its securities," Brown said, "has always acted as a check upon the Government and upon the desires of the general public."

Motorcycle Officer Injured.

Policeman Howard W. Carmichial, attached to the Traffic Bureau, suffered a compound leg fracture yesterday when his motorcycle skidded while making a turn at Treasury place and East Executive avenue northwest. He is in Emergency Hospital.

A Conference on the Banking Bill

Harris & Ewing.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia; Robert V. Fleming, president of the Riggs National Bank, Washington, and Francis M. Law, of Houston, former president of the American Bankers Association, informally discussing the Administration's banking bill at the conclusion of Senate hearing yesterday.

New Trial Ruling Due Today for Sam Beard

Sam Beard, convicted on gambling charges, will learn today whether he is to be given a new trial because three members of the jury trying him saw a newspaper headline telling that gamblers were betting on his acquittal and decided to vote guilty to show they were not "fixed."

Decision on the application for a new trial was scheduled for yesterday, but when Roger Robb and John W. Fihelly, Assistant United States Attorneys, were unable to complete their briefs in opposition to Beard's motion, Justice Joseph W. Cox indicated he would not rule until today.

Beard and 12 co-defendants, were convicted of violating the gaming laws after an eight-day trial.

'Big Bill' Celebrates In Parts Unknown

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—William Hale Thompson was 66 years old today—but how and where he celebrated remained undisclosed to the thousands who knew him when he was thrice Mayor of Chicago.

"Big Bill, the Builder"—that's how he identified himself during his bombastic campaigns—was "out of town," his secretary reported.

Out of the political war since 1932, Thompson has enjoyed a retirement that amounted to seclusion. All about him efforts to rehabilitate the Republican Party were afoot. Only Thompson could say whether he would join the movement.

And Thompson won't talk.

Seaplanes Cover Vast Ocean Territory Hitherto Avoided.

By the Associated Press.

Aboard Battleship Pennsylvania, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, May 14.—Conquest of the "graveyards" of the Pacific by Navy aviators was an accomplished fact tonight.

From Rat Island in the Aleutians to Alaska's valley of 10,000 smokes, and from Hawaii, 1,200 miles northwest to studded rocks and shoal, the big seaplanes have flown.

Since the days of the first North Pacific navigators these regions have been visited only by adventurers, mariners generally giving them a wide berth.

In the past two weeks, however, naval aviators have flown throughout these regions in opening phases of gigantic maneuvers by the United States fleet.

Fifty-eight patrol planes in the two regions have established sentry stations, while the two main fleets of surface ships have been shaping final plans for a major phase in fleet problem 16, the present maneuvers.

Vice Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn's "Black Fleet" has a whole quarter of the North Pacific in which to hide.

Admiral Harris Laning's high seas "White Fleet" continues here ready to dash out at any time to locate and "destroy" the northern force. Admiral Laning faces a problem in strategy rarely presented a high naval commander in peace-time maneuvers.

An expeditionary force of Marines has the situation well in hand for the "Black" forces which is supported by a big, farflung patrol of air sentries.

The general picture tonight appears to be that the "Black" force holds the northern and mid-Pacific island areas as in the jaws of gigantic pincers, opened toward the Pacific Coast and Hawaii.

Into these jaws, the "White" fleet must penetrate to seek out and destroy the "Black" fleet. When the "White" fleet moves out to sea, the great searching task begins.

Aircraft will play a spectacular part in the battle game itself with some 400 fighting airplanes distributed among the two forces. They are aboard four aircraft carriers, and also the battleships and cruisers.

By the Associated Press.

Honolulu, May 14.—Decks abristle with planes, the aircraft carriers Saratoga and Ranger anchored off Waikiki Beach today, making a total of 83 warships in Pearl Harbor or off port.

Teacher-Oath Bill Futile, Says Nice, In Reporting Veto

Lack of Penalties Brings Criticism

To Sign Measure Would Be 'Vain Gesture,' Statement Says.

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, May 14.—Gov. Harry W. Nice announced today that he would veto the "teachers' oath" bill because in the form it was passed by the Legislature it fails of its purpose and "becomes a futile declamation of loyalty."

The Governor, in a statement covering his reasons for disapproving the measure, declared it lacks penalty clauses and that his signature would be "but a vain gesture."

"House bill No. 498, commonly known as the 'teachers' oath bill,' is before me for my official action," the Governor said. "I take it that the real objective of the Legislature was to prevent the dissemination of propaganda contrary to the principles of our form of constitutional government.

Is Called Unnecessary.

"As I view it, the bill totally fails of its purpose. It does not prescribe a definite oath. While a teacher is disqualified from teaching, there is no penalty for one who takes the oath and then breaks it. There is no penalty upon the school that connives at the failure to take the oath or in the violation of it after it has been taken. There is no provision for withholding the State appropriation from any State-aided institution which is not living up to the letter and spirit of the law.

"Therefore, I have concluded that, in its present form, it is unnecessary; to the disloyal it is meaningless.

"To accomplish the purpose intended, that is, the safeguarding of our Nation against insidious and destructive propaganda, such legislation should apply to all alike, and not transgress the provisions of the Constitution of the United States or that of Maryland.

"It should provide punishment sufficiently severe to act as a discouragement and deterrent. An approval by me of this legislation would be but a vain gesture. Therefore, I shall veto the bill."

The bill, introduced by Delegate John S. White (Democrat), Prince Georges, and backed by the American Legion and patriotic organizations, provides:

"That no person can qualify or teach in any public school, college or university, supported in whole or in part by the State of Maryland or any subdivision of the State, until such persons shall have first taken the oath of allegiance to the United States of America."

Rejected by Committee.

It was the center of a hectic fight on the floor of the House of Delegates and following its passage has been one of the most controversial subjects before the Governor for decision.

White succeeded in overturning an unfavorable report of the House Judiciary Committee and passing the bill through the House, and it went through the Senate in the closing hours of the session.

No sooner had the bill reached the Governor's office than it came under the fire of teachers, university and college professors and liberal organizations. The American Legion posts and patriotic groups rallied to its support and masses of telegrams and letters swamped the Governor's desk.

At a hearing in the House of Delgates chamber, Gov. Nice heard a group attack the bill on theory and for being "improperly drawn." It was defended by Legion spokesmen and other veteran groups.

Gov. Nice and Advisers Begin Final Bill Study

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., May 14.—With the majority of the controversial bills cleared from his desk, Gov. Harry W. Nice today began his final study of legislation still remaining before him for his action.

Closeted with close advisers, the Governor spent most of the day going over measures passed by the recent General Assembly. He plans to begin signing them Friday morning and will act on all of them before the end of the week.

In the group aiding in the study of the bills today were J. Purdon Wright, former State Senator Harry O. Levin and Simon Sobeloff, three of his closest advisers.

It also was revealed today that the Governor will announce before the end of the week his appointment to the bench of the Fifth Judicial Circuit, which includes Anne Arundel, Howard and Carroll counties. The vacancy arose with the death of Judge Nicholas H. Green, of Annapolis. Chief candidates for the post are Linwood L. Clark, Republican, and State Senator Ridgeley P. Melvin, Democrat.

Bridge Improvement Asked.

Federalsburg, Md., May 14.—A request has been made to the State Roads Commission by citizens of Federalsburg to improve the bridge crossing the northwest fork of the Nanticoke River. The plan calls for widening of the roadway.

Scarlet Fever Hits Boy for Fifth Time

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Boonsboro, Md., May 14.—The case of Donald Meredith, 14, son of Charles L. Meredith, not only has health and medical authorities baffled here, but the United States Public Health Department as well.

The youth is suffering from scarlet fever for the fifth time. So unusual is the youth's case that the United States Public Health Department is planning to send a representative here to study the case.

The case first was brought to the attention of the county health department in January, 1933, when the boy's physician, Dr. J. Hubert Wade, reported him ill with scarlet fever for the third time. Young Meredith was stricken again in July of last year. Laboratory tests confirmed the diagnoses.

In only rare cases have persons been known to contract the disease the second time.

Safeguards Asked In Sale of Oysters

Check of Pollution Urged by Health Chief.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 14.—Improvement of Virginia's sea-food industry by checking pollution of oyster beds and inspection of sea-food products at the point of sale as well as their origin was recommended today by State Health Commissioner I. C. Riggin and Fisheries Commissioner Richard Armstrong in addresses before the annual convention of the dairy, food and drug officials of the Central Atlantic States Association.

Dr. Riggin asserted 54,505 acres of public rock and leased grounds, confined almost entirely to Hampton Roads and its tributaries, were restricted because of pollution. He said it was only a question of time when other areas would be affected unless bordering cities undertake sewage treatment.

Commissioner Armstrong pointed out that inspection guarantees sanitation at the point of production, but there is no safeguard for the proper handling of sea food on its way to the consumer.

School Art Exhibits Set.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 14.—The annual art exhibit of the public schools will not be held at the Washington County Museum of Fine Art as has been customary, but will take place in the individual schools. Exhibitions will be held at the two junior high schools at South Potomac street tomorrow and at Woodlawn May 21. The schedules for exhibitions at elementary schools will be announced later, Miss Mary H. Chrissinger, art director, announced.

Martinsburg Area Shows Trade Gains

'Panhandle' Section of West Virginia Sees Depression's End.

Strikes Still Threaten Industry's Return to Normal.

By C. B. Carr.

A Staff Correspondent.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 14.—Business men of this region who have made a comparison of the economic situation in the "panhandle" of West Virginia with the picture of two years ago declare conditions are on the upgrade in both the agricultural and industrial fields, although labor troubles still harass a small sphere of the latter group.

The "panhandle" of West Virginia includes the northern counties of the State, and Martinsburg is regarded as the hub of the eastern panhandle wherein lie the counties of Jefferson, Morgan and Berkeley. In these three counties is a semi-metropolitan industrial area on the one hand and a thriving agricultural community—with large farms—on the other.

For the last two years, Martinsburg's industrial world has been torn by labor strikes. Save for but one instance the strikes have disappeared and the hum of hundreds of looms in a half dozen local woolen companies indicate what might be called normal business and peaceful employment.

350 On Strike.

The instance of a strike is that of the 350 employes of the Standard Limestone Co., who have been out for several weeks. The strike appears to have more than a temporary effect on the city as, it is understood, the Standard officials are planning to abandon their local plant and reopen an old plant near New Market, Va. Should this occur, civic leaders here freely admit, the relief rolls of Martinsburg will be taxed to capacity.

In the case of at least three woolen and knitting mills business at the moment is declared normal. The Interwoven Mills are employing about 1,300 persons, operating on a normal basis following a curtailment of work due to a seasonal slump. In the case of the Dunn Woolen Mills, the plant is now running full time with 250 employes after a temporary shut down due to a seasonal slack in demand for their products. The Berkeley Woolen Co. is also operating full time with 350 employes, their business being reported as good.

Martinsburgers also hail with approval the decision of the Carlisle Paper Box Co., of Carlisle, Pa., to place a branch here. The branch has opened up and 25 persons are finding employment with the indication that many more will be needed as business picks up.

Although the industrial side of Martinsburg appears brighter, its relief rolls do not show a decrease, J. E. Thrasher, administrator of relief for the city, reports. This factor is attributed largely to the strike at the Standard Limestone Co. There are said to be about 300 families on relief.

Apple Crop Large.

Martinsburg is the county seat of Berkeley County, where commercial apple growing has been developed on a wide scale. Prospects for a large crop this year are bright in all varieties save the York Imperials, where the "freak freeze" of April caused heavy damage, the exact extent of which will not be determined until after the June drop. Growers for the most part, however, feel that the damage will be very heavy, some estimating it as high as 75 per cent.

In Morgan County, likewise, is found a commercial apple belt, although not as extensive as that found in Berkeley. Conditions are similar among the apple growers. The county has a few industries, the major one being the glass sand mines which have been largely inactive for the past year, resulting in a general degree of business inactivity throughout the section where hundreds of persons make their livings from the mines.

At Berkeley Springs, the county seat, however, the town's largest industry, the Interwoven Knitting Mills, is running on a full-time basis employing 150 persons. Further hope of employment for both male and female labor of the section is held out for August when the tomato canning plant will open for its seasonal operations.

Charles Town, the county seat of Jefferson County, is in the midst of one of the outstanding small wheat belts in the United States and the crop is reported as never being more promising than this year.

Even now Charles Town is feeling the benefit from the recent rise in agricultural prices. In addition to their wheat crops, the farmers of Jefferson County are great cattle raisers and when the price of cattle just about doubled during the past year the farmer's pocketbook increased likewise.

West Virginian Is Convicted Of Burning Wife With Poker

Testifies He Was Enraged by Presence of Two Friends at Home.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., May 14.—Deliberating less than 20 minutes a jury in circuit court here this afternoon convicted Wilmer Madison of beating his wife and burning her with a hot poker last January. C. D. Boyer was foreman of the jury. The verdict carries a penalty of from 2 to 10 years in the State penitentiary. Judge D. H. Rodgers deferred sentence.

Mrs. Annabelle Madison, wife of the defendant, was the first witness. Upon the motion of Defense Attorney Frank J. Beckwith, all persons under 18 years of age were excluded from the packed courtroom before Mrs. Madison testified that her husband gagged and bound her, and applied a poker heated in a kitchen range, inflicting between 30 and 36 burns.

Two Occasions Cited.

"Two nights he burned me," Mrs. Madison testified. "On January 14 he returned with his truck from the coal fields and beat me and burned me about the legs with the poker."

On the following night her husband gagged her with a knotted handkerchief, bound her with a clothes line and burned her again with the heated poker, she said. She walked the floor the remainder of the night in suffering, she testified, before admitting to officers and physicians the extent of her injuries.

Madison, she said, was in the habit of beating her, and became infuriated when he found two of his friends at the home when he returned with a truck load of coal from the mines. Madison, the last witness, attempted to prove infidelity because of the presence of the two men, but his testimony was unsupported.

Physicians Testify.

Dr. B. F. Haines and Dr. A. H. S. Rouss testified that between 30 and 36 burns covered the lower part of Mrs. Madison's body when they examined her and sent her to a hospital where she remained for three weeks.

Madison was threatened by a mob after the charges were made known. Members went to the Virginia State line to meet Madison but Constables T. W. Allen and Deputy J. N. Smith reached Madison first and took him to the county jail here by a back road.

The Madison's two children, Wilmer, jr., 11, and Tommy, 7, were witnesses at the trial. Both said they were sent upstairs to bed by their father and that they heard their mother scream.

Man Killed in Mine Noted Rescue Worker

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 14.—One of five victims of the mine-shaft fire at Barrackville, Marion County, Sunday, was noted for rescue work.

L. H. Howells, 50, mine inspector, who perished, had been a hero of mine disasters in his native Wales before coming to America in 1929 and was decorated by King George at Buckingham Palace. A Carnegie Medal also had been awarded to him.

Howells was a native of Tredegar, Wales.

Four Lines to Make Rebates on Freight

Virginia Commission Rules Coal Rates Excessive.

By the Associated Press.

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday ordered four railroads operating in Virginia to pay a total of $180,000 reparations for alleged excessive charges on bituminous coal shipments from mines on their lines to destinations in Virginia.

The commission gave awards totaling $27,508.50 in favor of the City of Danville, Va., in whose name the complaint was brought, against the Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, Southern Railway, and Virginian Railway. The largest award to a complaining corporation in the case totaled $113,715.07, in favor of the Riverside & Dan River Cotton Mills, Inc.

The remainder of the total was awarded in amounts of $20 or less to a large number of firms.

Liability Settlement Wins Court Approval

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Frederick, Md., May 14.—The Circuit Court yesterday approved settlement of statutory liability of Stein Bros., & Boyce, Baltimore bankers, and C. Newton Kidd, also of Baltimore, in connection with stock owned in the defunct Central Trust Co. The settlement will net approximately $6,500 in addition to a $1,000 beneficial interest certificate.

Approving the settlement, the court acted on petitions of John J. Ghingher, State bank commissioner and former receiver for the Trust Co. He alleged that Stein Bros., & Boyce owned 200 shares of the Central Trust Co., assessed at $2,000, on which $1,940 is due. The books also show 1,211 shares of the stock in the name of Edward J. Armstrong, formerly a bookkeeper of the banking firm on which the statutory stock liability is $12,110. Mr. Ghingher contended that the 1,211 shares are in reality the property of the banking firm although the firm never admitted liability for assessment.

Formal Banquet Inaugurates Convention of Federation.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 14.—Opening with a formal banquet in the ballroom of Carvel Hall tonight, the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs launched the three-day session which Thursday will select the next president of the organization.

Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, of College Park, Md., retiring president of the federation, presided over the banquet and introduced the principal speaker, Mrs. Anna Steese Richardson, editor and writer, who addressed the delegation on "Organizations and Objectives."

At Speakers' Table.

Seated at the speakers' table with Mrs. Allen were Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, of the Chevy Chase (Md.) Women's Club, nominated for the next president; Gov. and Mrs. Nice; Senator George W. Radcliffe; Lansdale G. Sasscer, president of the State Senate; Emanuel Gorfine, speaker of the House of Delegates; Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland; Capt. Bryson Bruce, of the United States Naval Academy; Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, of Annapolis; Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, president of St. John's College; Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, vice chairman of legislation of the General Federation and former president of the Maryland Federation; Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., treasurer general of the D. A. R.; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, former president of the District of Columbia Federation; Mrs. Richardson and State officers of the federation.

Earlier in the day the executive committee and the board of directors held a business meeting after which the delegates, numbering about 225, were entertained at Brice House for tea by Col. Woodcock.

Finance Group Meets.

The finance committee, including Miss Estelle T. Moore, chairman, of Sandy Spring; Mrs. Homer L. Twigg, treasurer, Hampstead; Mrs. George W. Young, Laurel; Mrs. G. Walter Tovell, Reistertown, and Mrs. Clarence L. Fowler, Anacostia, met this afternoon.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Ira J. Pool, the hospitality committee, chosen from members of the Annapolis Women's Club, arranged for the accommodation of delegates from the various clubs. In charge of arrangements for the convention is Mrs. Charles Henry Thompson, while Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., acted as parliamentarian for the meetings. Other committee chairmen for the convention include Mrs. Clarence L. Fowler, credentials; Mrs. Mildred Kahler Geare, conventions; Mrs. William McKewn, badges; timekeepers, Mrs. John K. Lang, Mrs. S. Walter Sparks, Mrs. Luther Munson, Mrs. Clarence White; Miss Estelle Moore, finance, and pages, Misses Virginia Keyes, Laurel; Margaret Kahl, Mount Washington, and Dorothy Higgins, Mount Washington.

Judge Dismisses Judge On Driving Charges

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, May 14.—A charge of reckless driving and injuring a person, filed against Judge Julien Gunn, of Richmond Circuit Court, following a traffic accident several days ago, was dismissed by Police Court Justice Elben C. Folkes today.

Reckless driving charges against Irving Carter, Negro driver of the other car, also were dismissed. His wife was slightly hurt.

Police officers who investigated the mishap said they detected the odor of alcohol on Judge Gunn's breath.

Council Votes 'Privilege' Tax At Cumberland

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 14.—The much-discussed privilege tax ordinance, introduced by Commissioner Harry Irvine, to license telephones, gas and electric meters, billboards, vending machines and pin ball games, was passed by the council yesterday by a vote of 3 to 2.

Commissioner Irvine introduced two amendments changing the license fee on billboards from $30 a year per board to $10 a year on the first board and $5 a year on each board erected by the same company after the first, and changing the license fee of $1 per year on each vending machine to $10 a year on the first machine and $5 on every machine installed thereafter. The amendments were adopted.

Mayor George W. Legge reminded the council that City Solicitor Lewis M. Wilson had ruled the ordinance would not be constitutional if tested, and had advised against its passage.

Commissioner Irvine commented at length saying the utility companies do not pay anything for their franchises in the city and do not contribute on an equal basis with other citizens for the privileges they enjoy. He reminded the council that the license fee on meters and telephones is not to be paid by the consumer or individual, but must be paid by the company.

U. S. Refuses Plea by Nice For More Aid

Reduction Based on Drop in Relief Load, FERA Chief Declares.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal emergency relief administrator, telegraphed Gov. Nice of Maryland yesterday that he could not expect an addition to the State's relief allotment for May.

Gov. Nice yesterday asked that the FERA restore the $300,000 deducted from the allotment for the month. He based his plea on the expectation that the State gross receipts would produce enough money to justify maintenance of the allotment.

Hopkins replied that the allotment was based on the theory that the State would produce $400,000 for relief and that the reduction of $300,000 was based on a seasonal decline in the relief load.

Maryland was allotted $1,020,901 for May, as compared with $1,328,033 for April. Hopkins told Gov. Nice that reduction in the State's relief expenditures should be possible with the coming of warm weather.

Maryland Tax Yields More Than Relief Need

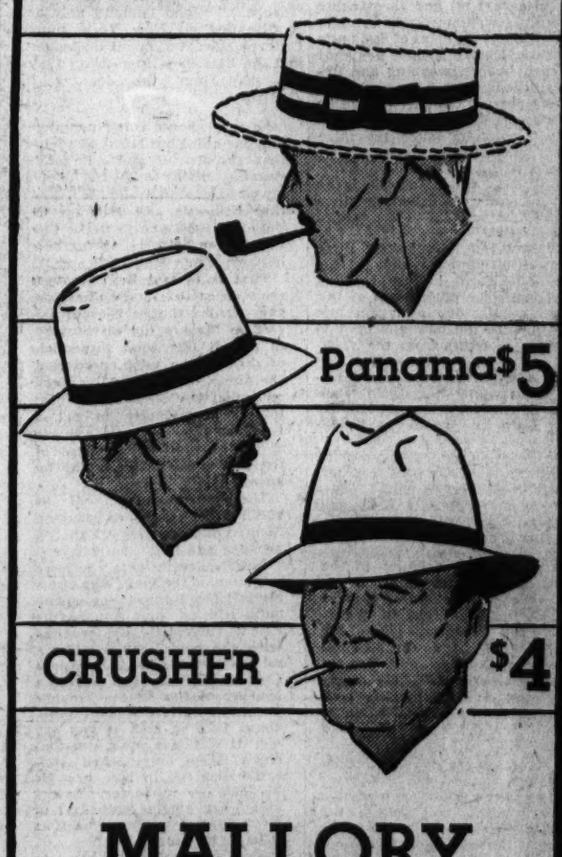

By the Associated Press.

Annapolis, Md., May 14.—The returns from the 1 per cent gross receipts tax exceeded the monthly amount allocated for relief today as a check for $225,000 was turned over to the Maryland Emergency Relief Commission.

When the tax office closed today a total of $306,128.89 had been received, or $14,462.22 more than the monthly amount allocated for relief. Under the law not more than $3,500,000 can be spent annually for relief, or $291,666.67 on a monthly basis.

Returns from 19,893 of the approximately 35,000 retailers in Maryland brought in a total of $256,686.31 for April, which was swelled by the $31,880.43 collected during the month through the 1 per cent automobile titling tax. An additional $17,592.15 has been received during May from the automobile tax.

A Play of Oppression of Almost Siberian Grimness Is Revealed in "Black Fury"

Paul Muni Has Role of Power In Bleak Tale

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Paul Muni is an actor who seems able, either on the stage or upon the screen, to lose himself completely in any role that affords his remarkable interpretative talents any measure of adequate scope.

In "Counsellor at Law," the Elmer Rice play in which he scored so decisively on the stage; in "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," a film that made cinema history, and in numerous other assignments, Muni has demonstrated that the experience culled from a lifetime behind the footlights and before the cameras has equipped him for any major task the theater may impose.

This complete adequacy was emphasized for a slight majority of the dramatic desks yesterday afternoon when "Black Fury" was screened in the Warner Brothers' private projection room in the Earle Theater Building. In this vividly realistic story of the coal mines, Muni turns in a superlative characterization; assuming the accent and dull mentality of the leading figure in a story that was originally known as "Jan Volkanik" and later dramatized as "The Bohunk," he executes a bit of character building which this observer was unable to detect a flaw.

As Grim as Siberia.

There is powerful, human, agonizing drama in "Black Fury." There are intervals in the action that partake of a bleak grimness that is almost Siberian in its menacing aspects. The narrative, while it has its thread of romantic interest, is preponderantly the heart-rending tale of an exploited, underpaid, overworked and down-trodden class of laborers who finally come a little way to their own through the dogged determination, heroic honesty and utter fearlessness of the illiterate who seems to have brought them to the brink of starvation, eviction and the horrors of a physical and spiritual crucifixion at the hands of interests too powerful for their meager means of resistance.

"Black Fury, I should say, is strictly a man's picture. It is believe, courageous and, at times, strikingly brutal in its depiction of what a mine war between Capital and Labor really is like.

It can not offend either side. A particularly pernicious type of the police force has been created here to bear the brunt of the picture's stigma upon the persecution of the honest working man.

Is Based on Fact.

While the locale of the picture is tensibly is Pennsylvania, the plot actually was suggested by an Hungarian episode, in which several hundred miners won their point against the operators by marooning themselves in the depths of the earth in a coal pit and threatening to annihilate themselves through the convenient agencies of dynamite and nitrogylcerine if their demands for decent wages, working and living conditions were not acceded to.

In the present instance, the same end is accomplished by a single individual, who, by much the same means, makes the operators realize the error of their ways.

Altogether, "Black Fury" is an unfearing, unfettered and uniquely effective presentation of the case of the underdog.

Furthermore, it reunites three players who came to fame in the same underworld picture that set a new mark for enterprises of this character, now coming again into favor through the new approach to the gangster motif from the viewpoint of the government agent, intent on retributive justice. In "Scarface," Paul Muni, Vince Barnett and Karen Morley all were importantly cast. They are again in "Black Fury."

In conception, execution and the sterling contributions of its extraordinarily well chosen cast, "Black Fury" is not especially black, but assuredly is furious. Those who view it will not be bored.

Entertainment seldom to be found in an annual spring dancing revue will be offered tonight and Wednesday night in Wardman Park Theater, when the pupils of the Anne T. Mitchell School of Dancing will present "Passing in Revue." The diversified and numerous units contributing to the dramatic, musical and terpsichorean interest of this offering will depict the various stages of development from childhood to maturity. Regaled first by a patriotic pageant, the audience then will follow the youthful participants in the revue through the parade of the toys, the circus, college sports, the arrival on Broadway and the kitchen. A spectacular representation of the West will bring the entertainment to a rousing close.

More Globe-Trotting.

We have already gone on at some length as to the various points of the compass—four corners of the earth, we called them at the time, I believe—to which the membrs of Jane Cowl's "Rain From Heaven" company have scattered, and now comes word of what is befalling at least a part of Katharine Cornell's repertory company that has enjoyed so successful a season in and out of New York.

Katharine Cornell, sailing on the S. S. Ile de France on May 18, will spend several days in Paris discussing with her husband, Guthrie McClintic, plans for next season.

Then, after a brief visit to Bavaria, she will go to southern France, where she will remain until she sails to begin rehearsals on "Romeo and Juliet," in which she will tour next fall.

Charles Waldron, the Friar Laurence of the Shakespeare tragedy, will go to California, as will Brenda Forbes, the Lady Montague, and James Vincent, the stage manager. John Emery, the Benvolio, will appear with several summer stock companies.

Wants One-Nighters.

After appearing in "Romeo and Juliet" in the major Eastern cities, Katharine Cornell wishes to follow her Chicago engagement with several of the larger one-night stands of the country where she not yet has played the Shakespeare tragedy.

If bookings can be arranged, she hopes to present "Romeo and Juliet" next fall in Des Moines, Iowa; Omaha, Nebr.; St. Joseph, Mo.; Topeka and Wichita, Kans.; Oklahoma City and Tulsa, Okla.; Little Rock, Ark.; Memphis, Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville, Tenn.; Evansville, Ind.; Louisville, Ky.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Dayton, Toledo and Youngstown, Ohio, and Rochester and Syracuse, N. Y.

Next season will be Shakespeare year on tour. In addition to Katharine Cornell's "Romeo and Juliet," which apparently began the present renaissance of Shakespeare in America, Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will tour in "The Taming of the Shrew" and Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper in "Othello" and "Macbeth." John Gielgud may act in "Hamlet" in New York, under Guthrie McClintic's management, and the Stratford-Upon-Avon Players may tour the country in repertory.

So who should come popping into the office but Frank Braden, that resourceful and energetic running mate of Dexter Fellowes in missionarying the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus, due to shake the Capital out of its springtime lethargy come May 19, 20 and 21.

That is to say, the "greatest show on earth"—and no one has ever denied that it is—will arrive in Washington on Sunday to permit the usual inspection of making the pitch, preparing the meals, stabling the live stock and otherwise allowing the customary opportunity to get a long-distance close-up, so to speak, of what a tent show of the first order really is like on an off day.

The performances will be given under canvas, as usual, on Monday and Tuesday, 21 and 22, matinee and night, both days.

Mr. Braden, in case you have forgotten, is the agent who wrote himself into immortality among publicists de luxe by having been surreptitiously credited with the coup that perched a midget on the lap of that austere Croesus, J. P. Morgan, during a hearing of the Senate Finance Committee a few seasons ago—about 1932 or 1933, if you ask me. It was also with him that one of those long-necked African belles fell in love because he took her to Easter services at a Fifth avenue cathedral in New York a few years back as a publicity stunt.

You just naturally have to watch this chap. But, at that, midgets and multi-necklaced aborigines are a little outside his natural bent. Frank is an exceedingly high-class, elegant fellow who simply happens to know his vegetables when it comes to selling a circus to the masses.

That's why he comes back year after year and we of the so-called Fourth Estate are always glad to see him, if a little wary of his wares—even if you know what I mean.

Early Opening and Preview.

It has been decided by the managerial gentlemen presiding over the destinies of the Belasco Theater, under its comparatively new policy of presenting foreign-made films of the first rank—"comparatively," one says, with the thought in mind that for a third of a century or more the Belasco carried on the finest traditions of the living theater—to inaugurate the run of Nova Pilbeam, youthful British star, in "Little Friend" tomorrow, instead of on Thursday, as was originally announced.

In view of this decision "Little Friend" will be previewed by the dramatic desks in the private projection room of the Fox Film Exchange this morning at 11, in order that its contents may be known to the reviewers prior to the busiest day of their week.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

Immediately following the prescreening of "Little Friend," Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's will unfurl "Let 'Em Have It," United Artists release of Reliance Pictures' contribution to the growing gallery of pictorial celebrations of the work of Government agents engaged in the suppression of crime.

Richard Arlen and Virginia Bruce are co-starred—or maybe it is co-featured— in this week-later counterpart of "G Men," in which Jimmy Cagney is currently packing them in at the Earle.

Today wil be a hard day on critical eyes subject to the flickerings of the fillums. Sixteen reels in a row is a considerable order for anybody's orbs.

So a producing unit headed by Sir Guy Standing arrives in Baltimore to make a film at Annapolis; Ethel Barrymore arrives at the Hay-Adams House, preparatory to her week in "The Constant Wife," at the National, and excitement runs high in theatrical circles. I am still looking for the one who said that "show business" is dead. He is due an argument and can get it any time by applying to this desk between the hours of 4 and 6 a. m. (Advt.)

Arborial Note.

This Forrest Orr, who plays the leading role in "The Bishop Misbehaves," at the National this week, is quite an actor. You don't need to be told that.

As a matter of fact, a few seasons ago when Donald Woods was leading man of the National Theater Players, there were times when you couldn't see the Woods for the Forrest!

Plays Connolly Role in "Bishop"

A veteran of many seasons with the National Theater Players, Forrest Orr this week has an opportunity to display the further reaches of his interpretative talents by appearing in the principal role of "The Bishop Misbehaves," at the National. This is the role still being played with fine success on Broadway by Walter Connolly, seen during the regular season at the National in the ill-fated "Gather Ye Rosebuds." Mr. Orr is remembered for an especially fine performance, some seasons back, in the National Players' production of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude."

Mud Shrimp's Habits Studied by Scientist

The mud bottoms of ocean bays and estuaries of North America are honeycombed with an infinitude of tiny passages made by the mud shrimp, Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt, Smithsonian Institution curator of marine invertebrates, announced yesterday after an intensive study.

In the dark depths of the mud, invisible to the human eye, there is intense and eternal activity. These strange creatures spend most of their lives in constant digging, using their second and third pairs of legs as shovels.

The animal, Dr. Schmitt announced, feeds by sifting 20 to 50 cubic centimeters of sand daily for its contained detritus. It shares its burrow with a menagerie of other tiny sea animals and serves the same function for the bottom soil of estuaries as the earthworm does for the field.

Broadway Play Again Scores As National Hit

By Nelson B. Bell.

THE CAST.

Red Eagan.....J. Arthur Young
Donald Meadows.....Roy Roberts
Hester Grantham.....Edwina Wise
Guy Waller.....Raymond Bramley
Mrs. Waller.....Ruth Lee
Bishop of Broadminster...Forrest Orr
Lady Emily Lyons....Adelaide Hibbard
Collins.....Warren Parker
Frenchy.....George Taylor
Mr. Brooke.....Karl Nielsen

In "The Bishop Misbehaves," Fred Jackson, the author, has fashioned a melo-dramatic comedy that depends more on situation than upon any quality of brilliance in its dialogue.

By making itself utterly transparent, it creates that peculiar type of suspense that arises from an obvious "plant" of "swag" that is so continuously liable to exposure as to create a more effective dramatic weapon than the most cleverly contrived and involved deception.

The jewels and "the papers," by being left within the immediate grasp of all who seek them, become the symbol of a simple dramaturgic device that is more potent than the most intricately patterned system of concealment that is so often resorted to, to confound both the principal figures in the play and the audience sitting out front.

Is Transparent Comedy.

"The Bishop Misbehaves" is not a guessing game on either side of the footlights. It is, on the contrary, a shrewdly constructed mystery-comedy in which a member of the cloth happens with his sister into a public house near London one night to make a telephone call and stumbles onto clews that strike him as being eloquent of crime and dirty work at the crossroads.

Discovering the cache in which are hidden the objects of an amateur holdup, the Bishop of Broadminster takes possession of the plunder and leaves in its place his visiting card and home address.

The culprits in the case, in due course, present themselves at the suburban home of the cleric and his sister—who also entertains a surreptitious "yen" for excitement—and there the major developments of the play take place.

There is an abundance of humor in the predicaments in which the principals find themselves as the three acts progress, if not in any quality of scintillance that Fred Jackson has been able to impart to his lines. There are, of course, occasional funny speeches, but, in the large view, Mr. Jackson has concentrated his humor in action rather than in any attempt at sparkling speech.

Another Broadway Hit.

This is the third play the National Theater Players have presented that is still current on Broadway. In the local presentation, Forrest Orr assumes the role played in the original production by Walter Connolly—that of the Bishop concerned in the title. Mr. Orr, needless to say—despite a slight confusion as between the proper uses of "ingenuous" and "ingenious" and "predecessor" and "precedent"—does a pretty splendid job of impersonating the Broadminster shepherd of an unexciting flock. He is the pivot upon which the play revolves.

Even more exciting than Mr. Orr's amusing impersonation of the title role is the real debut, in a part of some substance and opportunity, of Edwina Wise, the new ingenue of the company, who in this assignment acquits herself with all of the poise, dramatic intensity and youthful charm of a veteran actress. The superlative excellence of her performance stands as a convincing argument on the side of the real service being rendered the local theater by the Clifford Brooke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts, of which she is perhaps the most distinguished graduate. Miss Wise is a real trouper.

Distinguished Stars Applaud.

It is superfluous to recount that Roy Roberts, leading man of the Players; Adelaide Hibbard, in the most important role she has had so far this season; Raymond Bramley, as the renegade of the drama's sinister developments—with a laugh after each curl of the lip, if you will—J. Arthur Young, as Red Eagan; Ruth Lee, as the vociferous and Cockneyized consort of the major victim of the thievery; Warren Parker, in the comparatively small part of the chauffeur, and George Taylor, in another minor bit, all did well.

More interesting is the fact that Director Nielsen goes to work as an actor this week and makes a gem of a portrayal out of his interpretation of the role of Brooke, the mouse-like "gentleman's gentleman" of the bishop.

Altogether, another fine feather in the cap of the Players, with two fine settings by Charles Squires, and expert direction by Mr. Nielsen.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, who occupied a stage box; Nancy Sheridan, two rows ahead, and Ruth Abbott, charming former blonde leading woman of the Players, off to the left, all will corroborate these sentiments. Ask them.

May Queen is Named.

Catherine Compton will be Queen of the May at the spring festival to be held Friday at 10:30 a. m. at the Sylvan Theater of Sidwell Friends School, 3901 Wisconsin avenue. The festival was originally scheduled for Monday, but because of the inclement weather has been postponed until Friday. Members of the school are in the cast.

Postlude

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Concert in Phillips' Memorial Gallery by the Washington Chamber Music Society (Jeno Sevely, Leo Krakow, Hendrik Essers and Howard Mitchell), assisted by Helen Heinl, pianist, and Sylvia Meyer, harpist. Program: Rondo (Mozart), Scherzo (Mendelssohn), Pianoforte Quintet in F minor (Brahms), "Danse Sacree et Danse Profane" (Debussy).

This last "candlelight" concert of the season was enjoyed by an audience that overtaxed the capacity of the room, latecomers having been obliged to listen from the adjoining vestibule. They had their reward in a program representative of four sharply contrasted composers. After the spontaneous and unconscious utterance of Mozart, one could but feel the self-consciousness of Mendelssohn, even in the scherzo from wherein he was always happiest; and the sturdiness of Brahms stood opposed to the elusive and withdrawn personality of Debussy.

The string players, who did well with balance of tone and dynamics in the Mozart and Mendelssohn numbers, were not so successful in the Brahms quintet. The first two movements went fairly smoothly, but in the third movement there was too much roughness of tone and quite a few of those tiny slips in pitch which so excruciatingly miss the exact center of intonation. Because this is rugged music, all the more care is necessary in mastering it.

With the spirit of the performance one could heartily agree, and one felt the full force of the Brahmsian idiom, so terse, compressed and packed with significance. The reading was energetic and effectively eloquent, albeit a little over-stressed in phrasing. Helen Heinl handled the taxing piano part competently in both its technical and tonal aspects.

The two danses by Debussy were heard to advantage, thanks to the skill of Miss Meyer. It seems odd to us today that these pieces were criticized for their complexity and wilful obscurity 30 years ago, after their first performance. They now seem simplicity itself and reminiscent in their transparence of the "Gymnopedies" of Satie. The danses are excellent examples of pedagogic music which turned out to be thoroughly artistic; they were commissioned by the Pleyel firm for the use of harp students in the Brussels Conservatory.

Gilbert and Sullivan's "Trial by Jury" and Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," presented by the Estelle Wentworth Opera Group at the Roosevelt Community Center. Principal roles in "Trial by Jury" sung by Alma Harris, Ira Meyer, Thomas Zepp, Ray Baine, Walter Perry and Harry Yeide; in "Cavalleria Rusticana" by Mildred Sherman, Margaret Horn, Ray Baine, Ira Meyer and Mary Bruton.

Last night's rather scanty audience found entertainment in Gilbert and Sullivan's burlesque of the major infirmities in grand opera and satire on the breach of promise suit. Miss Wentworth's group of singers also enjoyed the humor and carried the action through with a brisk and breezy air. Miss Harris impersonated the plaintiff with a pleasantly voiced declamation of her easily consoled sorrow. The other principals were faithful auxiliaries in the comedy, and the chorus gave a good account of itself.

Unfortunately, Mascagni's impassioned drama does not lend itself easily to satisfactory representation with a none too accurately tuned piano substituting for an orchestra. One missed the color and surge of the music, and those impetuous accents in which the greatest part of the emotion resides. The performance had integrity in stage action and moved smoothly. Mr. Baine's Turiddu stood head and shoulders above the other characterizations in its forcefulness, and he also easily carried off the singing honors.

Watching Them Make Pictures.

Hollywood, May14.

I WALKED onto the set of "Page Miss Glory," and there was Dick Powell, standing in a pair of striped shorts before Marion Davies. Soon, Frank McHugh was in the same fix. Miss Davies screamed. "Fine," said Director Mervyn Leroy, "that's just the way I wanted it." Barton McLane, a hold-up man, is sticking them up in a hotel suite, and being an experienced hold-up man, McLane knows they can't pursue him so quickly with their trousers out.

• • • •

It is really remarkable how the movie fans recognize the romantic lover in flickers, although the hero is fully attired. Dick Powell is the lover type, and Frank McHugh is the comedy interest.

• • • •

LEAVING Dick Powell, the next studio I went to was Paramount, and the stage I visited was the one where the W. C. Fields flicker, "Everything Happens at Once," is being filmed. There on the set, jumping in and out of bed was Mary Brian, wearing a very attractive pair of pajamas. Or, perhaps the pajamas looked attractive because Miss Brian was in them.

Powell and Miss Brian are supposed to be in love with each other, and regardless of the many others they may go dancing and dining with, Dick and Mary manage to wind up together. I wish to state that Dick Powell and Mary Brian make a very good-looking couple.

While Mary Brian was rehearsing this bedroom sequence, W. C. Fields was sitting in his auto, which was parked outside the sound stage.

Bill was in his pajamas, bedroom slippers and a dressing gown. He was rewriting the scene they were to play inside. Sam Hardy sat on the running board of the auto with pencil and paper, taking down the gags. Bill Fields held a tall, very tall, glass in his hand. There wasn't any water in sight. Bill never takes a chaser. Fields, it seems, doesn't need a pencil to write; all he uses is a tall glass.

Sam Hardy managed to find time to speak about his clothes. He recalled his first job in Hollywood. He was brought here to play in a Colleen Moore flicker, "Orchids and Ermine." Hardy was to wear a loud and gaudy suit. The wardrobe department made one to order for him. The director looked at it and said: "That suit isn't loud enough. I'll tell you what, Hardy. You wear your own suit."

• • • •

MYRNA LOY walked out on "Masquerade" because she didn't believe she was suited to the role of the housemaid, which they wanted her to play. Miss Loy, who had been held back long enough, had finally come into her own by playing sophisticated ladies. She was correct.

Director Robert Leonard had to scrap his ten days' work on the flicker, and start over again. When Myrna Loy walked out, Luise Rainer walked in. It was a fortunate break for Miss Rainer, for she might have gone on for months just strolling about the Metro studio, and getting her name in the papers only when seen dining at the Trocadero with Ernst Lubitsch or some other gay Romeo.

But Luise Rainer was rushed into this flicker, and now she is being given the quick publicity build-up. It is a little too bad, but they are calling Luise Rainer the only serious threat to Garbo. Every foreign actress, tinged with glamour, had been so dubbed. It is a bad handicap.

• • • •

Miss Rainer, is a very interesting person to watch, and from the few scenes I have witnessed, appears to be a fine, capable actress. She will make a name for herself on her own and should insist that they stop this comparison to Garbo.

"Masquerade," by the way, is being made from the German picture of the same name. It is being remade practically scene for scene. There is a small Movieola on the set, and before enacting an important scene, Director Leonard runs that scene for the players on the set. You can watch a motion picture and see the picture being made at the same time.

Rites to Be Held Today For J. Castle Ridgway

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. today at his late residence for J. Castle Ridgway, former cashier of the District National Bank, who died Monday of a heart attack at his home, 220 Elm street, Chevy Chase, Md. He was born in Shawneetown, Ill., 61 years ago and was once engaged in the printing business there. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jean Crawford Ridgway; a sister, Mrs. W. A. Rodenberg, and a brother, Thomas C. Ridgway.

Quakes Are 'Old Stuff' To Village in Scotland

Comrie, Scotland (AP).—Earthquakes are old stuff to the inhabitants of this little border village, who practically have been living in a first-class "shaker" all their lives.

Three faults in the earth's crust in this vicinity have, caused more than 400 quakes of varying intensity to be recorded. Between 1905 and 1916 the town was shaken distinctly 187 times, yet virtually no damage has been done and the people pay little attention to the rumbling noises they sometimes hear.

Scientists agree that hundreds of years, perhaps thousands, must pass before Britain is likely to be troubled by serious shocks.

Marine Band Cancels Symphony Program

Because of other official engagements, the symphony concert scheduled by the United States Marine Band at 8 p. m. today at the Marine Barracks has been canceled.

Since the band auditorium will be redecorated, starting next week, the symphony's season is closed.

Held After Death Inquest.

Madgie Della Williams, 43, 1310 I street northwest, was held by the coroner's jury for action by the grand jury after an inquest at the morgue yesterday in an alleged illegal operation on Evelyn Hindman, 22, of 1317 Fairmont street northwest, who died in Emergency Hospital Friday.

Carnival Program Friday.

A carnival program, including presentation of a playlet and many stunt acts, will be given by the Young People's Society of First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest, Friday night. The play which the young people will give is entitled "The Mouse Trap." A magician, a ropewalker, and a fortune teller also will contribute to the entertainment.

Babe Didrikson Is Barred From Amateur Golf Tourneys;

29-Year-Old Texan New Addition

Won Five and Lost One Last Year; Was Used in Relief Roles.

Will Start First Game Shortly; Fast Curve His Specialty.

By a Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, May 14.—It was no traitorous remark Pitcher Walter Stewart smilingly made to a group of Washington players at dinner tonight when to their surprise he said, "I'm sure glad Trosky hit that home run off Whitehill today."

Unbeknown to the rank and file of the Nats, Stewart had been traded to the Cleveland Indians an hour after the game today in exchange for Belve Bean, big right-handed pitcher. Trosky's home run had won the game for Cleveland, from whom Stewart will start to draw his pay tomorrow.

The deal was completed by Managers Bucky Harris and Walter Johnson after only brief negotiations. The departure of the 34-year-old Stewart brings to the Nats a 29-year-old, young giant whom Bucky Harris discerns as a regular member of the Washington pitching staff. Harris will assign a starting role to Bean within a week.

Waivers Were Asked.

The Indians last week asked waivers on Bean and the Nats were among five clubs in both leagues which put in claims, whereupon the waiver requests were withdrawn. Johnson today casually asked Harris what trading material he had to offer in exchange for Bean. Harris cagily replied that he would be interested only in a cash purchase.

Whereupon Johnson suggested a deal for Stewart and the trade was completed on the spot.

Bean, a Texan, 6 feet 1½ inches tall and weighing 198 pounds, came into the big leagues to stay on his third attempt. New Orleans snatched him from Augusta in 1928 after he had won 20 games. Cleveland drafted him in 1930, released him the same season, recalled him in 1931, and sent him to Toledo of the American Association in 1932.

Seventeen victories in his last 20 starts with Toledo earned him

Nats Defeated By Tribe, 4-2; Get 3 Hits

Trosky's Homer With Two on Proves Margin as Whitehill Bows.

By Shirley Povich,
A Staff Correspondent.

CLEVELAND, May 14. — The Nat's one-game winning streak expired this afternoon from a lack of nourishing base hits and a blow delivered by a blunt instrument in the hands of a person identified as Hal Trosky, big first baseman of the Indians.

It was the sixth inning when Trosky appeared on the scene with his home run bat disguised in the figures of a lowly .243 average but the pitch that he smacked over the high right field fence with two men on the bases was the chief ingredient of the Nats' 4-2 defeat.

There was another item, however, that played no inconsiderable part in the triumph of the Indians. It was the three-hit pitching of Mel Harder, who had a one-hit game in his possession going into the seventh inning, despite the presence of six consecutive left-handed hitters in the Nats' line up.

Pitching Duel.

Trosky's fifth home run of the season interrupted what had been a fair sort of pitching duel between Harder and Earl Whitehill, who had yielded the Indians a 1-0 lead back in the third inning.

Cecil Travis and Jake Powell stood between Harder and a no-hit performance, the recapitulation shows. Every other Nat went hitless. They didn't get a ball out of the infield against Harder until the seventh inning and then Third Baseman Hale might have conceivably backed up for the catch of Joe Kuhel's pop to Vosmik.

His own infield jolted Harder out of his shut-out dreams in the eighth inning, when Shortstop Roy Hughes and Second Baseman Boze Berger threw two balls away to present the Nats with their first run of the ball game and reduce the Indians' lead to 4-1.

Until that seventh inning, Travis was the only Nat to reach third base, after beating out a hit to

Tigers Pound Four Yanks; Win, 10-4

Crowder Goes Route as Greenberg Hits Sixth Homer of Year.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, May 14.—The Detroit Tigers continued their climb out of the second division of the American League today when they turned back the New York Yankees for the second straight day, 10 to 4. The victory left the champions still in sixth place, but only a game back of the Yanks and Nationals, both of whom lost and are tied for fourth and fifth.

The Tigers again had their eye on the ball, getting to four New York hurlers for a total of 14 hits, including Hank Greenberg's sixth homer of the season. They pounced on Johnny Broaca for three runs in the first inning, with the result the former Yale pitcher was lifted for a pinch hitter in the second. Russell Van Atta, Johnny Murphy and Walter Brown followed and none escaped being treated roughly by the Tigers.

Crowder Goes Route.

Alvin Crowder, veteran right-hander, went the route for the Bengals and, although he was touched for 10 hits, he kept the blows well scattered to account for his second victory of the game. He also contributed three hits to the Tigers' attack. The defeat was Broaca's second setback of the year.

Lou Gehrig snapped out of his batting slump, connecting with three of the Yankees' hits, one of them being for two bases. In addition to Crowder, Charley Gehringer and Rogell also drove out three hits each for the Tigers.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

Cleveland, May 14.

BEING some impressions gathered along the beaten trail around the American League for, lo, these many years:

Philadelphia—The city of Brotherly Love—bah. People as coldly indifferent as frost-bitten Eskimo on Saturday night. Where the men of remarkable foresight who laid out the city streets provided for its growth someday into a thriving metropolis of 12,500 souls. Where the street cars threaten to chase you up an alley and if they don't get you the taxicabs will. Best thing about the town is its proximity to Atlantic City. Where one mustn't forget to instruct the driver to go to Shibe Park via Broad street, inasmuch as any other route induces apoplexy. The slot machines at the Ben Franklin Hotel that don't pay off. The problem of getting into Shibe Park through the press gate, where more credentials are required than at the Vatican. The long haul to the press box on the roof with typewriter in hand, when you realize you're not getting any younger.

Boston—Only a half-block from Back Bay Station to the Copley Plaza, and you walk it. The feeling that the club has gone ritzy since the old Brunswick folded up last winter. The tang in the Boston air and the Irish waiters. Prim, low-heeled Boston femmes who dress peculiarly Bostonian. Down Huntington avenue to New Fenway Park. Tom Yawkey's lavishly appointed press room where a barkeep serves the correspondents buffet lunch and Pickwick ale. The best press box in the league and the sudden recollection that the Boston park is the only remaining single-deck big league stadium. The strange transformation in the decorum of Boston fans, once the fairest in the league, who now have the taste of the pennant on their palate and boo friend and enemy alike. The home-townish tenor of the baseball reports in the local papers.

New York—Up from the subterannian catacombs of Penn Station into the mad whirl of the New Yorker lobby. Surprising how many people you don't know and how little they care. The time-worn banner overhanging the mezzanine that proclaims "Welcome, Washington Senators." Yesterday, it was "Welcome, Boston Red Sox." Elevators that whisk you up 20, 30, 40 flights with no sensation of movement. The tall, forbidding walls of Yankee Stadium that make the park appear, from the outside, like an old Roman buttress. Eighty per cent of the New York fans reaching the game only two minutes before game time. Second and third decks of the big edifice kept closed to the fans on week-days, what with the lower deck accomodating 30,000. Ruppert's beer sold exclusively in the park, naturally. The cinder track around the field that hasn't been used for five years. The $1.60 cab ride back to the hotel. The suffocating politeness of the elevators boys.

Chicago—The Del Prado, family hotel on the South Side. The same young lady at the cigar stand who throws you dice for cigarettes or takes your dollar bet on the horses. The ping pong table in the mezzanine. Ball players always writing letters in all the mezzanines of all the hotels. Chicago is different without the World Fair. Used to be the transiets' night club. Comiskey Park, three miles away through the black belt. Past the house where lived the Frank boy murdered by Leopold and Loeb. The White Sox Park, the only uniformly built stadium in the big leagues, the prettiest in the league with its fresh green and white paint. Well-drilled uniformed ushers who are forbidden to take tips.

St. Louis—The league's jumping-off place, or ought to be. Three miles from the dinky station to the Kingsway Hotel, formerly the Buckingham. The wide expanse of granite court in front of the hotel that intensifies the summer heat. The city sprawled all over the prairie with fewer skyscrapers than Washington. The dull, boring ride to Sportsman's Park past the slaughter houses whose smell would make a vegetarian out of the less hardily constituted.

Detroit—The ritzy Book-Cadillac with its big cars on display in the lobby. Patsy O'Toole fawning upon the ball players and celebrities. The spiffy cocktail lounge. The hotel life smacks of New York. The short, straight haul to Navin Field and the polite pass gate attendants. The long walk to the locker rooms. Nice of Mister Navin to install that elevator to the press box on the roof. It's three speeds: slow, slower and still slower. Harry Heilmann, the best batter of his era, making a living as a radio announcer.

Cleveland—Up from the station into the Cleveland Hotel without breathing the outside air. High-brown elevator girls and the best dining service in the league. Across the street, in Union Square, Communists rope the wires of their loud-speaking apparatus around the neck of a statute of a city founder. Ten minutes to the ball park by cab. That right field wall that invites glorified bunts over it for home runs. The city where Earl Averill can do no wrong. Where Walter Johnson is second-guessed by the baseball writers—poor guy. Where the telegraph operators at the ball park rate second only to Boston's in ability to follow the game.

Washington—I'll take Washington.

Brown, Everett Fight Again May 27

Battle Will Be Staged at Stadium as Outdoor Season Opener.

BUCK EVERETT and Natie Brown, the two heavyweights who participated in the spirited dog fight which set a new high for local action on the last Auditorium boxing card, were rematched for an outdoor show at Griffith Stadium May 27, thereby proving an old adage about the "best-laid plans of men and mice."

The Turner-Ahearn fistic firm, which will promote the return match between the District's two leading heavies, had no intention of staging an outdoor show before the Tony Canzoneri-Frankie Klick masterpiece which will occupy the stadium June 10. Then along came the first Everett-Brown battle. After ten rounds of the roughest, toughest brawling ever seen in a local ring, Buck was declared the winner—but a return was in demand.

Pirates Defeat Philadelphia, 8 to 1

Five-Run Attack in Third Knocks Walters, Ex-Fielder, From Hill.

PHILADELPHIA, May 14.—The Pittsburgh Pirates struck a blow at Bucky Walters' pitching hopes today when they drove the former infielder from the mound with a five-run attack in the third inning and then went on to defeat the Phillies, 8 to 1.

Walters, who held the Cardinals to four hits in his mound debut last week, managed to hold the Pirates in check for two innings. In the third, however, the Pirates jumped on him for six hits and before John Pezzulo was called in to halt the rally, they had crossed the plate five times.

Birkofer blanked the Phils for seven innings, but in the eighth Allen doubled and John Moore hit to center for their only run.

Step Is Taken By U.S.G.A. After Quiz

Must Observe 3-Year Rule; Case Parallels Miss Browne's.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The ambition of Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, Texas "wonder girl" athlete, to achieve national golf championship heights was abruptly halted today by an edict of the United States Golf Association ruling her ineligible for amateur competition because of her activities as a professional in other sports.

Miss Didrikson's disbarment, paralleling the case of Mary K. Browne in 1926, was precipitated by her entry in the women's Southern championship to be played in Louisville next week, following recent victory in the Texas State women's tournament.

Encouraged by her triumph, she signified her intention to compete for the Southern crown and later attempt to wrest the national championship from Virginia Van Wie at Minneapolis in August.

Activities Probed.

At the request of Mrs. Willard Sullivan, of Ashland, Va., secretary of the Women's Southern Association, the U. S. G. A. amateur status committee investigated Miss Didrikson's activities as a professional in other sports—baseball, basket ball and billiards.

The committee, headed by Archie M. Reid, advised the Southern Association to reject her entry and simultaneously announced Miss Didrikson would not be permitted to compete for the 1935 national championship. Mrs. Sullivan today notified Miss Didrikson her entry had been declined.

Except to say the decision was made for "the best interest of the game," Reid, in keeping with the organization's policy, refused to say specifically on what grounds Miss Didrikson is barred from amateur championship competition.

Miss Browne Barred.

Nine years ago another amateur status committee barred Mary K. Browne, former national tennis champion, from amateur golf for three years after she turned professional to tour the country with Suzanne Lenglen under the sponsorship of C. C. Pyle. Miss Browne has since been restored to good standing in amateur golf and has returned to national competition.

Although admitting the rule contains much elasticity, Reid indicated the so-called "three-year probationary rule" would apply to the Texas girl's case. This regulation provides "any applicant for reinstatement must have acted so as to come within the definition of an amateur golfer for a period of three consecutive years immediately preceding the date of application."

Second Time in 3 Years.

It is the second time in three years Miss Didrikson has been the storm center of controversies over her amateur standing. In 1932, after she achieved international fame in the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles, winning the women's high hurdles and javelin throw, she turned professional following a dispute with the Southern A. A. U. over the use of her picture for advertising purposes.

After an investigation she was cleared of the charges although this development did not alter her deci-

Babe Didrikson Is New Victim Of Silly Rules, Says Gallico

By Paul Gallico.
A Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, May 14.—They have finally put the finger on my girl friend. I was afraid they were going to do this but didn't quite see what there was to do about it to prevent it. And now that it has been done there is still little left for this department to do but beef. I am referring to Babe Didrikson, otherwise known as Marvelous Mildred, the Girl Athlete. Marvelous Mildred has been told by the United States Golf Association that she may not play in any more amateur golf tournaments.

If she is a good girl and doesn't earn any more money as a professional athlete in the next three years she will be then declared an amateur golfer again and receive permission to compete against our amateur ladies. This seems like a long penance and also a long time to go without eating. Milly may be an amateur by the time 1938 rolls around, but she may also be awfully thin and weak, unless by that time she has found some other means of support besides professional basket ball, billiards and relief pitching for the House of David baseball team.

It all came about in a curious and puzzling manner. The Texas Babe recently won the Texas Women's Amateur championship, defeating Peggy Chandler in a 36-hole final. This was strictly an amateur championship and only amateurs competed. Miss Didrikson then entered the Southern Women's Amateur championship to be played at Louisville, Ky.

The committee of the Southern women's championship wrote to the U. S. G. A. and inquired whether it would be all right to accept little Mildred's entry. The U. S. G. A. replied that it would not, and that, furthermore, the U. S. G. A. would

25,000 to See Rockingham Open New England Racing Today

$5,000 Race First Day's Feature

By the Associated Press.

SALEM, N. H., May 14.—The first of New England's seven running horse meets at three different tracks, which will last for 156 days and draw $70,000,000, conservative horsemen predict, through the mutuel windows, opens tomorrow at Rockingham Park.

Topping the eight-race inaugural card will be the $5,000 added speed handicap over 6 furlongs. Seventeen stake performers, most of them with impressive spring records, have been nominated for this feature and it is likely that the Ral Parr-Felix Spatola entry of Star Porter and Wise Prince will receive the heaviest backing from the expected opening day crowd of 25,000.

Vanderbilt Eenters Pair.

The A. G. Vanderbilt Stable has nominated Dogmata and Dreel, both upset winners in recent Maryland Handicaps; Percy M. Pike has entered Teralice and Indiantown, both at their best on the Rockingham turf, and Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Weant have listed Prince Fox, sprinting champion of the Texas season, and Wise Anne.

Manager-Director Lou Smith has labeled his opening as "Governors' Day," and the chief executives of the five other New England States have been invited to attend as guests of Gov. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Game Postponed.

Although Boston's track will not be ready until July, two groups in that city gave way to Rockingham's opening. The Massachusetts Legislature voted a recess for tomorrow and the management of the Boston Braves postponed a scheduled game with Cincinnati until late next month.

During the 29 days of Rockingham's first meeting there will be 12 stake events, with a disbursement of $57,000.

When the Rockingham meet closes on June 17 the horses will continue on the circuit that includes Narragansett Park in Pawtucket, R. I., and the $1,500,000 Suffolk Downs Track, now under construction in East Boston.

CROOKED LANE	115	6	9	9	9	9	9	Knott	12-1	5-1	5-2

BRIGHT CHANCE, much the best, broke well in motion, rushed into lead, galloped along and drew away easily at end. BULL FIGHTER moved up very fast around turn and was next best. ROYAL POMP closed gamely under weak handling. HOGSHEAD ran a fair race. JIMMY H. was outrun.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming prices, $2,250 to $1,750. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:00. Off at 3:02½. Winner, John E. Kenney's ch. f. (2), by Busy American—Pendleton. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:01 1-5.

NALITA J.	107½	11	8	10 1	11	11	11	Malley	100-1	40-1	20-1

PRETTY BUSY got away flying, was sent to the front with a rush, showed good speed, and held on well. HIGH TREASON was hard ridden all the way. TWO EDGED closed very fast in final furlong. HIGHDRY followed pace to stretch, where she tired. DOUBLE FINESSE ran a fair race. WISE WILL lacked speed and never was a contender.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $900. Second division; claiming price, $1,500. For 3-year-olds and upward which have never won two races. Start fair. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:33. Off at 3:39. Winner, E. A. Sexton's ch. g. (4), by Purchase—Knockout. Trained by J. D. Heatherington. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:14 1-5.

PROTAGONIST	120	2	3	2 1	2 3	1 h	1 1¼	Kurt'ger	10-1	4-1	2-1

VULTURE	115	5	8	8	8	8	8	Collins	30-1	10-1	5-1

PROTAGONIST, away well in motion, was hustled along all the way, caught SON O' STING at the furlong pole, and outgamed him to the finish. SON O' STING opened a wide gap early, but stopped very fast in last 100 yards. GENEVA CROSS, very rank in the running, closed gamely and is sure to improve. HURRAY lacked speed.

FOURTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. The Malverne Handicap. Purse, $900 added. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:04½. Winner, George McMitchell's b. m. (6), by Volta—Envy. Trained by J. J. Bauer. Value to winner, $690; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:43 4-5.

RIGHT RANK	107	6	6	6	6	5 2	5½	6	Lynch	5-1	2-1	4-5

VOLTA MAID, away well, was kept close to early pace, came around field entering stretch, closed very fast, and won in last stride. PROPAGANDIST was sent to the front going into first turn, saved ground all the way, and held on gamely. GARDEN MESSAGE made his bid turning out of back stretch and held on well. TECHNIQUE was repeatedly blocked and had scant chance. RIGHT RANK was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900. Substitute; claiming prices, $1,500 to $1,300. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:24½. Winner, W. C. Winfrey's b. g. (7), by Hourless—Martin Bird. Trained by G. C. Winfrey. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:43 3-5.

THUNDERTONE	116	4	5	4 h	5 3	7	7	7	Workman	5-2	1-1	1-3

STONE MARTIN, showing startling improvement over recent effort, rushed into lead going into first turn, and nicely rated along in front, won nicely in hand. ROYAL GOLD was weakly ridden all the way. CAPT. JERRY was well up for a mile and then tired. FLYING GYPSY went up on inside, but tired suddenly in final furlong. THUNDERTONE was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $900. Claiming prices, $2,000 to $1,500. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:45. Off at 4:48. Winner, Paul B. Codd's b. f. (3), by St. James—Pantica. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:44 4-5.

Volta Maid, 2-1, Workman Up, Triumphs

Propagandist Runs Second by Nose; D. C. Jockey Rides 'Double.'

By the Associated Press.

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, May 14.—The veteran, Raymond ("Sonny") Workman, one of the recent arrivals from Pimlico at the close of the Maryland racing season, was a conspicuous factor as the Metropolitan Jockey Club's successful meeting wound up here this afternoon. The Washington boy put up one of his typical strong rides to drive George McMitchell's Volta Maid to a nose victory in the featured Malverne, a grade "C" handicap.

This was Workman's second winner of the day and it afforded favorite players their first success of the afternoon. J. H. Louchheim's Propagandist headed F. Freedman's Garden Message for the place in the blanket finish. Volta Maid, a 2-to-1 hazard, ran the mile and 70 yards in 1:43 4-5.

Propagandist led the field into the last furlong, with Volta Maid and Garden Message hot on the trail. Technique, which finished fourth, had a rough trip, being forced back after a creditable beginning. Workman brought Volta Maid along on the outside in the final drive and his mount barely got up in time.

Bright Chance Victor.

Bright Chance, returning to the races in fine form after a winter lay-off, led eight other sprinters from the drop of the flag home in the 6-furlong opener for platers here today. Cal Rainey had the mount and the Western youngster did a faultless job, the combination holding a daylight advantage virtually all the way to register by two lengths, at 7 to 2. Bull Fighter was second and Royal Pomp third.

Sonny Workman wasted no time breaking into the winning column. The husky Washington veteran was astride the 11-to-5 second choice, Pretty Busy, in the second race. The filly took a quick lead and held High Treason, the favorite, at bay with ease to win by a length and a half. High Treason, never far back, was an even easier second, leading Two Edged across the finish line by three lengths.

Benham Suspended.

The stewards ordered Jockey E. Benham suspended five days for crossing over on his field at the start of the first race.

Charlie Kurtsinger piloted the lightly regarded Protagonist first home in the 6 furlongs of the third event. The gelding attended Son o' Sting's pace closely, caught the favorite in the stretch and drew away to win by a length and a half. Geneva Cross was third, another two lengths away.

Stone Martin, showing a sudden return to his best form, upset the talent in the fifth race by leading almost from the start to pay 8 to 1. Royal Gold, backed down to 7 to 5, was second, three lengths back and a like margin before Capt. Jerry.

Pass Up, 10 to 1, lasted to win the finale by three parts of a length from Barbarian. Little Argo was third.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Rockingham Park, May 14.

Here we are up in the gold country. Clocker Mike and I pulled in today and the joke is on us. We put in a lot of work on those Jamaica selections for today and then left the track to come over here. We hardly thought of a horse, much less play one, on the way over. We were a couple of sick babies when we saw those three Bennings winners. And what prices—Bright Chance, 7 to 2; Protagonist, 10 to 1, and Stone Martin, 8 to 1. I hope you boys and girls got a piece of that easy money. Everything seems to point to a gala meeting here in New England. I understand that the track is printing 25,000 programs and Governors of five States have been invited. I won't say they will be here for there is a certain amount of jealousy among the neighboring States due to the popularity of this course. Mike and I weren't invited but we're not here for the social end. We want bigger and better winners and you want bigger and better winners. We are here to get them if we can. The entries show a distinct Maryland flavor so we have the jump on the horses. However, we shall see what we shall see. BILL.

First race—Deliberate appears to have a field here that suits his brand of speed. Hughes is slated to do the riding and I'm stringing along. Wise King has a lot of foot and should be no worse than second. Dream Kiss won in Maryland and may improve.

Second race—Prosecutor has worked well with a sprint of this sort in mind. Gets in with steadying weight and I'm looking forward to a set of brackets. Dancing Mack has been freshened and will have something to say about the purse distribution. Merovech for the show.

Third race—Spixi won two races in Maryland and was shipped here at tops. Carries only light weight to the post tomorrow and I see no reason for mistakes. Chirac, a Vanderbilt horse, should go well. Currents, with only 98 pounds, might steal a long lead and surprise.

Fourth race—Speedmore is the class here although he disappointed in Maryland. Robertson is in charge of the jockey work. Honey Sweet was claimed the last time out and appears to be in shape. Cohort Miss for the show.

Fifth race—Captain Argo seems to have all his speed now and will be the one to beat in the $5,000 feature. He gets 4 pounds from Star Porter, the Ral Parr ace, and I expect them to run one, two. Lynx Eye, providing he gets away, will be a keen factor.

Sixth race—Furfiber seems to have enough speed to hold this group safe. Rough Party was almost unbeatable in Maryland and will be close here. Teddy Carl for the show.

Seventh race—Saint Kitts has been rested and should take care of these with another of those front-running efforts. Long Bit and Midshipman for the place and show.

Piscatorially Speaking

By M. W. Meier.

THE BUREAU OF FISHERIES, operating on a special PWA fund, has just completed a survey of the George Washington National Forest in Virginia which will have a profound effect on the future trout fishing of that delightful area.

Under the direction of Drs. Alfred M. McGavock and H. S. Hill every stream was carefully studied as to its present fish population and to what extent it should be stocked in the future. The net result is a neat little folder that will prove of invaluable worth to the Fisheries Bureau this fall and next spring.

If some such program as this could be undertaken in the waters of all our national parks and forests we would be nearing the millenium in successful conservation and propagation.

Once in a Lifetime!

Only once in an angler's lifetime, provided he fishes often, is he liable to strike the amazing sport now being obtained down at Oregon Inlet, N. C. The stories that are coming back from happy anglers almost stagger belief, but they come from reputable men with plenty of witnesses.

W. Briggs, of Eastern Airways, returned to town today with his fishing partner, R. K. Castell. Both were windburned, line-cut and utterly worn out by three of the most strenuous surf-casting nights of their existence. Their tackle was all smashed up and ere they go fishing again they will both have to re-outfit from pyramid sinkers to rod tips, but they brought back some record fish and record adventures.

Ethical fishermen both, they didn't strive for quantity. Instead they brought back a few big drum, one of which topped 46 pounds, and a bluefish that ought to win a national prize. Weighed 22 hours after being taken from the water, this great blue scaled 11¼ pounds. Oliver Atlas, who had it on display all of Tuesday, estimated it probably went better than 13, when fresh-caught.

This blue took 30 minutes of strenuous effort to land. The drum took even longer. The party spent three nights fishing from the beach on Bodie's Island, north end of Oregon Inlet. They tried day fishing but gave it up as fruitless because of winds and crowds. The beaches were packed with anglers and every available boat had been pressed into commission.

Now Listen to This!

"Never in my life have I experienced such angling thrills," said Briggs yesterday. "For a little while we fished without any kind of success. Suddenly huge schools of herring broke all around the water we were standing knee-deep in. They passed us in utter rout and dashed right up on the beach as far as eye could see on either side—line after line of glistening, silvery bodies.

"Suddenly we found ourselves in huge schools of savage, fighting drums! They brushed against our legs and their bodies repeatedly broke water as they pursued their prey. Some actually chased the herring up on the beach. We fought drum after drum, releasing them almost as fast as we dragged one in. We ran out of bait and had no difficulty scooping up live herring from the water about us and which we impaled on our hooks. After two hours of this strenuous sport, we called it a night and turned in, keeping six drum out of many we landed.

"The next evening we hit the beach again and had almost the same experience, except that this time we found ourselves in a tremendous school of rushing, whirling, fighting, hunger-maddened blues. The moon cast a brilliant light down on the water and it was a thrilling experience to see those shadowy forms pirouetting all about us against the sandy bottom.

"We could have caught tons, but we contented ourselves experimenting with lures. We tried everything in our tacklebox—bass-plugs, spoons, tin squid, feather lures and what-not. They tore into and swallowed everything that moved! One chap, not of our party, had nothing to offer but a piece of his white shirt and he caught fish on that!"

How long this amazing run will last is problematical. It will probably end when the moon reaches the full. In the meanwhile, the whole world and his brother seems down there, trying to land their quotas. There are newsmen from New York and cameramen from Hollywood, commercial fishermen, natives and sport fishermen—all bent on getting their portion of fun and fish from a record school.

Seine Permits Available.

Permits for seining minnows from the Potomac for bait fishing on bass when the season opens in June are now available in room 1830, Bureau of Fisheries, Commerce Building. They are free and necessary. More comment on this tomorrow.

1934 Turf Star Entered at Belmont

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, the son of Display, which could beat just about any horse in the country except Cavalcade last year, returns to competition tomorrow at the opening of Belmont Park's 22-day meeting.

Under the top impost of 130 pounds, the big chestnut will face 11 sprinters in the $3,000 added Toboggan Handicap, a six-furlong dash down the Widener straightaway course. Although never rated a sprinter, Discovery indicated he was ready when he reeled off three-quarters of a mile in 1:11 2-5ths in his last trial at Pimlico.

Despite his heavy weight and the fact that he will give from 7 to 28 pounds to his rivals, Discovery is expected to rule the choice at 8 to 5. He will have Identify as a running mate.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Singing Wood, winner of the 1933 Belmont Futurity, and the Sanford Stud Farms' Ajaccio shape up as the horses to beat. Singing Wood will pack 123 pounds, seven more than Ajaccio.

Okapi, which carried Mrs. Dodge Sloane's silks to victory in the last two runnings, also is entered but conceded only an outside chance. He is favorably weighted, however, and has been carefully prepped by Trainer Bob Smith. John Simonetti's Sergt. Byrne and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Black Buddy also rate consideration.

The Toboggan will be the first of many rich stakes to be decided during the Belmont meeting. Before the gates close June 8 with William Woodward's Omaha seeking victory in the $50,000 Belmont Stakes, there will be renewed the Metropolitan and Suburban Handicaps for older horses, the Withers Mile for 3-year-olds, the Coaching Club Oaks for 3-year-old fillies and several 2-year-old stakes, headed by the National Stallion.

Mrs. MacKenzie One of Four Upset Victims in Post Golf

Mrs. Masten Victorious, 5 and 4

Foes Beat Miss Hacker, Mrs. Brundage and Mrs. Dowdall.

FOUR upsets, one of which witnessed the elimination of the defending champion, Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of the host club, featured first-round matches in The Washington Post match play handicap golf tournament yesterday at Congressional Country Club.

Mrs. Mackenzie, automatic qualifier, lost to Mrs. Will Masten, of Washington Golf and Country Club, 5 and 4, for the most stunning reversal of the quartet.

Other victims were Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, home club star; Miss Susan Hacker, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. H. M. Brundage, of Columbia. Mrs. Dowdall, giving away three strokes, lost to Mrs. Philip Cole, of Army and Navy, 3 and 1. Betty Keeler, District municipal champion, who doesn't weigh 100 pounds but was strong enough to win the low net honors in the qualifying round Monday, gave further evidence of her golfing prowess by eliminating Miss Hacker, 1 up. Mrs. J. R. De Farges, of Columbia, pioneer woman golfer of Washington, put out Mrs. Brundage, 3 and 2.

Seven-Hour Auto Ride.

Mrs. Mackenzie didn't arrive at the golf course until 12 noon, due to a seven-hour automobile trip from Oakmont, Pa., where her husband qualified Monday for the National Open. She grabbed a sandwich and fired off from the tee 15 minutes later. The champion tired perceptibly after the first few holes. She had a 9 handicap, and Mrs. Masten 18. Mrs. Masten played well, rounding the turn 4 up. She won the tenth and twelfth, and ended the battle on the fourteenth green. A feature of Mrs. Masten's round was the scoring of three 3s on the short holes.

Five low handicap golfers, including the 1933 Post champion, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase, entered the second round.

Hughes, going to second on an infield out and to third on a wild pitch. Harder himself had a hand in retiring seven Nats on balls hit back into the box.

Hughes Hits Triple.

The Indians took the lead with two out in the third when Hughes slapped a line-drive triple into center field and scored on Vosmik's single through the box.

The score remained at 1-0 until the sixth when, with one out, Vosmik singled to center and Witehill walked Averill. Then it was that Trosky got the Indians' fifth hit of the day—a whistling home run over the right-field fence on the first pitch. The ball was still streaking upward as it cleared the wall.

Cleveland put together two errors to give the Nats a run in the eighth. Hughes threw Pinch-Hitter Schulte's grounder into the dirt and Berger took Myer's double-play ball and threw it wildly against the left-field bleachers, Bluege, who ran for Schulte, scoring. The big punch of the Nats' batting order—Stone, Manush and Kuhel—then went out meekly in order.

Coppola Impressive.

Henry Coppola had relieved Whitehill at the start of the eighth and the rookie pitched himself out of a deep hole with an impressive performance after the Indians had filled the bases with none out. Hughes drew a walk, Kuhel fumbled Vosmik's bunt, and Averill laid down a bunt that Coppola fielded so poorly no play was possible. But with the bases full, the rookie held the Indians scoreless when he retired Trosky on a pop to Travis, struck out Hale and forced Wright to ground to Myer.

Three runs behind, the Nats rallied mildly in the ninth when Travis led off with a walk. But Bolton calmly watched a third strike cut the heart of the plate. Powell smashed a single into right to prolong the threat, but two pinch hitters availed the Nats nothing of consequence. Travis scored on Sington's fly to center, but the Nats' fate was sealed when Kress grounded to Hale.

Maryland Frosh Win Again, Whip Tech, 12-7

University of Maryland Freshmen defeated Tech High at baseball, 12-7, yesterday at College Park. It was the fifth win in a row for the Old Line Cubs, who now have defeated three of the Washington public high outfits, Western and Roosevelt having been their previous victims.

Kyle Ruble marked up his fourth win when he replaced Lefty Woods and received credit for the victory.

It was a see-saw game, with both teams leading several times. The frosh finally went ahead to stay when they pushed across five runs in the sixth inning.

'Bud' Hafey to Albany.

Chicago, May 14 (AP).—The White Sox trimmed their playing roster to 24, one over the limit, today by sending Daniel "Bud" Hafey, young outfielder, to Albany of the International League on option. Hafey is a nephew of Chick Hafey, Cincinnati star.

Mackenzie, Safely Qualified, Declares Oakmont Is Tough

Back home yesterday after 36 holes of battling with the toughest golf course in the world, Roland Mackenzie, Congressional pro, said that "Oakmont is going to be the graveyard of the hopes of plenty of big shot players in the National Open next month."

"There were 123 who attempted to qualify, all of them fine golfers, and Ray Mangrum, the medalist, could do not better than 150, eight over par. Just think, 162 played off, and Dick Lunn, of Chevy Chase, was one of those unfortunate victims in the playoff. Dick did well with a 79, and took an 83 in the afternoon."

Mackenzie, who wan the medal in the National Amateur at Oakmont in 1925, said he was well satisfied with his 77-80—157 qualifying score.

"I never saw so many good golfers take 90's and 95's in all my life," Mackenzie declared. "And when the world's longest driver and one of the finest players, Jimmy Thomson, has ta teke more than 80 strokes on one round, you can see for yourself how tough Oawmont is. Mangum had to battle for every shot for his 73-77, and Sam Parks also had a time getting in."

Mackenzie said that the course exacts its toll on every hole, what with its narrow fairways and copious bunkers. He said the fifteenth hole, a par 4, 473 yards, literally "gave the golfers at fit." It has 20 traps. And if you get in some ofose cavernous traps, you have to play out sideways and backwards, according to Mackenzie.

The Congressional pro, who doesn't think the boys have a chance of licking part for the 72 holes, plans to leave a week in advance of the open schedule, June 6-7-8.

Indians Stop Cadet Rally, Triumph, 8-5

V. M. I. Makes Futile Effort to Catch W. and M.

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., May 14.—Trailing by 7 runs in the ninth inning, the V. M. I. Cadets staged a 4-run rally today, but fell short of overtaking William and Mary's Indians, who triumphed, 8 to 5.

Each team garnered 11 safeties, but Daly, Indian pitcher, was steadier in the pinches and received better support than Neal and Smith, Cadet moundsmen.

Lugar and Raffo, V. M. I., and Edmonson, W. & M., each hit safely three times, with two of Lugar's blows going for three bases and one of Edmonson's for a double. Church, Cadet infielder, also slammed a triple and Neal, Shade and Moore connected for two-baggers.

Middie Oarsmen Enter Race With Cornell, Yale

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 14.—Navy varsity oarsmen have been engaged in a special prep during the last few days for their entrance in the Carnegie Cup race on Lake Cayuga Saturday against crews of Cornell and Yale.

The middy eight will be an added starter by invitation of Cornell, and will not be eligible for the trophy award. The Tars are, however, particularly eager for the brush, as it will be the first time in 11 years that a Navy crew has clashed with Yale. The Middies disposed of the Ithacans in a regatta here a few weeks ago.

Columbia Ace Leading in Tourney

HITTING his shots as of old, Miller B. Stevinson, Columbia Country Club's perennial golf champion, negotiated the rain-soaked Chevy Chase course in 73, 4 over par, yesterday, to take the lead in the first day's qualifying of the club invitation tournament.

Stevinson paced 70 golfers with 12 handicaps or better who set out with high hopes yesterday to tackle the difficult and treacherous Chevy Chase layout.

With only 7 players cracking 80, the Columbia star assumed a 4-stroke lead over Hickman Greene, of Manor, and Ralph D. Quinter, jr., young Chevy Chase player.

Three in Tie at 78.

Alone in the 79 class was Louis Fuchs, of Indian Spring, who took 42 shots coming home after a fine 37.

Many other topnotchers battled futively with Old Man Par and, with a dozen or more stars scheduled to toe the mark today, their chances of making the championship flight appeared dark. Sam Rice, of Indian Spring, shot an even 80, and Forest Thompson, of Beaver Dam, an 80. Bill Harvey, of Manor, scored 82, and Maury Fitzgerald, of Kenwood, an 82.

Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, Woodmont invitation winner, and Dick Lunn, of Chevy Chase, a former Chevy Chase champion, both of whom are heavy favorites to win, will play this afternoon. Harry Pitt, of Manor; Spencer Overton and Ernie Caldwell, of Baltimore, also will open fire.

Stevinson matched par for the incoming nine with a brilliant 34. He took 39 going out, starting off with a five. On the short fourth Stevinson rammed a 15-footer for a birdie deuce, and knocked in another long putt for a birdie on the fifth. Then followed four holes of weird golf that wiped out his once-proud one-under-par golf. He overshot the sixth green and took a six. A bad pitch cost him a five on the seventh. He took a six on the eighth and a four on the short ninth.

Sinks 20-Foot Putt.

A 20-foot putt gave Stevinson a birdie three on the twelfth. His only bad hole on that nine was the fourteenth, where he went one over by taking a five. He was even par for the other seven holes.

Pitcher Stops Rally To Beat Thompson, 8-7

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Doubs, Md., May 14.—Doubs baseball team opened the season by defeating the Thompson Dairy nine, Washington, in a close tilt, 8 to 7. The game was won by the relief pitching of Carey, who succeeded Delauter in the ninth inning after one run had been scored and a runner on third that would have evened the count, and retired the side.

Three Tied for Lead In Hagerstown League

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Hagerstown, Md., May 14.—Hancock, the Cabbies and the Eagles, the last named two teams of this city, are tied for the lead in the Washington County Baseball League, with two victories and no defeats. Hancock defeated Williamsport, 10 to 6, the Cabbies won from Sharpsburg, 13 to 5, and the Eagles defeated the Antietams, 6 to 5.

Randolph-Macon Trims St. John's

Annapolis, Md., May 14.—Ray Doggett, ace of the Randolph-Macon College hurlers, was in superb form today, holding St. John's College to two hits as the Virginians triumphed, 5 to 1.

The Johnnies scored their lone run in the sixth inning when Johnny Lambrose dropped a Texas leaguer into right field, advanced to second when Warburton was safe on a ground ball, to third when Englar drew a pass, and scored when Pindell grounded out. The Yellow Jackets batted in 3 runs in the third inning and 2 more in the fifth.

Champion W.L. Team Ends Season

Special Dispatch to The Post.

LEXINGTON, Va., May 14.—Southern conference champions with a perfect record of eight victories and no defeats in the circuit, Washington and Lee's baseball team will bring the 1934-35 season for W. & L. teams to a close this week by entertaining the Indians of William and Mary and the Navy.

Games with William and Mary are scheduled tomorrow and Thursday. On Friday the Generals and the Navy nine will stage a "practice game," and on Saturday will play a full game as the final sports event of the year for Wilson field.

While the baseball team is writing finis to sports here for the spring, at least two of Coach Forrest Fletcher's track men will be seeking laurels at the Southern conference meet in Durham. Dick Dunaj, distance runner extraordinary who set a new mark in the 2-mile event of the Big Four meet here last Saturday, will run in the conference meet. Bill Schule, captain of the team and winner of the low hurdles in the Big Four's annual party, also will be entered at Duke. Coach Fletcher said today that several other members of the team probably will make the trip.

Washington and Lee's first ball game of the season was played with William and Mary at Williamsburg on March 25, the Indians winning by an 8-to-2 count. The following day, however, the Generals evened the count behind Dickman's hurling, winning 2 to 1.

Coach Dick Smith's ball tossers have played an even 20 games this year and have won 14, tied 2, and lost only 4. Four times the Generals licked V. P. I.; twice they defeated Maryland; and twice they defeated the University of Virginia.

Cherry Run Whipped By Rosemont Cubs, 5-3

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 14.—The Rosemont Cubs defeated the Cherry Run Club, 5-3, here. The Cubs doubled the output of hits on their opponents, getting 14 to the other's 7. Cherry Run went into the lead in the fourth inning, but held it only until the fifth when the Cubs went into the lead to stay.

Stotler, Cubs' lead-off man, and Shewbridge, the pitcher, were the heavy hitters, getting four each.

Maryland Nine Bows, 11-4, to Richmond

Physioc Pounded Hard in Early Innings as Foe Piles Up Lead.

UNIVERSITY OF RICHMOND'S formidable baseball team scored its second victory of the season over Maryland yesterday, winning, 11-to-4, at College Park.

The Spiders wasted no time getting to Steve Physico, Maryland veteran, scoring four runs in the first inning on four hits, and two more in the second. Physioc managed to blank Richmond in the third, but after the Virginians had scored another tally in the fourth he was yanked in favor of Nick Merryman, who stuck out the game. He, too, was touched briskly until he settled. He put the Spiders down in order the last two innings.

Terps Get 11 Hits.

Maryland got 11 hits off Buck Jacobs, who pitched all the way for Richmond, but the Spider hurler was tight in the pinches.

The Old Liners scored one run each in the first and seventh and their final two in the eighth.

Lacy, with two triples and a single and Campbell, with a three-bagger, and a pair of one-baggers, were leading Richmond batters. Charley Keller, heavy hitting Maryland center fielder, kept up his sensational pace with three hits in five tries. It was the seventeenth game in which he has hit safely. Bob Love, also of the Old Liners, gathered three hits, all singles.

refuse her entry for the women's national to be played at Minneapolis late this summer. All this is clear enough, but the fact also developed that if the Southern Association had not queried the U. S. G. A. but had simply accepted La Didrikson's entry she would have been permitted to play unmolested. The U. S. G. A. took the attitude that it can not be both prosecutor and judge. Somebody had to bring the matter up.

Racing at Clarksburg Discussed at Session

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 14.—At a meeting of the State racing commission and executive board of the Charles Town Jockey Club here, Beverly Broun, of Charleston, commission chairman, said the commission would be pleased if arrangements could be made for running races on the Clarksburg track, but the purpose of the meeting was not to survey the possibilities of establishing a jockey club here.

Those attending the meeting gave their attention to problems confronting the Charles Town Club as the date approaches for the spring racing meeting which will open May 29 at Charles Town.

Laurel High Smashed By Mount Rainier, 12-1

Mount Rainier High's baseball team walloped the Laurel High nine, 12-1, yesterday at Mount Rainier. It was the first game for the Mounts against another Prince Georges County rival.

Tillie Scott, pitching for the Mounts, allowed four hits and fanned 12. The winners slashed out 18 hits against four Laurel hurlers, counting in every inning except the fourth and fifth. Leading the Mounts' attack were Steve Miller, with a double and three singles; Scott, with a two-bagger and a pair of singles, and George Taylor, with two doubles and a one-baser.

another try with the Indians and he won five and lost one last year when he appeared chiefly in relief roles. A fast curve ball is his forte. He had an earned run average of 3.88 last season.

With the abundance of pitchers on his staff, Johnson has been unable to find a place for Bean as a starter this season. He was attracted to Stewart, however, because of the Tribe's lack of southpaw talent.

Purchased in 1933.

Stewart was purchased by the Nats from the Browns in 1933 when he was a consistent winner. His specialty with the Nats was beating the Yankees. Last year, however, he hit a sharp decline in company with other Washington pitchers, winning only seven against eleven defeats.

The veteran left-hander was a salary holdout this season, reporting 16 days late at Biloxi and being forced to pay his own training expenses. Manager Buckey Harris started him in only one game and he was knocked from the box in three innings by the Athletics. He was scheduled, however, to face the Indians here tomorrow, until the shifting tides of baseball deposited him on the Cleveland roster.

Following her conquests in the 1931 women's national track and field championships and the next year in the olympics, Miss Didrikson took up golf. She devoted two years to practice and instruction before entering her first tournament—her State championship—which she won by defeating Mrs. Dan Chandler, 2 up, in 36 holes.

Catcher, Hit in Throat, Improving in Hospital

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Cumberland, Md., May 14.—The condition of Hubert Radcliffe, 28, of Ridgeley, W. Va., baseball player, who was struck in the throat during a game Sunday, was reported as improved today at Allegany Hospital.

Radcliffe, teacher in Ridgeley school, is catcher and manager of the American Legion baseball team. He was catching in a game with the Frostburg team when a fast ball thrown by Phil Fleming, his pitcher, struck Joe Young, a Frostburg batter, deflected from Young's wrist and struck Radcliffe on the throat. After hospital aid, he returned to the park, but was unable to talk above a whisper. Later he returned to the hospital where he is being treated for a hemorrhage condition.

Finer Field Predicted In West Virginia Open

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 14.—A finer field than teed off last year at Wheeling is predicted for the third annual West Virginia open golf tournament to be held on the links of the Parkersburg Country Club June 13, 14 and 16.

Rader Jewett, West Virginia's open champion, will defend his crown, Jack Hoblitzell, Parkersburg amateur, is regarded a real threat.

Losing Streak Lengthened By Hoyas

Temple's Five Hits Enough to Beat Georgetown by 5-2 Score.

CONTINUING in the evil tenor of their ways, Georgetown's Hilarious Hilltoppers stuck out their collective chins and received a 5-2 pasting from Temple yesterday at the Hilltop.

The Owls solved Ed Hargaden's twists for only six hits, but they were beautiful babies—two doubles and one a triple—and all figured in the run-making. The Syracuse side-wheeler kept the blows fairly well scattered, but while Temple picked up a run here and there Georgetown failed miserably in the clutches and had to be content with its two runs.

Bob Owston mowed the Hilltoppers down in machine-gun style, holding them to five puny singles, one by Hargaden, who also scored one of his team's two runs. "Maggie" Maguire's single in the ninth brought him home from second.

Jeanette, Ring Menace of 1906-21, Seeks Title—Through Protege

By Jack Cuddy.

United Press Correspondent.

UNION, N. J., May 14.—This is a tale of black magic—of "self - transmahgration"—involving the passage of an ancient black warrior's prowess, fighting heart and ringcraft into the body of a youth.

Most persons in this hillside town do not believe in transmigration of the soul, nor even in transmigration of the sock, but "Old Black Joe" Jeanette is an exception.

Joe Jeanette, scourge of the two heavy divisions during much of his ring career from 1906 to 1921, revealed tonight he had passed his former powers into the body of young Gene Mickens, the 22-year-old Weehawken Negro, who last night smashed out an amazing eight-round victory over Sammy Slaughter at Newark. Slaughter, of Terre Haute, Ind., is a nationally known middleweight who recently graduated into the light-heavy division.

"'Bout a year now, I been makin' Gene Mickens into Joe Jeanette," explained the 56-year-old chap, whose seven battles with Jack Johnson and 18 with Sam Langford wrote a blazing chapter in ring history. "An' las' night Ah knowed Ah had done it."

Slaughter was slated to fight a better-known boxer in Newark last night, but illness prevented the latter's appearance. At 4 p. m. Joe Jeanette was asked if his boy, Mickens, would substitute. "Sho—I tol' them, sho—Micken:'ll fight."

And when the first gong rang, it was just like on the night, many years ago, when Joe stepped into the ring for the first time with the mighty Sam Langford. That was up at Chelsea, Mass. Joe was just coming up then, and given little chance against the Boston tar baby. But he stopped the tar baby in the eighth round.

"Seemed like when Gene stepped out theah against Slaughter, it was me answering the bell." Although Jeanette is as bald as an eight ball, his muscles are flabby and there's fat around his belt, he was up there under the floodlights punching again—a black puma galvanized by the swish of arms and crunch of gloves.

"Ah was nevah champion in the old days," Jeanette admitted. "But Ah'm on mah way to the title now—in Mickens. Lightheavy title; maybe the heavyweight."

How did Joe accomplish this "transmahgration?" Joe, who runs a gymnasium over his brick garage here, saw Mickens boxing as an amateur about a year ago. "Ah took over the boy. He looked like Ah used to. Ah teached him and trained him and rubbed him—an' prayed over him. Ah transpired myself right into him."

In 12 professional fights Mickens lost only one decision, the first, but he reversed that later.

Silver Shares Renew Activity As Metal Rises

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Stock traders again today appeared willing to cash in on some of the good profits of the past week or so, but takers for the offerings were generally available at modest price concessions.

The financial district concentrated on winning the thought from the fireside chat of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Most evidence indicated its significant portion for market forces was the failure to indicate that foreign protests over our national silver-buying policy were likely to have any more effect than in the past in causing its abandonment or material modification.

Silver shares were among the best performers of the day before profit-taking canceled their early gains. The price of silver here and in London was marked up sharply. In New York imported bar silver was advanced 1⅛ cents to 74⅞ cents an ounce, the highest level in about two weeks. A number of active silver equities were ahead 1 to 2 points or so at their best, including American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco and U. S. Smelting.

Transactions in the stock exchange were a little brisker than in the previous session. The day's volume was 1,207,105 shares.

Cold Blights Wheat Prices

Rain Also Has Bearish Effect; Short Covering Checks Drop.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 14.—Bearish market factors finally prevailed in the grain pits today after a struggle at the opening. Corn reacted half a cent from an early advance of about a cent, and wheat, after rising with corn, weakened and closed lower.

Wheat closed slow, ¼ to ⅝ under yesterday's finish, July, 91⅞ to 92, and corn was ⅛ to ¾ higher, July, 80¾ to 80⅞. Oats were ¼ lower to ½ higher, July, 36⅜ to 36½. Provisions were 3 cents lower to 5 cents higher.

The main factor in the corn market was word of the heavy rainfall and cold of recent days, which were reported to have delayed planting operations. The forecast was for continuation of cool weather, with frost in some parts. Local shorts, covering after the recent declines, also helped raise prices.

Rye was off ¼ to ½, following yesterday's severe declines, again establishing new season lows. Provisions were dull, but strength in hogs and corn offset the lacking of purchasing power and they averaged slightly higher.

Tide Water Oil To Buy Simms

$8,775,000 Price Subject to Stockholders' Vote on June 17.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—An offer by Tide Water Oil Co. to buy the stock of the Simms Oil Co. for $8,775,000 plus interest was announced today by Lehman Brothers, the New York investment banking house negotiating the sale.

The Simms Oil Co. is the principal operating subsidiary of Simms Petroleum Co. A meeting of stockholders of the parent organization has been called for June 17 to vote on the sale, which already has been accepted by directors subject to stockholders' approval.

If stockholders approve the sale, Simms Petroleum contemplates an initial distribution of $1 a share in cash on the 462,562 shares of common stock outstanding December 31, 1934, with additional distributions to be made as funds become available from the payment of deferred portions of the sale price.

Edward T. Moore, president of Simms, said that $4,620,000 of the purchase price was to be a fixed payment, and the balance, $4,155,000, a contingent payment out of production.

Assets to be owned by Simms Oil Co. at the time of the sale would consist primarily of its producing and undeveloped oil properties in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas and Louisiana.

Moore in a letter to stockholders said "the remaining fixed assets of Simms Petroleum Co. will consist generally of the producing properties at Smackover, Ark.; the refineries at Smackover and Dallas, pipe lines, marketing stations, and certain minor material inventories.

"It is the intention of directors to liquidate these assets as promptly as is consistent with obtaining fair values."

Dissolution of the company after the sale has been decided upon by directors.

Morgenthau's Contention That U. S. Is Better Off Because It Is Receiving Precious Metals Instead of Securities Meets With Much Criticism.

By a Special Correspondent.

New York, May 14.—Secretary Morgenthau has painted a greatly exaggerated picture of the losses suffered by American investors in the purchase of foreign securities, bankers here who were concerned in the quotation of foreign bonds assert. On the other hand, banking observers contend that he unduly minimized the damage done abroad by the current heavy inflow of gold and silver into the United States. Accordingly, his contention that this country is better off because it is receiving precious metals instead of securities for its favorable balance of international payments meets with a great deal of criticism from those who have felt that the time is approaching when the American capital market can again be opened to a moderate amount of selected foreign financing.

Secretary Morgenthau asserted in his radio broadcast that two-thirds of our net foreign investment is in partial or complete default. In so far as war debts due the Government are included in this compilation, it is held meaningless. The contention abroad is that these debts should not be considered on a commercial basis, because of the special circumstances under which they were incurred. Also, the more technical argument is advanced that through the Hoover moratorium this country recognized a link between reparations and war debt payments. Whatever the arguments pro and con, it is argued that the record of foreign bonds should be measured purely by experience of the public with offered issues.

5.4 Billion in Foreign Dollar Bonds Outstanding.

The foreign bondholders' protective council has latterly reported the total amount of dollar bonds still outstanding here of foreign governments, political subdivisions and corporations enjoying a government guarantee at $5,470,000,000. Of this total, approximately 13 per cent were reported in complete default on interest payments and an additional 20 per cent in partial default, the bondholders receiving partial cash payment, scrip, refunding bonds or blocked currencies. Furthermore, even on the bonds in complete default, in nearly all cases the intention has been asserted to resume debt service, at least in some part, as soon as economic and financial conditions become more propitious.

Even the council's figures, however, while far less gloomy than those presented by Secretary Morgenthau as to the fate of our foreign investments, tend to make the situation appear worse than it really has been. In the first place, several hundred million dollars of foreign bonds have been redeemed in cash by issuers, often at substantial premiums. Switzerland, France, Holland, the Dutch East Indies and Finland have all made heavy redemptions of dollar bonds. Secondly, a large amount of foreign bonds originally issued here has been repatriated through purchase in the open market by nationals of other countries, so that Americans were able to dispose of such obligations in the open market. In the third place, several issues of foreign bonds are being serviced at their full gold value, so that holders of such obligations are receiving a substantial profit.

Another factor stressed by bankers here is the relatively high average rate of interest that has been paid on foreign bonds, which offsets in some degree the defaults that have occurred.

Foreign Investments Stand Comparison With Domestic.

All in all, therefore, considering the fact that the foreign bonds remaining outstanding in this countdy include most of the weaker loans floated, and that high rates of interest reflected their semi-speculative character, the record of our foreign investments as a whole is held to compare favorably with that of many classes of domestic securities.

Bankers point also to Great Britain's relatively favorable record as an exporter of capital over a long period of years. Considering the relatively high rate of interest she has received, Britain has found foreign investment as a whole profitable. However, a more liberal policy toward imports of goods, to enable debtor nations to service their obligations, and a willingness to continue to finance debtor countries in good standing on a reasonable basis through depressions as well as booms, are held necessary prerequisites to a sound foreign investing policy for any creditor nation.

Secretary Morgenthau's address is regarded by many careful observers here as marking a further move in the direction of economic nationalism. By insisting upon precious metals as the sole medium of payment acceptable to the United States to settle a favorable balance of payments this country will tend to become the burial ground of the world's output of gold and silver, it is felt, a role filled in past years by India and China.

Bankers Offer Issue Of Delaware Bonds

New York, May 14.—The First Boston Corporation, Brown Harriman & Co., Inc. and Dougherty, Corkan & Co., of Philadelphia, are offering today a new issue of $2,840,000 State of Delaware bonds, dated April 1, 1935, and due April 1, 1938, to 1966, inclusive.

The bonds, which are issued for the purpose of refunding outstanding callable bonds, are direct obligations of the State of Delaware and are legal investment for savings banks and trust funds in New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Market Moves Of the Day Seen In Brief Review

	Tues.	Mon.
Advances	295	337
Declines	297	270
Unchanged	194	183
Total issues	786	790

Stocks—Traders appeared willing to take their profits of recent days at small price concessions. Movement was in a narrow range. Silver shares performed well on Morgenthau's non-heed declaration. Sales up to 1,207,105 shares.

Bonds—Seventeen-point rise in Kelly Springfield loans on reorganization plans featured a dull seesaw market. Transfers for the session at $11,531,000.

Curb—Selling in utilities unnerved the list, although gains were noted by a number of specialties. Commonwealth Edison lost 8½ points. Sales increased to 266,000 shares.

Grains—Cold and rain bore down on wheat prices with other cereals following in sympathy. Short covering partially checked the decline. May wheat closed at 90⅞, and May corn at 87⅛.

Cotton—Reigned irregular with near months feeling the weight of liquidation. Closing quotations were off 2 points to 12 points higher. May closed at 11.78.

Sugar—Raw sugar was steady at 3.25, while refined closed at 5.25, both unchanged.

Coffee—Spot coffee was quiet. Rio, No. 7, closed at 7, and Santos, No. 4, sold last at 8⅜.

Advances in New York and London; Futures Jump.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Silver prices pushed higher in principal markets of the world today. Wall street analysts thought that Secretary Morgenthau's failure to indicate any deviation in the silver program in his address last night had prompted fresh buying.

The price for foreign silver for commercial use rose 1⅛ cents in New York to 74⅞ cents, the highest price in a fortnight. This followed an even sharper gain in London, where the price was pushed up 1¼ pence to 34¾ pence an ounce, the equivalent of 76¼ cents in New York.

Zephyr Train Is Delivered To the B. & O.

The 'Abraham Lincoln' Will Be on Chicago-St. Louis Run.

By R. Karl von Lewinski.

The first modern streamlined train to be received in this vicinity was delivered to the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad in Baltimore yesterday. After a series of public exhibitions it will be placed in service on the road's Chicago-St. Louis run.

Built of high tensile Cor-Ten steel, the six-car train has been christened the "Abraham Lincoln." It embodies every comfort and protection that has been devised by modern railroad engineering.

Royal blue in color, the train recalls the early days of railroading when the B. & O. operated the so-called "Blue Line" between this city and New York. Motive power for the new train will be furnished by two new steam locomotives, the "Lord and Lady Baltimore," which will be approximately half as heavy as the conventional type of engine.

Next Train Powered by Diesel.

Another and similar new train that has been ordered by the B. & O. will be delivered in the course of the summer, and is to be powered by Diesel engines. Tests on the relative efficiency of both types will be conducted under similar conditions to establish a policy for the future.

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio, a firm believer in the merits of steam, is sponsoring the tests in the hope of proving that it has not been outdated by more recently developed forms of motive power.

The train will normally operate with six cars but will have an extra coach and parlor car in reserve to accommodate the expected increase in business. Despite the fact the new cars are about half as heavy as the old models, they are wider.

Y. E. Booker, head of a local investment firm and president of the Washington Stock Exchange will attend the annual spring meeting of the board of governors of the Investment Bankers Association of America at White Sulphur Springs. The meet begins to day and ends on the nineteenth. Booker is chairman of the investment code committee in this district and vice chairman of the Southeastern group.

Kamerow Addresses Probus Club.

Life insurance as a means for stabilizing estates and assuring dependents an income when means of support are suddenly cut off was discussed by J. A. Kamerow at a meeting of the Probus Club in the Hay Adams House yesterday.

Stabilization of estates to provide uninterrupted and undecreased income for dependents was deemed highly important by Kamerow, who deplored the fact that current information on currency stabilization took too little heed of this subject.

Despite the fact that life insurance is constantly gaining new supporters, Kamerow declared, many fail to appreciate the importance of providing an income commensurate with that of the family provider.

$5,100,000 Sinclair Price for Richfield

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, May 14.—The Richfield Oil Co., of New York City, today was sold to the Sinclair Oil Co. for $5,100,000 after Richfield settled for $5,500,000 claims of the Federal Government for oil taken under allegedly fraudulent leases from the Elk Hills naval petroleum reserves in Kern County, Calif.

Sale of the Richfield assets in New York to Sinclair was ordered several months ago by Federal Judge William P. James, but the Federal Government appeals, then withdrew its appeal upon condition the $5,500,000 settlement be paid before the sale.

Auto Rise Half U. S. Industrial Upturn, Says Col. L. P. Ayres

But Vigor of Motors Is Not an Adequate Basis for General Recovery, Declares Cleveland Banker, Who Holds Expansion of Other Industries Is Essential.

Cleveland, May 14.—"Most of the business recovery that we have had in this country in the past two years has been contributed by three industrial corporations," says an article in the Cleveland Trust Co. Business Bulletin, to be published tomorrow, edited by Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president of the trust company. The article says in part:

"They are the three leading producers of automobiles who manufacture most of the cars and trucks that are made in this country. All the net gain in the volume of industrial production from 1933 to 1934 was equal to that made by the automotive industries, and the suppliers of its materials, and the gains so far in the production of 1935 over 1934 have been mostly due to the same factors.

"These astonishing results are a striking tribute to the ability of those producers to improve the quality of their goods, and to decrease their prices, in spite of higher wage rates and shorter hours. Nevertheless, the sustained vigor of automobile manufacturing does not furnish an adequate basis for general business recovery. We need an expanding recovery spreading from one industry to another and another like a beneficent contagion that will effectively absorb unemployment.

"The latest Federal Reserve Board figures are for March. They show factory production at higher levels than one year earlier, and the same is true for factory employment and pay rolls. They show that mineral output was lower than in March of last year, and construction less, and freight-car loadings smaller, and the value of department store sales less.

Unemployment.

"We still have about 11,000,000 of unemployed workers, and the number has not greatly changed during the past year and a half. The key to our depression problem of unemployment is in the idleness of the producers of goods, for it is because there has been a great reduction in the output of goods that there is much unemployment among the providers of services.

"The unemployment among the producers of durable goods in the depression periods has been severe. It has constituted in this 16-year period more than three-fourths of all the unemployment among the producers of goods, and there is good evidence to indicate that similar proportions have existed in the depressions over a long period of previous years. It is here, among the producers of durable goods, that we must seek the key to our depression problem of unemployment.

"The richest 20 per cent of the farmers receive almost 50 per cent of all the farm income, while the richest 20 per cent of the non-farmers receive over 58 per cent of the non-farm income. On this basis it appears that the concentration of wealth among the more wealthy farmers is almost as excessive as it is among the more wealthy people in the industrial and commercial groups of our population. Moreover the concentration of poverty shows a somewhat similar condition at the other end of the economic scale. Among farmers the poorest 20 per cent of the families receive less than 4 per cent of the farm income, while among non-farmers families the poorest 20 per cent receive just over 4 per cent of the income.

New Issues Lacking.

"The old law that supply will respond to demand has been suspended so far as new capital issues are concerned. The evidence that this is so is to be found in the fact that abnormally high prices for existing bonds do not succeed in calling forth an increased supply of new bonds. The demand for investment bonds of good quality is so great that price quotations for them have advanced to new high levels, and for some classes of bonds the prices have risen to levels higher than any ever reached previously. Meanwhile the supply of new issues does not increase in response to this unusual demand. There is no precedent for this anomalous condition.

"In part of 1933 and during much of 1934 it was clear that the new securities act had made new financing almost impossible. That condition no longer maintains in a determining degree, for through revision and by means of new interpretations and regulations the act has been rendered partly workable."

Exchange Seat Rises $10,000 to $105,000

New York, May 14.—Following last week's sales of seats on the New York Stock Exchange at successively higher prices, arrangements were made yesterday for a transaction at $105,000. This figure represented a gain of $10,000 from the previous sale. It compared with a low of $65,000 a few months ago, and with a price of $80,000 in the last ten days. Increased trading activity on the stock exchange unquestionably has been the principal influence in this abrupt upturn.

Kelly Tire 6s Jump 17 Points

Reorganized Company to Be Backed by Goodyear.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—The 6 per cent bonds of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. made a spectacular advance of $17 per $100 bond on the stock exchange today following the filing of reorganization plans for the company in Baltimore. From a low of $53.75 for each $100 bond the price rose to $70 under a heavy demand that aggregated $120,000 par value, within an hour after announcement was made that the plans had been filed.

Baltimore, May 14 (AP).—The backing of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. would be given the Kelly-Springfield Tire Co. by a reorganization plan for the latter concern, now operating under a trusteeship, filed here today with Federal Judge W. Calvin Chestnut.

Under the plan, holders of the 10-year 6 per cent subordinate notes would receive 75 per cent of the par value thereof in cash; holders of the preference stock, $10 per share in cash and two shares of Goodyear common stock for five shares of the Kelly-Springfield preferred stock; holders of common stock, $1 per share in cash and one share of Goodyear common stock for 25 shares of the Kelly-Springfield common stock.

Federal Issues Edge Forward In Bond Market

Meet Profit-Taking Near Close; Rails Show Strength.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—The corporate bond market see-sawed up and down in a purely trading range today and the closing gong caught leaders midway between highs and lows. A spectacular advance in Kelly-Springfield 6s was an outstanding feature.

U. S. Government securiites made fair progress up until the final hour, when profit taking developed and peaks were shaded. Closing prices were six thirty-seconds higher to four thirty-seconds lower.

Although there was nothing especially unfavorable to the utilities in the day's news, this group gave the most ragged performance of any and failed to revive after a sinking spell around midday. Rails, however, were able to push higher, and industrials ended about even.

Prominent rail bonds edging forward included several issues of the St. Paul Railway, which gained 1 or more points, and obligations of Delaware & Hudson, Great Northern, Nickel Plate, Northern Pacific and Atlantic Coast Line. N. Y. Central consolidated 4s eased a trifle.

Transfers aggregated $11,531,000, par value, compared with $11,685,000 on Monday. The Associated Press averages were two-tenths of a point higher to four-tenths of a point lower.

Cotton Lacks Definite Trend

New Crop Buying Said to Be for Account of the Government.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Cotton was irregular today with near months relatively easier under liquidation, while new crop deliveries were steadier on buying credited partly to Government account. The market closed at a net loss of 2 points to an advance of 12 points.

Bleachable cottonseed oil closed easy at 2 to 12 points net decline. Sales, 58 contracts. The April consumption of 138,250 barrels, against 166,292 consumed in March and 231,144 in April last year, as reported by the Census Bureau, was given a bearish interpretation and was responsible for the easier ruling, although after showing net losses of 15 to 18 points there was a partial rally on buying by refining interests and final prices were several points up from the lowest. Bleachable spot nominal; May closed 10.37; July, 10.55; September, 10.59; October, 10.59; December, 10.53.

Com. Edison Off 8½ on Curb

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 14.—Mixed tendencies were in evidence in today's curb market trading. A number of specialties pushed higher but selling in utilities was a restraining factor. Transfers approximated 266,000 shares, compared with 255,000 the day before.

Commonwealth Edison dropped some 8½ points on active offerings. American Gas & Electric yielded more than 1, while Electric Bond & Share was off a major fraction. Other issues moderately reactionary included Gulf Oil, Aluminum Co. of America, Technicolor and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. A steady to firm tone was shown by Glen Alden, International Petroleum, Hiram Walker, Flintkote "A," Humble Oil, Bridgeport Machine, American Cyanamid "B" and Swift Internacional.

Sales Representatives Meet at Hamilton

The monthly meeting of the Washington Sales Representatives Association was held yesterday in the Hamilton Hotel. The guests of honor included the following executives of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.: S. W. Zink, A. G. Russell, A. C. Wilson, N. B. Turner and B. W. Green.

Arthur Godfrey, radio announcer, furnished the entertainment. The luncheon was under the direction of R. C. Woods, president, assisted by George C. Cook, master of ceremonies.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Rates in principal foreign exchange centers moved with narrow irregularity against the dollar yesterday.

In London the American unit was unchanged at 4.87⅝ to the pound sterling, while in New York the pound likewise held even at $4.87¼.

The dollar gained slightly in Paris at the equivalent of 6.588 cents to the French franc, compared with the overnight New York rate of 6.59 cents. In New York the franc lifted to one-eighth of a cent to 6.59 cents in subsequent dealings.

The Dutch guilder was .03 of a cent higher in the American market at 67.75 cents, but the Swiss franc continued without change at 32.33 cents.

PROPOSALS

OFFICE OF THE ARCHITECT OF THE Capitol, Washington, D. C., May 13, 1935.—Sealed bids, in triplicate, will be opened in this office at 3 p. m., MAY 28, 1935, for the construction of concrete walks in squares 574, 575, 630, 631, 633 and 721, and in reservation 12, for the enlargement of the Capitol grounds, Washington, D. C. Drawings and specifications may be obtained without deposit, by qualified contractors, on application to this office. DAVID LYNN, Architect of the Capitol. 15

COMMISSIONERS, D. C., WASHINGTON, May 15, 1935. Sealed proposals will be received at Room 320, District Building, until 2 o'clock p. m., MAY 27, 1935, for furnishing Steel for Identification Number Plates—penal institutions; MAY 28, 1935, Scrap Iron—penal institutions; MAY 29, 1935, Printing Machinery—public schools; JUNE 3, 1935, Pianos for Public Schools; JUNE 7, 1935, Patterns, Gauges, Cast Iron Castings, etc., for lamp posts—electrical division. For specifications and information, apply at Room 320, District Building.

COMMISSIONERS, D. C., WASHINGTON, May 7, 1935. Sealed proposals will be received at Room 509, District Building until 2 O'CLOCK P. M., E. S. T., JUNE 4, 1935, and then publicly opened, for furnishing and installing Sewage Pumps and Equipment, for a Sewage Treatment Plant at Blue Plains, D. C. (Unit No. 3). A more complete description of the work and full information for bidders is given in the drawings, specifications, and in other contract papers, which may be obtained at the office of Chief Clerk, Engineer Department, Room 427, District Building, upon deposit of a certified check, payable to the Collector of Taxes, D. C., in the sum of $100, to insure return in good condition. Not more than three complete sets of drawings, specifications and contract papers will be furnished to any one general contractor. No proposal will be accepted unless accompanied by a guaranty of not less than five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid in the form of a certified check made payable to the Collector of Taxes, D. C. U. S. Bonds, or the bond of an approved surety company. Security for the faithful performance of the work shall be in the form of a surety bond in a penal sum equal to the estimated total contract price. A labor bond in an amount equal to the largest estimated aggregate pay roll for any one month is required. Public liability insurance in the sum of $5,000 and $10,000 is also required. The work called for by this proposal is to be performed in accordance with an agreement dated October 18, 1934, between the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works and is subject to the provisions of Title II of the National Industrial Recovery Act and the Rules and Regulations prescribed by the President and the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works. The Director of Reemployment for the District of Columbia is Edgar B. Young, 480 Indiana avenue northwest. No bid will be considered unless accompanied by the bidder's certificate of compliance, properly executed, to the effect that the bidder is complying with and will continue to comply with each applicable code of fair competition, or in the absence of such code or codes, with the President's Reemployment Agreement. Copies of this certificate may be obtained at Room 427 District Building. The Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all proposals and to waive informalities as they deem best for the interest of the District of Columbia. Final award of contract is subject to approval of the Federal Emergency Administrator of Public Works. Attention is called to the fact that not less than the minimum wage rates prescribed by the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works must be paid on this project. my8,9,10,15,16,17

Once Overs

By H. I. Phillips.

Imaginary Interviews.

(President Roosevelt and Admiral Byrd.)

Roosevelt: Welcome home, Admiral. And how are things in Little America?

Byrd: Well, it will still take years of scientific study before anybody can know the real situation there.

Roosevelt: That's true of America, too, Admiral. How did you stand it?

Byrd: The weather was frightfully cold most of the time. It was often 50 below zero.

Roosevelt: That's nothing; you should have been with me in Washington during the national Chamber of Commerce convention!

• • • •

Byrd: How have you been, Mister President?

Roosevelt: There have been times when I thought I had also discovered the bottom of the world. You had one big advantage over me.

Byrd: What was that?

Roosevelt: You could always wear earlaps without being accused of shutting your ears to criticism. By the way, what was your most harrowing experience down there?

Roosevelt: No, but one never can tell what may happen in the 1936 campaign.

• • • •

Byrd: For months I never heard a human voice.

Roosevelt: What a treat! But don't tell me you couldn't even hear Huey Long down there?

Byrd: Not even by radio relay.

Roosevelt: Some fellows have all the luck. What of your scientific observations?

• • • •

Byrd: Well, they were very much like all bugs except that they had never been able to get on the radio and attack a government. We also found that the ice age is at its full flood tide in Little America.

Roosevelt: Don't be too positive about that, Admiral. I think the ice age is at its full flood in the editorial columns of the Republican newspapers.

• • • •

Roosevelt: Say, Admiral, now that you're back, what's your financial status? Do you need a loan?

Byrd: Mister President, I don't want a thing.

Roosevelt (pinning a second medal on him): Here! Have another medal!

Competition for Reno.

Florida has passed a divorces-while-you-wait law, in a bid for the Reno and Mexico tourist trade. The question anybody may expect to be asked when announcing a Florida trip from now on will be, "Fish, fruit or divorce?"

We understand Florida will do everything to make divorces simple, swift and painless. There is even a report that depositions will be taken at the race tracks any afternoon and that the judges will be glad to hold sessions on swimming rafts.

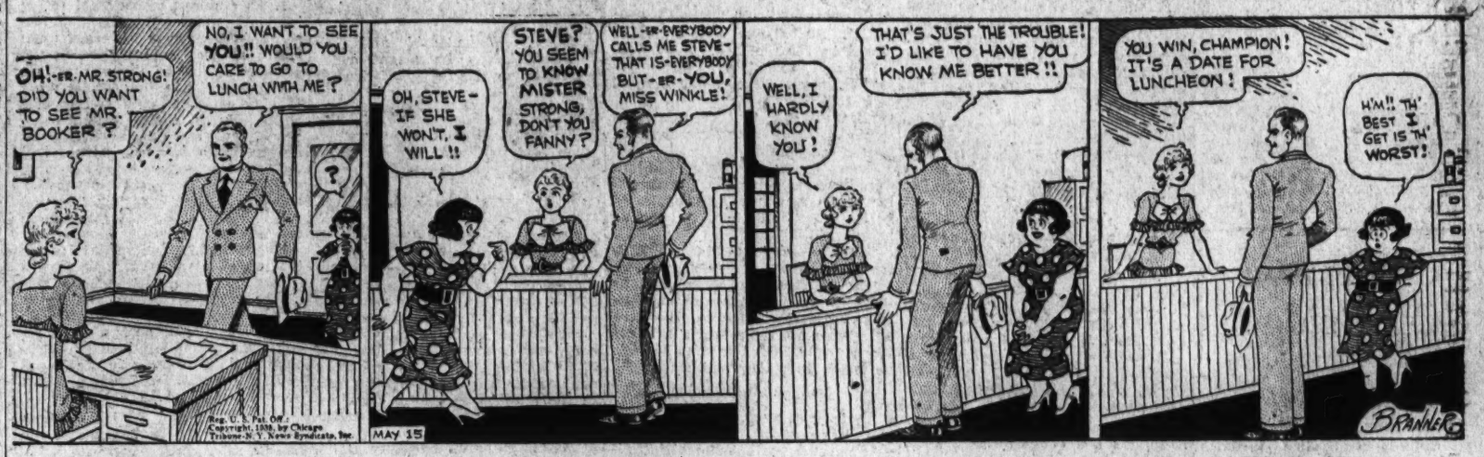

Next winter you will, of course, hear of the thousands of people going to Florida for their lawyer's health.

The GAME of LIFE

By Priscilla Wayne

Despite her mother's objections, Ellen Mallory gives up her career as a tennis player and marries Mike Dale. Mike objects to her working, but she feels she must do so to pay off family debts. Ellen discovers that Mike is running around with another girl and determines to divorce him, convinced that their marriage is a failure.

BUT not to the satisfaction of Aunt Ellen. The two women faced each other over the breakfast table, waiting by common consent to have it out after Bob had gone off to school and before white-faced Ellen came creeping down to take up the task of living without Michael.

"It's a crime and a shame," Aunt Ellen said pointedly and with no attempt to hide her animosity toward her sister-in-law, "for any one to try and influence Ellen against her husband. She loves Mike. The poor little thing cried herself to sleep last night. It's going to break her heart if he doesn't come and try to make up."

"He won't come and try to make up," mama said with inner satisfaction. She hoped what she said was true. She hoped that she had given Michael Dale to understand that he wasn't wanted around there.

"You mean—you mean, Rose Mallory, that you would urge Ellen to get a divorce?"

"That's exactly what I would urge her to do. She hadn't any business marrying in the first place. A girl with the talents Ellen has owes them to the world. The time will come when Ellen will be a tennis star, famous all over the world. And she's got a good business head."

"You'd rob Ellen of the greatest happiness she could have—a good husband, home, babies?"

Mama laughed, tossed her head scornfully. "I certainly would—and will. The time will come when Ellen Mallory will thank me for this day. The time will come when she'll be glad she hasn't buried her talents."

But poor little Ellen wondered if that time could ever come. The hours of the day wore on and Mike did not telephone, did not come. She went once to telephone. It could do no harm to call Mary Tuttle down at the office.

Course Seemed Wise.

Mama came into the room just as Ellen started to phone. "If you'd planned to telephone Michael, don't," mama said. Her voice seemed to admit there was something she had left unsaid.

"Has he telephoned to you, mama?" Ellen's voice trembled with eagerness.

Rose Mallory hoped that she might be forgiven. But, to her little, grasping mind, the lie she was about to tell seemed eminently justifiable. "I telephoned him."

"You telephoned Michael" It seemed to Ellen that she must faint at the news. Her heart pounded, the room seemed to sway before her.

"I did," Rose spoke slowly, emphatically. "Oh, Ellen, I hate to tell you this—believe me, little girl, it—it breaks my heart, too."

"You mean that Michael doesn't want to make up with me. You mean that he said he didn't."

"That's what I mean, dear," Rose Mallory lied. "Please, Ellen, dear, take it for the best. Believe mother when she says that sometimes even a heartbreak is for our own good.

Marriage a Mistake.

"Ellen, he thinks your marriage has been a mistake—he said that he knew that now. He said that if you wanted to go ahead—and get a divorce—that he wouldn't contest it. He believed that a divorce would be for the best."

"He said—that?"

"Yes, dear—Ellen, don't take it so hard."

"Michael said that our marriage was a failure—that divorce would be for the best?"

Even scheming Rose Mallory shuddered to hear the heartbreak in the young voice. "He did, Ellen dear. I—I wouldn't tell you—if he hadn't said it."

"Then he—he loves Marjorie Hutton?"

"He didn't say so, dear. But he—must. That's a man's way—always. Put the blame on the woman. Your marriage was a mistake—because he's tired of you—because he wants to marry another girl."

Mother Was Elated.

"I—I guess you're right, Mama," poor Ellen said.

"You'll know that I'm right, Ellen dear," her mother said, trying to keep the secret elation from her voice. "The time will come when you'll be very, very glad."

But lying in her little room through the long watches of the dreary afternoon Ellen wondered. Wondered if the time would ever come when her body, her very soul itself, would not long for the loving embrace of Michael's arms.

It was easy enough, it seemed, to get a divorce even from a man one loved with all her heart—would love as long as life itself existed.

There had been a long hour or two with Mama in an attorney's office. The attorney was a thin little man—for some unaccountable reason Ellen had always disliked him. But Mama pointed out that he must be a good attorney.

Arguments Seemed Sound.

"He drives a big car and lives in that great, big, beautiful house he built just before his wife died. Any man who can hire a chauffeur and a housekeeper and a maid or two and live like that must be making a lot of money. And he couldn't be making a lot of money unless he was making good in his profession."

Mama's arguments seemed very sound. But Ellen was scarcely listening. She must go with Mama to this man. She must talk to him against Mike—when everything in the whole, wide world that she wanted was Mike—his arms around her, his kiss of forgiveness warm on her lips.

She tried to tell this to Mama. She had been mistaken if Mama would relax for an instant in her determination.

"Forgive. Huh? He'd better be talking about getting you to forgive him. You aren't the one who stepped out on this marriage, are you? You did your faithful best, didn't you, even to paying part of the finances of the home?"

"But, Mama, Mike didn't want me to——"

"Ellen," Mama said and her daughter knew she meant every word, "if you don't go through with this thing I'll never forgive you."

Culbertson On Bridge

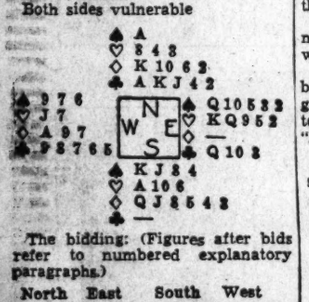

1411

Needed No Prompting.

I was recently asked whether the Culbertson System includes Ace-showing. My answer was that it is folly for any system to depend solely upon Ace-showing bids to arrive at slams. The most vital part of slam bidding is the showing of intrinsic values, through such bids as the forcing takeout, the jump trump rebid, and the interrogatory cue-bid. Even the four-five notrump convention, the wholesale showing of Aces, must be used with due consideration for the "body" of the hand.

Experienced players will use Ace-showing bids under any system without being prompted. There is no better way on occasion to destroy the inhibition of heavy adverse bidding than to make cue-bids in the adverse suits.

North, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1♣	1♠	Dbl.(1)	Pass(2)
Pass(3)	2♡	3◇(4)	Pass
4◇(5)	Pass	4♡(6)	Pass
4♠(7)	Pass	6◇(8)	Pass
Pass	Pass

1—Fearing a misfit, and feeling it useless to show a minor suit in which North might be weak, South decided to double.
2—Praying for deliverance!
3—It is a close question whether North should pass or rebid.
4—South now decides to enter the bidding and try for game, although a double would probably have been better.
5—A bid made not in hope and joy, but merely to keep faith!
6—Once the diamond suit is confirmed, South has visions of a slam. He sees that North's top clubs will yield discards for one or both losing hearts. His first-round command of the suit may mean that there are no losers at all. He seizes the opportunity to assert this belief en route to five diamonds.
7—South's heart bid is sweet music to North's ears, and he naturally sings an answering refrain.
8—Visualizing the cross-ruff, South no longer hesitates to Slam the hand.

The Play.

South had no difficulty in making his contract, even against West's opening lead of the Ace of trumps and a trump continuation. South cashed the spade Ace and King, and the heart Ace; he discarded his two heart losers on the Ace and King of clubs, and then he was able to claim the balance by ruffing the losers in both hands. When the club Queen dropped he had even more winners than he needed.

Veteran Hiker to Give Lantern Slide Exhibit

Hikers and nature enthusiasts will have an opportunity to tour the scenic and historic places in the Potomac Valley from Great Falls to Chesapeake Bay in a lantern-slide exhibit and lecture to be given by Adrian Sizer, veteran Washington hiker and member of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club. The lecture is open to the public and will be held in the auditorium of the Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest, Thursday at 8 p. m.

Mr. Sizer promises many interesting hiking scenes and several rare historic scenes on the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal during its heyday as a great commercial artery between the Potomac and Ohio Rivers. Included are pictures of the great ice jam of 1918 which destroyed the waterfront, and scenes of adventurous canoeists shooting rapids and falls in the upper Potomac.

Charles Justice Wins Boys Club Trip to N.Y.

Selected as the best all-around boy in the Washington Boys Club, Charles Justice, 14, will be rewarded wtih a trip to New York with all expenses paid. In the metropolis he will be a delegate to the national convention of the Boys Club of America, Inc., at the Commodore Hotel.

Charles was selected on the strength of his attention, behavior and participation in the activities of the club. Second prize was won by Albert Thompson, 9, of the Georgetown branch, and third prize went to Buster Miller.

The Federal Diary

Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

PROVISIONS for promotions and salary increases in the new efficiency rating system have been described this week in this column, now comes the bad news — demotions and dismissals.

BAKER.

The following is a resume of the rules set forth by Civil Service Commission for pay reductions, demotions and dismissals, all of which are found to be more rigid than those under the old intricate efficiency rating system:

1. An employe whose final rating is "unsatisfactory" will not be continued longer in the work upon which he was engaged during the period covered by the rating. He will be assigned to duties more nearly commensurate with his ability, in a lower classification grade, and his compensation will be fixed at a rate not in excess of the middle salary rate for such grade. Should no suitable vacancy be available in a lower classification grade, he will be separated from the service for the inefficiency.

2. An employe whose final rating is "fair" and who is receiving a salary above the middle salary rate of the grade to which his position is allocated will be demoted one salary step, but if he is already receiving a salary equal to or below such middle salary rate, he is not subject to a salary reduction on that account.

3. For Cu-2 and Cu-3 the fourth salary rate will be considered the middle rate.

4. No employe will be demoted or dismissed for inefficiency on the basis of a rating covering a period of less than 90 days.

5. Under the provisions of Section 9 of the classification act, an action taken under the foregoing rules for salary reductions, demotions or dismissals on account of inefficiency, will require the prior approval of the Civil Service Commission. Hence, all salary reductions, etc., will be reported to the commission for consideration, with the department's recommendation and further action deferred until the commission's approval is formally given.

6. The commission will inquire into each case of proposed demotion, etc., to determine whether or not the efficiency rating has been made in accordance with the plan and procedure set forth in this circular. Employes will be given opportunity to present such information as may be pertinent thereto.

7. The commission will formally act on each case presented and inform the department of its action.

8. The commission "believes that the department should notify the employe of its anticipated action at least 30 days in advance of the proposed date of salary reduction, demotion," etc.

Courtney P. Smith (F), Buildings Branch, National Park Service, Interior, is organizing a party to motor to Indianapolis for the races May 30.

CELEBRATING restoration of pay and the passing of the enrollment mark, members of Internal Revenue Lodge, No. 47, American Federation of Government Employes, will gather tomorrow night at the Wardman Park Hotel for a reception, card party and dance. The lodge reports 1,040 members, the largest in the federation in Washington and the second largest in the country.

In charge of arrangements for the fete are Walter R. Wilson (C), chairman; Miss Inz Justice (P), Miss Marguerite Hughey (F), Henry C. Iler, Grady Nail, Miss Bertha Neff and Addison R. Hester.

An illustrated lecture was given last night before the Takoma Park Women's Club at the Elementary School by Dr. Waldo L. Schmitt, curator of the division of Marine Invertebrates, National Museum. His subject was on his recent trip to the Galapagos Islands on the Hancock Expedition aboard the yacht Velero III.

Archives Work Advances.

Dr. Roscoe R. Hill, author, lecturer, and formerly research specialist of the Manuscripts Division of the Library of Congress, recently has been appointed chief of the Division of Classification of the National Archives.

A doctor of philosophy, Dr. Hill has served as professor and lecturer in history in a number of the leading American universities. He also has done extensive work in foreign archives for the Carnegie Institution of Washington and for the Library of Congress, in addition to serving as a member of the Nicaraguan High Commission, 1920-26, and as a member of the Nicaraguan War Claims Commission, 1927-28.

In his new position, Dr. Hill will have charge of charting the history of Government agencies and their archival serials to serve as a basis for the formulation of a logical classification and cataloguing system.

"I'LL GET FREE GAS FOR 2,500 MILES THIS YEAR because Dodge gives me 5 more miles per gallon," says HENRY MARTIN

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.

New-Value Dodge Sedan (2-door) now only $690*—Touring Sedan (4-door) as illustrated, now only $760*

"I've driven many cars but I'm getting as much as 5 more miles to the gallon from my new Dodge. I drive 10,000 miles a year, so with the savings Dodge gives me, I'll get free gas for 2,500 miles this year."

Henry Martin, New Rochelle, New York

SOMETHING has happened in the motor car world! For the first time in history, a big, powerful, luxurious car with economy that is astonishing thousands.

From all sections of the country come the same reports, as enthusiastic owners write in to say they get 18—20—22 and more miles to the gallon of gas!

And that isn't all! "Oil consumption practically nil" . . . "Used practically no oil on my trip." These are typical statements made by owners of this money-saving Dodge.

Thrill to the "Airglide Ride"

One of the big things that will impress you when you first drive the New-Value Dodge is the thrilling "Airglide Ride." You seem to float along—skimming over rough spots—taking turns on an even keel. You'll find plenty of things to rave about in this Dodge. The sturdy, safety all-steel body . . . introduced by Dodge in 1914 and proved by nearly 3,000,000 owners. And Dodge perfected, dual-cylinder hydraulic brakes that give you quick "straight-line" stops—and thousands of extra miles from tires and brake linings.

Most for the Money

Yet, for all these advantages, Dodge costs but a very few dollars more than the lowest-priced cars. That's because Dodge knows how to build cars . . . has 21 years of knowledge and experience in giving you the most value for your money!

DODGE DIVISION—CHRYSLER MOTORS

This advertisement endorsed by the Department of Engineering—Chrysler Motors

"This being the first Dodge car I have used, I took an accurate check on gasoline mileage," says R. F. Lewis, New Orleans, La. "On my first trip I averaged 19 miles per gallon."

"On March 19th, I drove my Dodge on a trip of 567 miles," says Rochelle Brackman, well-known artist-writer, of New York. "I drove around 40 miles an hour and gas consumption was 20-4/10 miles to the gallon."

"I have owned four Dodge cars in ten years," says S. R. Landis, Detroit, Mich. "Even while breaking in my new 1935 Dodge, I found I was averaging better than 20 miles per gallon of gas."

Smart as Tomorrow

NEW REFINEMENTS grace the luxury of Dodge interiors. You find touches of patrician elegance...richly tailored upholstery...points of smartness and convenience that add to the pleasure and thrill of owning a Dodge.

SMASHING TESTS to prove the strength of the Dodge all-steel body. Let actual photographs like these be your guide in deciding which is the safest body! Your Dodge dealer will gladly prove to you that only a genuine all-steel body can withstand such tests.
